Your BABY By Lillian B. Storms In spite of the abundance of food which we have in this country, of surpluses of food, of the fact that we have learned about what food is good to eat and should be eaten, and that school lunches are important, still it was a shock to find such a large proportion of our young men rejected as unfit for military service. The armed services know much of the poor physical condition of our supposedly fine young man-power was due to poor nutrition, that is, poor food habits. Mothers of babies have been impressed with the importance of feeding their young hopefuls the right foods and in training their youngsters so they will like a variety of foods — the right foods to develop sturdy bodies. Mothers have learned from their physicians and others what these foods should be, whole grain or enriched cereals, vegetables, fruits, milk and eggs. This is no one else's job, it is the job of the parents and it is a three-times-a-day job for a good many years. It is the theory that good food habits established in the first year or two or three years will become habitual. However, after infancy, when the young child comes to the family table, these good habits sometimes are not maintained. Johnny finds out his father and mother don't eat vegetables and, of course, he wants to eat what they do. Or the family may think he is grown-up enough so that what he eats doesn't need supervision. Carelessness in the selection of food eaten by all of the family, or in its attractive service, or in the example set by the other members of the family is worse than thoughtless, it may be serious negligence.

LOCAL NOTES

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. King of 2730 Burdette has a real nice home. There is no children only grandchildren. Mr. King says he is preparing to raise chickens. Mrs. King said she didn't feel so good at the present time. Mr. King has been with the railroad for 25 years and is still working with them.

Mr. Mote Davis of 2806 Seward was building a fence around his place some time ago. Now that the fence is completed, you should see it. It is a very nice place and the fence just sets it off. He has one in family and that is Mrs. Davis. Mr. Davis keeps employed at all times.

Mrs. Mildred McDuffy of Oklahoma City is the house guest of Mrs. Leola Carlson of 2424 No. 28th Ave. Mrs. McDuffy's stay in our city is indefinite. She says she likes Omaha fine and might live here some day.

Circulation Manager Omaha Guide Omaha, Nebraska Dear Sir: You will perhaps remember a request from this office made several months ago for copies of your publication.

At the time the request was made numerous members of this organization had expressed the hope that the Negro periodicals with which they were familiar would be sent us. Since that time we have received several papers from you. Those issues were received with gratitude and the girls were as the English say "thrilled to bits" to get them.

I should like to express appreciation for the entire group and ask that you continue to send copies to us whenever possible. News from home is always morale building for overseas troops.

Again may I thank you. Respectfully yours, MARGARET E. BARNES, 1st Lt., WAC Public Relations Officer.

ST. PHILLIP'S EPISCOPAL CHURCH

The Reverend S. C. Sanchez delivered a most unusual sermon upon the old theme of the Prodigal Son on Sunday last.

Father Sanchez regularly gives his parishioners and the welcome visitors rare gems of theology, giving his listeners much food for thought.

In this particular sermon Father Sanchez showed that of the two sons, the one who remained at home and served his father without transgressing any Commandment, yet by his attitude and anger, rather jealousy, toward his brother, was, in fact, the real prodigal, for the younger brother who had transgressed, repented and returned home of his own will to beg his father's forgiveness.

He brought out the point that it is a virtue to resist temptation but that one who has genuinely repented is a stronger character than one who has never been tempted.

The Low Mass at 7:30 A. M. and the sung Eucharist at eleven o'clock on Sundays and the mid-week Mass at nine o'clock on Thursday mornings are spiritual foods offered to all in the community.

St. Philip's is making many improvements to its property. The entire front entrance has been replaced and displays, for the first time, the name of the Church. The roof of the Church has been completely repaired. A new pulpit, in memory of the late Mrs. Grace Hutten, has been installed. Six new memorials are to be installed and dedicated in the fall. The Church is to be painted on the exterior and a program for a new organ is now under way. Elizabeth Davis Pittman, Secretary-Reporter.

Omaha's Metropolitan Utilities District will mark its 25th anniversary on July 1 by redeeming $704,000 in Gas Department bonds, and leaving a balance of only $436,000 remaining. The final payment of $436,000 will be made on July 1, 1950, and will "close the books" on the original debt of $5,000,000 acquired in 1920, when the City of Omaha bonds in that amount to purchase the old Omaha Gas Company. Money to make the final payment is on hand awaiting the day when the bonds fall due.

When the city acquired the gas plant in 1920, gas cost Omaha domestic users $1.15 per thousand cubic feet. Today, a 9% richer gas costs Omaha homeowners only 50c per thousand cubic feet. Eleven rate reductions have cut the cost of gas more than half . . . and OMAHA NOW HAS THE LOWEST MANUFACTURED GAS RATE IN AMERICA.

While making these tremendous rate reductions — estimated to have saved consumers approximately $17,000,000 in gas bills — the Utilities District has DOUBLED THE PHYSICAL SIZE AND VALUE OF THE GAS SYSTEM. Omaha now owns a gas plant worth more than ten million dollars.

The bonded debt—a general obligation of the city—has been retired promptly at maturity. Since 1920, gas services have grown from 32,184 to 53,023 and the number of miles of service mains have increased from 330 to 534.

Use of gas in the home has expanded rapidly since 1920 . . . and now includes not only gas cooking but automatic gas water heating, automatic gas refrigeration, automatic gas home heating, and, more recently, all-year gas air-conditioning.

Modernization, improvement and extension of the manufacturing plant and distribution system have gone forward continuously since 1920 to meet rising demands for gas by domestic and industrial users, according to Mr. Walter S. Byrne, General Manager of the Metropolitan Utilities District.

"War interrupted this program," he added, "but it is being resumed as conditions permit. A large number of extension, improvement and replacement projects are scheduled for completion during the next few years. It is anticipated that this program can be carried out without adding to bonded indebtedness.

"The Utilities District has also made every effort to improve its general service to customers through better gas appliances, home service help for homemakers, free service for approved gas appliances, courteous and efficient handling of accounts, installations and public contracts."
