THE PUBLISHERS GOT TOGETHER

Pictured above are a group of newspapermen congratulating John H. Senstacke new President of the Negro Newspaper Publishers' Association. The convention closed a three day conference at Louisville Ky. on June 13 after spending a day as guest of the War Department who escorted the delegates through Fort Knox where they saw sham battles and other activities of the 377th crack Engineers Battalion. Left to right are: Charles H. Loeb Cleveland Call Post; Mark Anthony representing Louisville's Mayor, John H. Sengstacke, Chicago Defender; Rudy Johnson, Chicago Defender; William B. Watkins, Press Photo Service, Inc., Chicago; Dr. Craighhead, President of the Louisville Defender and N. A. Sweets, St. Louis American. The new Presidents program for the Association is as follows:

- 1. Increasing the prestige of the Association as a non-partisan organization of Negro publishers working for the interest of their profession.
2. Promotion of an understanding of the problems of the Negro press among the officials of government in order to protect the interest of Negro publishers.
3. Representation on all Publisher's Committees appointed by the government to work out the war time problems of the Publishing and Printing industry.
4. The need for increasing services to the smaller papers which are the test of the actual and potential strength of the Negro Press.
5. Encourage the development of cooperative relationships which will aid all publishers in news coverings, advertising linage, mechanical aids and business savings. (Press Photo Service, Inc.)

NEGRO ORGANIZATIONS TO SHARE 5 PERCENT OF ARMSTRONG-ROBINSON BOUT

New York, N. Y., June 25.—When Henry Armstrong, former triple-champion now staging a sensational comeback, and Ray Robinson fight at the Polo Grounds August 7 or 14 5 percent of the gross receipt is to go to ten national agencies working on behalf of the Negro, according to a plan announced here.

RIOTS CALL FOR ACTION ON ANTI LYNCH BILL, CONGRESS TOLD BY NAACP (Continued from Page 1) knew that Harrison could not again be tried for the murder of Johnnie Mayo. The Supreme Court of Florida ruled that without the confession there was no evidence to involve Harrison, and since the confession was procured illegally it could not be used. At the trial there would be no evidence on which to base a case.

The NAACP reminded the congressmen that those familiar with the situation in the South do not need to be told that when there are such reversals by a southern court there is certainly grave doubt as to the guilt of a Negro.

"Opponents of federal anti-lynching legislation," the NAACP continued, "have for years asserted that the states themselves would do the job of preventing lynching and punishing lynchers. The record demonstrates that these promises have not been kept. In view, therefore, of the immediacy of the situation, it is imperative that the Congress act without fail to add the strong arm of the federal government to those of the several states to stop this tide of mob violence at once before it causes us either to lose the war or to prolong it at the cost of the lives of Americans."

Marianna was the scene of one of the most horrible of Southern lynchings in October, 1934, when Claude Neal was put to death by a mob which chased him all the way to Brewton, Ala.

ing to an announcement this week by George P. Moore, manager of Armstrong. The organizations, selected by Mr. Moore and Judge Hubert Delany of New York, include the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, the National Association for Colored Graduate Nurses, National Committee of the YMCA, Council of African Affairs, National Urban League.

Walter White, NAACP secretary commenting on the unusual offer, of Mr. Moore, stated: "On behalf of the NAACP, and I am sure on behalf of the other organizations similarly honored as beneficiaries, I wish to express sincere appreciation for the generosity and vision of Mr. Moore and the gallant fighter Henry Armstrong in helping these organizations at this most critical period. There is real significance here inasmuch as it is considered that all these agencies are working, each in its own way, for the integration of the Negro into American life...and consequently for the true democracy America must eventually achieve."

"LYNCHING"

(by MYRTLE M. GOODLOW)

Dear Reader: This time the facts in rhyme Are very unpleasant to read But we hope the truthful lines Will help you understand, why we continue to plead For our country to right the wrong

We have suffered so long Lynching is a disgrace To the human race, and to any nation Boasting civilization, and isn't it hypocrisy To censor those across the sea For barbaric cruelty When our country upholds barbarity, We are sure no savage, has ever been Guilty of worse torture. Than the American white man Who lynches his fellowman. Please help us in our fight And help America too—to get right

In God's most holy sight. The gathering crowd is allowed, to go on their way To take another's life away The laws they do not respect For those who have sworn to protect. Their duties now gladly neglect. For they too are on the job And leading members of the mob.

