Declares Religion Faces Test

East St. Louis, Ill., Aug. 19 (A NP)—Declaring that the trend of religion today will determine the destinies of the world tomorrow and that the fate of humanity will not be determined by marching armies but rather by what religion does to the human heart, the Rev. J. C. Austin of Chicago, closed an address to the Illinois State Baptists in executive session here Tuesday, in which he formally announced his espousal of the candidacy for the presidency of the National Baptist Convention which meets in Cleveland in September.

"For some years," declared Rev. Austin. "I have concerned myself very studiously with the trends of the religions of the world. I have given attention to the great leaders and even to the leaders of cults so as to know their attitudes and objectives and programs, and so seek that something which attracts and holds the soul interest of so many earnest, conscientious seekers after God.

"I have sat for an hour in the throne room of Pope Pius with a Coptic priest as my guide, and through them have tried to see the great objective of the Catholic church. I have conversed with Kagawa, the great mystic of the East, and with outstanding men such as F. W. Brown, ex-president of the southern Baptists and George W. Truitt, ex president of the world's alliance.

"I have even gone," Rev. Austin continued, "into the kingdom of the Rev. M. J. Divine, styled as 'Father' and have corresponded with him such great wealth and the confidence of tens of thousands. Cults, arising on ever hand. I have had the courage to investigate, even those about my door, for I know and you know that religion is facing a tremendous test.

"I am convinced after research, meditation and prayer that the religion which holds the key of hope for the world is the Baptist denomination which bases its life and discipline upon the new testament.

"We Negro Baptists are a part of the great World Baptist alliance where we are thrown in touch with world movements and our leaders are expected to match the intellectual prowess of the Baptist leadership of the rest of the world—and may I digress a moment to pay this tribute of respect to our fallen chief, Dr. L. K. Williams. No matter what charges his enemies may have lodged against him, there is no man in America that will not agree he moved at perfect ease among whatever company of the world he found himself placed. He was a Roman among Romans.

"Surely we must have a leadership that will win the respect and challenge the admiration and provoke the thought of Baptist preachers and laymen of all denominations.

"Baptists, wake up," he concluded. "Let not lethargy, or carelessness or ties of personal friendship nor consideration of political fealty blind us to our responsibility and duty in this day which is at once the blackest in the world's history and the most critical in the affairs of our denomination. I offer myself, body, mind and spirit to be your servant and is not desired or accepted, there will be no tears shed and neither will it break my heart. I will go right on as I have done in the years gone by serving to the glory of God."

DR. WALKER, BUSINESS LEAGUE HEAD, HAS ENVIABLE AND BUSY CAREER

Memphis, Aug. 23 (by Marlon Simpkins for A NP)—Within the span of 40 years only four men have served as president of the National Negro Business League. The first two, Booker T. Washington, sage of Tuskegee and his distinguished successor, Robert R. Moton, imparted to the league the lustre and prestige of their pre-eminent career in the field of education. The later two, Clinton C. Spaulding and Dr. Joseph E. Walker, have given realism to the objectives of the league through their outstanding successes in the field of business.

Few Negro organizations have been more discriminating in its selection of leaders as the National Negro Business League. From Washington, founder of the organization, to the present administration under Dr. Walker, the league's leadership has represented a fine combination of educational and business sagacity, which undoubtedly will this month be reflected in the general theme of the 1941 convention, "Education and Negro Business."

The 1941 session will be held in Memphis, August 27-30.

During the past two years President Walker has been a positive influence in building up and expanding the program of the league. While holding with veneration to fundamental principles of his predecessors, he has not hesitated to explore new fields of business techniques in keeping with the trends of the day.

Since his election to the presidency of the league at Oklahoma City, 1939, the National Negro Business League has made unprecedented strides. Dr. Walker was reelected for a second term in 1940. Further honor came to the insurance magnate, who is also founder-president of Universal Life, 17th largest insurance company in America, when the league accepted his invitation to hold its 1941 session in the Bluff City, his home.

The President has organized and visited Chambers of Commerce in ever section of America. Last year he made two visits to Detroit prior to the session in the motor city; helped business leaders form leagues in New Orleans and Kansas City; addressed groups in St. Louis, Richmond, New York City, and Little Rock and attended the important meeting held for Negro leaders by officials of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

Results of this meeting brought about closer relationship between white and colored chambers throughout the country. One of the guest speakers in Memphis will be L. P. Dickie, manager of the Southern Division of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, during the league convention in this city.

Like his predecessors, Dr. Walker, has given unreservedly of time and money in advancing the league's program. Proud of the honor accorded him by this distinguished body, he has endeavored to meet every responsibility that goes with it. His administration, among other achievements, has added 75 new affiliated organizations to the league, and general activities are at higher pitch than at any time in its history. Last year the National Housewives League was formed. Serving as a stimulus to the Negro market, the housewives league places emphasis upon purchasing power through Negro women as consumers.

President Walker has continued the policy of his predecessors as it relates to colleges and educational institutions. He has spoken at a number of schools, including commencement address at his alma mater, Acoron, Acoron, Miss.; and Lane. Education in relation to business has been stressed repeatedly as he appears before college and high school groups.

A native of Mississippi, President Walker has achieved an enviable career in the heart of his native delta. He has been almost most without error in business investments. His leadership of Universal Life during the worst period of the depression has attested to the soundness of his business judgement under trying conditions. A fortnight ago, President Walker purchased on behalf of his insurance company $50,000 worth of National Defense bonds—the maximum that can be bought in a single year "because of the company's patriotism and soundness of investment." Moreover, he sent out numerous letters urging other Negro organizations to "invest in democracy."

"We are ready to give the league delegates and visitors the best convention they've ever had," President Walker told this correspondent after a checkup on committee activities. "And you can add that the mayor and all other officials will do all possible to extend courtesy to our delegation."

AVIATION STUDENTS TRAIN AS OFFICERS; WILL COMMAND SECTIONS OF GROUND CREWS

Chanute Field, Ill., Aug. 24 (by Sgt. J. Sindt for ANP)—Six colored cadets, attached to the 99th Pursuit squadron, are well along the way toward becoming commissioned officers.

Cadet William D. Townes, Petersburg, are now attending the armament course and upon receiving their commissions, these men will be the officers in charge of armament for the 99th.

Nelson Brooks, Springfield, Ill., and Wardell W. Stevenson, Washington, D. C., are attending the radio repairers and operators course, which will qualify them as communication officers.

Elmer D. Jones and James L. Johnson, both from Washington, are going to play their part in national defense. In a short time many of them will be used in construction of Army planes, tanks, guns and warships.

The scrapping of a single car provides enough metal for a light cannon, the OPM has pointed out. Scrap from 20 cars will build a tank.

The 2,500,000 old cars junked each year are the chief source of the 30,000,000 tons of scrap metal which will be converted into steel for defense production this year.

But with more guns, planes, tanks and warships needed, scrap metal collection must increase 25 per cent if our 80,000,000 ton annual rate of steep consumption is to be maintained, according to the OPM's Iron and Steel Branch.

Prompted by the OPM, auto wreacking concerns are scouring fields and junkyards for all the old "heaps" and employing additional labor to strip them of every bit of metal which can be used in defense production.
