While their menfolk round up scrap metal and rubber for Nebraska's all-out salvage campaign, Omaha women are doing their part to grease the skids under the axis by saving and selling another vital war material—waste kitchen fat. Since last May, when the local grease salvage drive was inaugurated by the women's division of the Chamber of Commerce, Omaha housewives have collected and sold to their grocers over 7.30 pounds of fat—enough to produce 2,999 pounds of glycerine for explosives.

Success of the test campaign in Omaha and a similar project in Chicago led the War Production Board to adopt the plan on a national basis. Official seals, counter and window cards approved by the WPB have been sent to every meat dealer in the country, and in Omaha nearly every grocery store is cooperating as an official fat-collecting station.

Housewives are paid five cents a pound for contributions of waste kitchen grease, but Salvage Bureau officials warn that they must follow these rules: Strain fat from bacon, roasts, etc., to remove food particles; store in cool place in clean, wide mouthed container, preferably a tin can (never use a glass jar); deliver to grocer only after a pound or more is collected.

There has been a great big surprise on who? Rev. W. E. Fort, the pastor of the Salem Baptist Church. The Rev. had a birthday Sunday July 19, and of course the pianist Mrs. Blanche Davis and the president of the Salem Baptist Church Choir, Mrs. Mamie Thomas planned the surprise on the young fellow at his home 2622 Charles St. after the night services. Have you? Will you? Round-up your scrap metal today - for tomorrow may be too late. W. A. R.—My husband has a dry weather job, and he needs work every day, rain or shine. Should he consider giving up his job?

Ans: Yes. Your family can't possibly exist on the income he is making at the present time. The job he has inquired about in the city would be the job for him to take. It would mean a separation for a few weeks until he can get settled. But it will offer regular employment and a steady income.

H. K.—I am married to a man for convenience but I don't love him. I am in love with a man in the army. He is coming home in July and I want to know what to tell him when he gets here.

Ans: You fascinate the boy in the army. But he is not looking for a wife. You are taking too much for granted for thinking that you will have to tell him anything. He only wants a heck of a good time and a little excitement. While he is on his furlough... not a show down with your husband. As for your marriage being for convenience... you don't know just how convenient it really is. If you had got to get out and really work for a living, you would soon change your tune. Better wake up to the fact that your husband is more than a convenience before it is too late.

T. D. W.—I have been given a treasure by a spirit. We have hit it but can't get it up. I am planning to go to New Orleans to see if I can get a man who can get it up for us. Advise me what to do. Write me privately.

Ans: The possibility is that you are in for a big let down. The man that you have referred to in New Orleans is only interested in the money he could get out of you by

B. B.—My mother and father are very bad and strike me like a dog. I do all the work and they try to pour enough on me to kill me. Will it be better for me to leave home? If I stay, I will kill myself.

Ans: Leaving home would put you in a far worse predicament than you are in now. It is no child's play to get out and make a living... especially with no training. Your parents are strict and intend to make you walk the chalk-line, but firmness in handling children is the best way in the world to build character. The main cause for argument with your parents is this boy you are trying to slip around and date. A 13 year old girl is entirely too young to be running around with boys. As to killing yourself... no situation is bad enough to warrant that. Your problem will be solved when you make up your mind to respect your parents' wishes regarding this boy until you are given permission to invite them openly to your home.

D. M. P.—I am so blue I am depending on you. My husband does not seem to want anything but a good time. He is a cook in a camp in California. When I write him, he takes his own time about answering it, a week or two. I told him I wanted to move down there. He tells me he won't be down there, but he has told me this for the past two years. Should I make this trip to Calif. to see him?

Ans: If you make the trip, you won't be received with open arms. He is having an affair with some woman who lives near the camp. Don't take your vacation there. It would only mean an unpleasant situation for you to leave to face and would afford you little enjoyment. Take the trip you have thought seriously of taking. The affair of your husband's is bound to reach a crisis before many months have passed.

M. O. T.—I started living with this man eleven months ago. He told my father he was going to marry me but he hasn't. Do you think I should ask him to marry me now that he is working regularly?

Ans: Under no circumstances should you remain with this man unless he marries you. Marriage is the only real test of a man's love. If he can't keep his promise and marry you as he stated he would in
