FORD INSTALLS HUGE AIR CONDITIONER IN PLANE ENGINE PLANT TO INSURE PRECISION WORKMANSHIP

Dearborn, Michigan—The largest air conditioning system ever installed in an American industrial plant is ready for operation in the new $23,000,000 airplane engine factory at the Ford Rouge plant.

Cooled, filtered air will be drawn into this huge "black-out" type defense unit at the rate of 2,000,000 cubic feet a minute when the enormous air-control system starts operating, according to Ford designers and engineers.

Although the airplane engine plant contains more than 800,000 square feet of floor space, Ford engineers said it would receive six complete changes of conditioned air every hour.

"That means a complete new deal on air inside that plant once every ten minutes and that's really a lot of air when you consider the building contains 70,000,000 cubic feet of space," one of them said.

The new factory will be devoted entirely to producing 1850 and 2,000 horsepower, 18 cylinder Pratt and Whitney Double Wasp aircraft engines, used by the U. S. Army in its most powerful airplanes. Now in limited production on certain parts for the engine the Ford Motor Company expects to start building complete engines within a few weeks. The plant has a planned initial capacity of one engine an hour during a 16 hour day. It probably will be greatly enlarged in the near future.

Air conditioning, Ford engineers explained, plays a big part in the precision workmanship required in aircraft work. By controlling temperatures the year around, Ford production experts are insuring uniformity in metal stock and machine tools, as well as providing for the comfort of workers.

"Most of the work on the Pratt and Whitney engine requires precision down to 1-10,000ths of an inch, so without a means of regulating temperature there would be variation in dimensions of materials and in the adjustment of delicate machines," the Ford expert pointed out.

"Clean air also is essential. This big air conditioning system filters out all harmful dust and removes from the atmosphere oil fumes that might be harmful to workers as well as machines."

The company engineer explained that the air control system in the new aircraft unit is also remarkable for the number of fan and blower outfits. It contains 32 large intake fans in the main section of the plant, 16 on either side, and has two more drawing air into the aircraft apprentice school section. Six thousand tons of refrigeration equipment cools the air.

"This is comparable to the amount of air conditioning equipment used in a 25 story hotel building," he added.

with an advisory council assisting her. On the council will be the following: Mesdames Harley Conant, John Bosch, John C. Larsen, R. H. Wensberg, L. J. Marcotte, Milton Mayper, H. H. Brinkman, LaVerne Smith, Dwight E. Porter, J. J. Keegan.

Working under Mrs. Abajian ward chairmen will be responsible for the preparedness organization in their own wards. Already chosen are Mesdames E. W. Donlin, J. E. Oberreuter, Stanley Jackson M. L. Donovan, John C. Blanchard, Miller Prentice, R. B. Baker, Earl F. Barnett, George F. Ashby, Arthur A. Fenger, and Albin A. Hoff man.

Miss Tuttle explained that each of the ward chairmen will choose precinct chairmen for each block in the city. Officially representing the Red Cross in coordinating all preparedness activities in the block unit, these block chairmen will find out which persons in their city blocks have been trained in any phase of Red Cross preparedness. Such trained persons will be organized for emergency volunteer work and training will be offered to all others who wish to serve as volunteers in any capacity that has to do with national defense.

"Red Cross services included in national defense are first aid home nursing, motor corps, disaster preparedness, nutrition and mass feeding, making of hospital dressing and bandages for the army and navy, sewing and knitting, nursing aids, life saving and water safety, hospital recreation and occupational therapy, office assistance, Braille for the blind, and training courses for the assistants in military and naval welfare services," explained Miss Tuttle.

"Training in these services," she said "has been carried on for some time in Omaha but will be expanded to meet emergency needs. During the first six months of this year more than 7000 persons have been trained in these defense measures in Douglas county, and more than 30,000 persons in the past five years. The newly formed co-ordination committee will have the job of organizing and co-ordinating the services of all these trained persons and extending the training until our entire city will be prepared for the emergencies that may occur."

ed out when I see my husband next week."

Louis signed the answer to his wife's bill last Tuesday in Detroit where he went to attend the All-Star baseball game instead of coming to Chicago as had been anticipated. Atty Temple flew back with the papers Wednesday morning.

Although many friends would like to see a reconciliation and Marva wants one if the champion will promise to spend more time at home and give her the attention she desires, it is understood that Joe would be most happy if he again received single blessedness since he considers his glamorous wife "too expensive" to keep.

For over two years Joe has spent much time with Marva and nine months ago she seriously considered filing suit for divorce, according to those in the know. However, had she done so she would have been forced to change her dates of the alleged acts of cruelty from January and April of this year when, she says, the champion slugged her and stepped on her ankle.
