

Walters at the Hill Hotel on the up and go at all times. Hotel Reigs and White Horse Inn Waiters tops on quick service. Omaha Club waiters serving with a smile as 1945 is just around the corner. Blackstone Hotel waiters are on the job in a very fine way. All waiters should take some shares in the Credit Union. Musician headwaiter and the wide awake crew at the Omaha Chamber of Commerce always making friends and improving the service. Fontenelle Hotel waiters and the quick stepping room service boys are always in the front line. Paxton hotel waiters very much out in front on service.

Fellow waiters if you are pleased with the column do as a large number of readers—make it known, as we receive telephone calls every so often and people in other cities like to read it.

Discrimination and Humiliation Should be Discontinued
We very often wonder if some of the business people in Omaha are trying to use the actions of the Southern people. Not very long ago, one of our law abiding citizens, was mistreated in a downtown theatre. A lady of our race was shopping in a downtown store. She was informed she could not try on the garment she had selected. Now what we would like to know are we expected to buy war bonds and stamps and be treated like slaves. Mr. businessman don't bring the south to Omaha!

SPEAK UP!
BY RUTH TAYLOR
Centuries ago Euripedes wrote, "A slave is he who cannot express his thoughts."
How can you expect people to understand you if you cannot speak for yourself. How can you expect the proper evaluation of your work and your ability unless you are able to talk of it clearly, quietly and with dignity?
Now don't say "I can't talk about myself." Well, if YOU can't, who can?
I don't mean you're to go around loud-mouthed, bragging about what you mean to do someday. You must have—or acquire if you haven't it—the ability to sell yourself—but remember you have to have something to sell before you begin. You've got to be sure your merchandise, which is you, is the best possible at the time.

War Vet Faces Murder Charge

Soundphoto
WATERTOWN, N. Y.—Marine Cpl. Arthur D. Foster, a wounded veteran of Bougainville fighting, comforting his crying wife, after he had been charged with first degree murder in connection with the slaying of Robert E. Hodkinson, 35. The Marine's wife, Lily Belle, 25, told her husband, 28, that she had been raped the night of Nov. 16 and identified Hodkinson as her assailant.

You have to have the assurance of ability and competence before you start talking and not just a bag of "hot air."
And it wasn't just yourself Euripedes meant. "A slave is he who cannot express his thoughts." You have lots of ideas about the things that interest you. (I've met very few people whose only interest was themselves.) Learn how to talk about the things that interest you. Practice by saying what you think. It'll come hard at first—like anything new. But the more you do it, the easier it will become. I know it wasn't easy for me at first, either. Have something to say—even if it is only thank you. I know one man who was suddenly catapulted to an important job. He was a big frog in his own pond but when he attended his first big convention very few people had ever heard of him. They knew him before the end of it! I never heard a man make so many two minute speeches. When you summed them all up, they were just that he wanted to say he thanked the previous speaker for his ap and appropriate remarks. Of course, all the speakers he complimented, and their followers, decided he was a man of discernment—and when he finally made a speech they were his friends. Now, couldn't you do that?
Remember—the oftener you express your thoughts, the clearer you will think and the better able you will be to explain your viewpoint. You will gain confidence and poise. You will feel more capable and better able to tackle not only your job, but the one ahead.
"A Slave is he who cannot express his thoughts."
