fraternity, following a conference here last week with members of the organization. The convalescence will be limited to less than two days, in contrast to the four days, at Christmastime, which it has usually consumed, and the frolics and frivolities of prewar days will be even more limited, Attorney Johnson stated.

The November dates have been set, he continued, to avoid a later holiday period when all travelling would be more at a premium; similarly, St. Louis was chosen because it is situated close to the important midwestern cities where the fraternity is most strongly located. Because of the limited social program it is expected that only voting delegates will be attracted instead of the large number of non-delegate members who have attended in past years.

The 1942 Grand chapter meeting was called off and replaced by an emergency board of directors meeting instead in Chicago last December.

Such a board meeting has no power, however, to elect new officers, to order large expenditures, or to do other important business of a fraternity which now owns buildings in several college centers and which is also losing most of its undergraduate members to the armed services, Johnson reflected. Dr. I. Theodore Donaldson, New York, is senior grand vice polemarch of the Kappa Alpha Psi fraternity; J. Ernest Wilkins, of Chicago, grand polemarch; Ernest K. Jones, Southern university, is grand strategist; G. James Fleming, Philadelphia, editor, the Kappa Alpha Psi Journal.

BETTER BUSINESS BUREAUS PLAN CENTRAL HDQTRS.

At the 29th Annual Conference of the National Association of Better Business Bureaus, held in Omaha, Nebraska, delegates adopted unanimously a resolution calling for the creation of a central promotional office. With the Association now comprising eighty-three Better Business Bureaus and Better Business Bureau Divisions of Chambers of Commerce throughout the United States and Canada, the delegates to the Omaha Conference thought the time had come to maintain a central office with a paid staff to handle national publicity, promote and assist Bureaus in the preparation of educational material and etc.

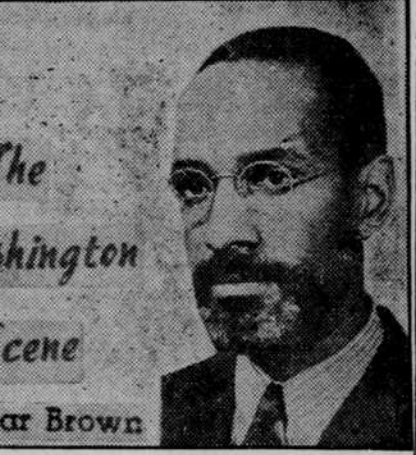

Many other constructive steps for the betterment of the service of Better Business Bureaus were adopted, among which was a definite plan to protect the public's investment in War Bonds, from swindlers and racketeers, during the present and post-war periods. It was vividly recalled that following the last war, when Better Business Bureaus were in their infancy many unsuspecting holders of Liberty Bonds were the victims of swindlers, who made a "killing" by selling many dubious investment promotions. The delegates vowed that this would not happen again. More than half the discussion of the Conference was devoted to war time and post-war problems of Better Business Bureaus and business in general.

Mr. Mark Ferree, Business Manager of the Indianapolis Times, was elected National Chairman, George H. Dennison of Pittsburgh was reelected President.

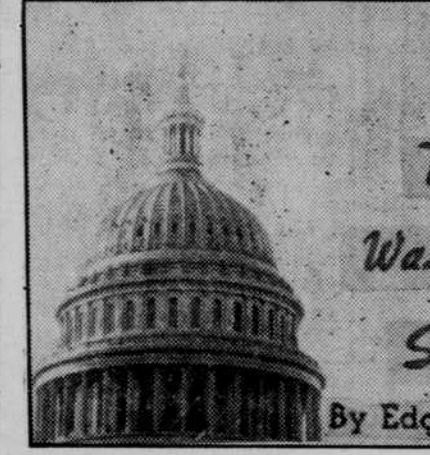

FIGHTING IN SOLOMONS

This photograph, made somewhere in the Solomons, is a perfect likeness of Cpl. Eugene Isom, formerly of Chicago and Dayton, Ohio. The Corporal sends greetings to relatives and friends "over here" and vows that he'll keep whipping Jap heads "over there" as long as he is able. He is the son of the Rev. and Mrs. Charles Isom, Sr. of Dayton, Ohio, and the brother of Lt. Charles Isom, Jr., who is the popular singer and master of ceremonies at Club De-Lisa in Chicago. RANKIN AND DAWSON

On page A3916 of the Congressional Record is an account of the 47th speech of Congressman John E. Rankin (Dem.) Mississippi protesting against such colored leadership and militancy in the campaign for equal rights, as represented by the March on Washington Movement, under the courageous leadership of A. Philip Randolph. It is libelous, but Congressmen in speeches on the floor are protected against such laws and cannot be sued for their slanderous efforts at character assassination, so frequently indulged in by this southern poll taxer. The one man, who could answer him in kind is the only colored Congressman, Honorable William L. Dawson, but he declines to do so. He served as an Assistant Secretary of State. Except for sharing responsibility for that Department's diplomatic policy, which resulted in the occupational rape of Haiti, Mr. Bullitt's record, otherwise, is barren of any word or deed, calculated to aid the colored soldier, sailor, and citizen in sharing in the fruits of the democracy for which thousands have fought and died. In the face of the terrifying race riots of those days and mob-minded unprovoked racial violence, he preserved than as now a dignified, but distressing silence. The spirit of tolerance never moved this high born Quaker to speak out against the wrongs perpetrated upon a defenseless people, merely because of their race and color, twenty five years ago, or three weeks ago.