The human vultures, for the victim's blood now thirst And so they strip him, naked as the day of his birth They are now ready to attack, a defenseless black The fiends laugh merrily, as the victim pleads for mercy As they strike terrific blows upon his back They drag his torched body, O'er the street

Writhing in agony from head to feet, and in his dying throes. Cut off his fingers and toes, and then his ears for souvenirs. While another does still worse, that cannot be put in verse. And then one member of the mob, with a Satanic grin Thoroughly does his job, and with a wild savage shout Another gorges his eyes out He who was once a human being Has long before given up the ghost

And his broken and bleeding body, is now hung upon a tree or post So all the world can see, their crime of infamy Even the devil in Hell, smarts with envy, To think that even he couldn't do quite so well In his deeds of cruelty, to humanity.

Through all the years to come, they shall remember their evil job well done For a guilty conscience will never let One member of the mob to ever forget, they shall always hear his dying scream, and see his torched body as they dream. And when their life on earth is done, and their judgement hour shall come, they shall answer to God For the life of the victim they robbed.

Plain Talk..

ELMER A. CARTER

In last week's column I attempted to outline the significance and meaning of the mass walk outs by white workers which have occurred in many sections of the country when Negro workers either were taken into a plant engaged in war work for the first time or were promoted to jobs demanding greater skill.

It doesn't require much intelligence to see that behind this display of race prejudice there is planning and organization that is nationwide. The strategy of these American fascist Negro haters is much more subtle and dangerous than the old Ku Klux Klan altho their methods are similar in that both work in the dark. But the modern (Kluser) does not attract attention to himself by wearing white robes and black masks. He works underground and his attack is through labor organizations for there he can easily play on the poor whites' fear of competition, and his ignorance. His aim is to incite the workers and to plant in their minds the virus of active racial antipathy. Once that is accomplished the Negro, at the close of the war, will be forced out of employment and the rest will be comparatively easy. The threat of mass walkouts will terrorize the employer who will hesitate to run the risk of financial loss by opposing the will of his white employees. And besides, the mass of white workers once indoctrinated with ideas of racial hatred can be manipulated to push forward toward a more complete participation in American life. It is the force by which reactionaries hope to reduce the Negro to colonial status, to eliminate him as a political factor in the United States and to spread the idea of racial segregation throughout the land.

To some Negroes and whites this seems preposterous. "It can't happen here".... is their attitude. And

So to the Negro vote in 1944, Roosevelt looks for support in his ambitious fourth term program. Unless the Republicans forthrightly denounce the carpetbagging southerners who are running for progress; unless the Republicans show some liberalism themselves and indicate their true position, Mr. Roosevelt will have the Negro vote in his pocket, regardless of how many Negroes in Chicago voted for Sen. Wayland Brooks and how many Negroes in New York voted for Dewey. This is another question altogether and the southerners are solidifying the Negro as no other medium has ever done.

so they go along more or less placidly confident that the machinery of racial adjustment which has served them in the past will serve them in the future. But the machinery of yesterday is old and creaky and is inadequate for the gigantic tasks that the present and future holds.

In last week's column I suggested that the Negro must meet the threat within organized labor by complete identification with organized labor by joining so as to be able to make the fight on the inside. But this is not enough. There must be a regrouping and a new alignment of the liberal forces in America if a tidal wave of reaction and anti-Negro sentiment does not sweep the country when the war is over.

This new alignment of forces must be on a nationwide scale. The forces must consist of representatives of the church, labor and fraternal bodies, colleges and universities, organized social work and those groups in the community which are committed to economic and social advance, both white and black. And these forces must be organized as a unit to counter adverse propaganda and to act as the first line of defense. They must be ready also to take the offensive and to utilize the churches, the schools, and the press in order to press home the battle for complete democracy.

The basis of this organization must be local and regional rather than national. Its power must stem from the bottom not from the top. And it must be geared to meet the problems peculiar to each locality through men and women of both races who live there, who make their living there, and who are familiar with the local and economic conditions which there prevail.

The individuals who compose these bodies must be carefully selected. They must not be those who cannot stand the gaff when the going gets tough, those who fear that a forthright stand will invite social or economic reprisal. Nor, those whose livelihood depends upon the whim or caprice of philanthropy. In almost every community there are such as these. Small in number but able if properly organized.

It wasn't very long ago that television sounded too fantastic to ever be a reality. But today, we know television is going to be a standard part of every modern home's equipment... in the not too distant future.

You'll want television! You'll want an automatic electric dishwasher, too. And probably one of those new electric washing machines. You'll want a lot of wonderful new things that will be available to free Americans when this war is won.

And you'll have them... if you save for them now! The best way in the world to do that is to keep on buying War Bonds and Stamps. They guarantee Victory Today... Better Living Tomorrow!
