The greatest star of the screen!

You'll give it the glad hand!
You'll give it a big hand!

Anyway you look at it—you'll have to hand it to "Salute To The Marines."

It's an M-G-M two-gun story that takes you in and out of the Marine Corps with Wallace Beery.

Beery at his best, too.

As a Marine—he's rarin' to go—but regulations retire him to the sidelines!

His wife (smartly played by Fay Bainter) doesn't see it Beery's way. (She's taken up pacifism—tries to make a home-body out of Beery!)

But when the Japs pull their surprise attack in the Philippines—Beery gets his big chance to show he's still a Marine at heart!

What a fight that man puts up!

He turns a last-stand into a front-line battle—wins glory for himself—time for our side!

When you're not cheering battlin' Beery on—you're having the time of your life—watching him scrap with his wife!

There's some smooth romance, too, between Beery's beautiful daughter—prettily played by Marilyn Maxwell, and the service men who gang around her.

Here's a picture that throbs with action—beats with sentiment!

See it—and cheer this Technicolor "Salute!"

(By H. GEORGE DAVENPORT)
Chicago, Illinois. This writer has conversed with a number of persons about the rights of Negroes, for instance: Should the Negro press his fight for freedom now or wait until after the war? A. Philip Randolph, head of the March on Washington Movement, is considered by some the most aggressive in his fight for recognition now. There are some who criticize the movement because they bar white people from said organization. Possibly some of you remember when certain leaders criticized the Y.C.A., the N.A.A.C.P. and the Urban League because they were affiliated with groups and argued that a Negro organization with white people on its executive board would have tendency to prevent full progress of the Negro, there you have both sides of a beautiful argument.

In a recent conversation with our most prominent politician the writer mentioned that he thought that Randolph was doing a good job, the politician answered that Randolph was only making a lot of noise and wouldn't get anywhere. What are your plans for helping the Negro was the next question. Ans: "I WILL MAKE FRIENDS WITH THOSE SOUTHERNERS AND GET MORE DONE QUIETLY THAN RANDOLPH CAN GET MAKING A LOT OF NOISE". Now you have a very good idea just where your people are. For thirty-six years I have lived in the South and have been up here for twenty-six, so now you know how old I am and if anybody thinks that they can make friends with a southern white man to the extent that he will give a Negro any part

OC-D-NEWS

J. W. Van DeWater, 113 South 51st Street, who has served as chief master mechanic of the O.C.D. auxiliary fire and rescue corps since its organization, has been appointed acting chief of training during the absence of Floyd S. Reep.

Reep will be absent from the city from August 15 to September 18.

Van DeWater will take charge of the training class of 45 members from the Union Pacific Shops, Corn States Serum company and Metropolitan Utilities District which is meeting each Tuesday night. He also will receive applications for a new class of 50 men to be organized early in October. Eight applications for this class already have been received.

Five incident officers who have been added to the administrative staff of the Omaha civilian defense corps will have charge of the activities of the various service units in the field during an aerial attack or in test air raids and blackouts.

The new incident officers are: Henry M. Edwards, 4236 Parker Street; E. C. Crasberg, 5414 Mason Street; E. E. Kueny, 3934 Sheffield Street; William J. F. Sackriede, 2732 Road Street, and E. M. Wilkinson, 620 36th 38th Street.

During real or test air raids, the incident officers normally will be stationed at the control center from where they will be dispatched by Controller Glen A. Walker to the scene of incidents requiring two or more defense corps services. Selecting a location for their post, they will report its phone number to the control center and immediately take charge of coordinating the work of the various defense corps at the incident.

The incident officers are readily identifiable by the insignia with red and blue stripes running from front to back on their helmets and by their arm bands. Flag posts at the incident also are identified by a flag or lantern.

Unit leaders are instructed to report to the incident officer immediately.