SOUTHERN NAZISM AND DISFRANCHISEMENT
Mississippi's Rankin was bitter in his attack on Mr. Randolph for paying $900 to buy a full page advertisement in the Washington Evening Star to say what every colored American has been praying Congressman Dawson would voice on the floor of the House of Representatives. The first statement demands a democratic army called upon the president, to enforce section 4A of the 1940 Draft Act which reads, "In the selection and training of men under this act, there shall be no discrimination against any person on account of race or color."
Other demands insisted on enforcement of the U. S. Constitution equal educational and employment opportunities and an end to disfranchisement in the South. Does this sound communistic as Rankin men will respond with patriotic zeal to this opportunity to serve as civilian defense volunteers and to gain practical knowledge in fire fighting that will be of value to them, their industries and the community even after the war," Chief O'Connor said. "Men who cannot wear the uniforms of our armed forces can wear with pride and honor the insignia of the civilian defense fire and rescue corps."

On completion of the basic training courses, OCD auxiliary firemen are now receiving advanced training through practical experience with the city fire department. Since July 19, three auxiliary firemen are being assigned each evening to fire department truck companies, and five, to the fire department rescue squads.

OCD N-E-W-S

At the request of three Omaha firms, Fire Chief Daniel A. O'Connor has arranged a special firemen's training school under the Omaha civilian defense council with classes to begin August 3 and each Tuesday thereafter at 7:45 p. m. in the fire department's drill tower, 30th and Hanover Streets.
Enrolled now are 43 men from the Metropolitan Utilities District, Corn States Serum company, and Union Pacific railroad shops which made the request for this school. The school, last to be held this year, is open to 60 more draft-deferred men. They will be enrolled by volunteering at the drill tower next Tuesday evening or by calling Floyd S. Reep, chief of training for the auxiliary firemen, who will have charge of the school. "We believe that many Omaha

In fact—if it does not help—you money back. What could be faster? Get Allen's today at any live druggist. Only 50 cents—Do it Now.

One day, Mr. Nebane sat on his backsteps and looked at his small flock, trying to think. "If meat is going to be short," he thought, "I could increase my flock."
That was just the thing; meat was going to be short, and every chicken he could raise would be needed. About that time a new farm agent, Howard Edwards, came into the community. He was enthusiastic about raising poultry. One day he took a look at Texas' chicken goal. Why, it called for 40 million chickens. Edwards got busy talking with farmers and city folks who had backyard flocks, encouraging them to raise more chickens. Finally Farm Agent Edwards got the colored people of Tarrant county to set a goal of 800,000 chickens.
One of the first backyard flock owners Edwards talked with was Mr. Nebane. With the farm agents technical assistance, Mr. Nebane thought he would increase his flock considerably. It wasn't easy holding down the custodial job and raising chickens too, but Mr. Nebane liked it because it was helping to win the war. His flock gradually increased from a few thousand to thousands. Already this year he sold 6,000 chickens and has plenty more on the yard.

Out of the Earth

Tanks—those formidable fighting machines—are born out of the earth. Tremendous quantities of ores and minerals are required before they can be constructed and take active part in the theatres of war.

The transportation of those raw materials to the industrial areas—the transportation of the assembled units—is the responsibility of America's railroads.

That's one phase of vital war-work shouldered by Union Pacific. Over the "Strategic Middle Route," uniting the West with the East, gigantic freight locomotives haul tanks, guns, plane parts and other war materials. Troops—too—by the thousands. A great army of railroad workers are "keeping 'em rolling." It's a responsibility they are proud to assume.

JIM CROW FOR PHILLY
William Christian Bullitt has just resigned, after fourteen months as the confidential and special assistant to Secretary of the Navy, Frank Knox, who will long be remembered for his Jim Crow and discriminatory acts, against the colored race generally and Dorie Miller, the Pearl Harbor hero, in particular, Colonel Knox, first refused to reveal the name of the unknown colored messman, then recommended against the award of

RAISING 6,000 CHICKENS IS ONLY PART TIME JOB FOR THIS TEXAN
Fort Worth, Texas, Aug. 2 (ANP) Until war came, John Nebane was satisfied with the full time job as custodian for one of the large downtown buildings. But after Pearl Harbor he became restless; he was over the age limit for joining up, so he began to look about to see how he could contribute more effectively to the war effort.
The government began talking about food needs of our armed forces, our allies, and our war workers here at home; then there was a hint of shortages, especially of meats and other protein foods. Out in the backyard, Mr. Nebane had a small flock of eating and laying chickens. Occasionally he took one or two down to the building and sold them to some of the
