New York: The recent appointment of Theophilus Lewis, nationally known expert in the drama, as drama critic for America, a Catholic weekly published here, has made Broadway history. Mr. Lewis is the first colored person ever to serve as Broadway critic for a national publication.

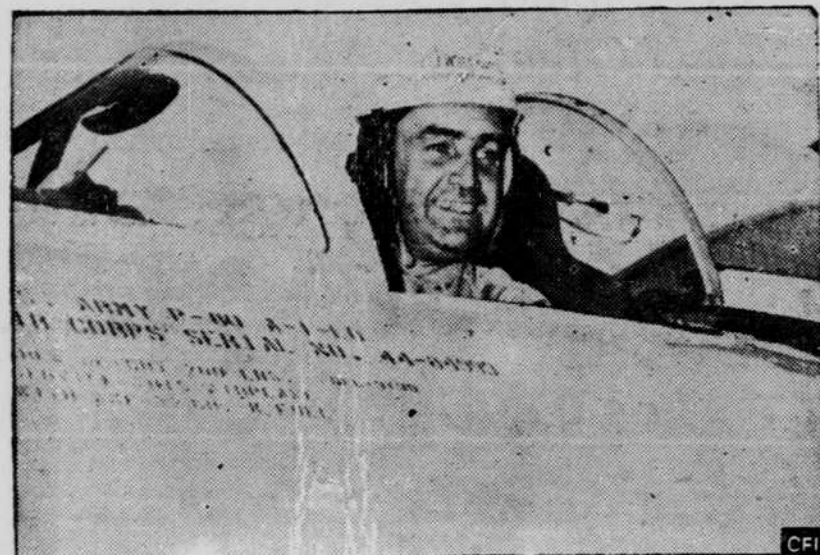

Born in Baltimore, Mr. Lewis is a self-educated man. His formal education ended when he was 15, when he left school and took a job as a bellhop and porter. During these years, however, he read avidly, especially in the field of literature, spending most of his evening at the theatre.

On returning from a play in Harlem one evening, he wrote for his own pleasure a short review of the play he had seen. By accident this review came to the notice of a Harlem editor who published it and then hired Mr. Lewis to cover all the Harlem plays.

Since then, writing—especially in the field of the drama—has been Mr. Lewis' avocation. On returning after the last war from overseas with the 367th Infantry Regiment—where, incidentally, he had been decorated by the French Government for his service in the Argonne—he became a postal clerk, at the same time contributing regularly to many national magazines. These have included the Interacial Review, the Sign, the Catholic World, and Commercial. Mr. Lewis lives in Manhattan.

Foreign Insurance
The life insurance companies of the United States have never shown any great inclination to write life insurance in foreign countries, adding that today there are few American companies operating outside the continental limits of the United States. Several Canadian companies, however, have a fairly large life insurance portfolio overseas. In this connection the countries chosen by the United States and Canadian companies operating in the foreign field are generally more stable and consequently there is less risk of disturbance to foreign corporations in such countries.

Indian Horses

The American Indians did not have horses before the arrival of Europeans upon this continent. Dogs were the only animals used by these North Americans. Some authorities believe that all the wild and Indian horses of the West sprang from a few which escaped from the troops of Coronado in 1541.

Visual Defects

Surveys indicate that about one out of every five children graduating from grammar school has visual defects. After boys and girls leave school their eyes continue to deteriorate. At 20 years, 23 per cent of the population have visual defects, surveys indicate. At 30 years, 29 per cent have short-comings in vision. At 40 years nearly half, 48 per cent, have impaired vision. From then on eyesight fails rapidly, chiefly because of the hardening of the lens of the eye, causing what is known as "old sight." At 50 years, 71 per cent have short-comings in vision, and at 60 years, 82 per cent. Most persons during their 40s should have glasses to read with.

who were the children of father bluejay and mother bluejay. The family lived in a little nest at the top of an old maple tree. One day when mother and father were hunting for worms, the three children climbed on a limb and were going to try to fly. Now there was one little bluejay who thought he knew everything, he stood up straight and quickly jumped from the limb. Little brother was hurt badly.

Soon mother and father bluejay came home. They found their son at the bottom of the old maple tree. They picked him up quickly and flew up to their nest. And then "The Three Little Bluejays" never tried to fly without their parents' permission. Eula Irene Robinson, aged 8.

Lacked Vitamins

Although everyone knows that vitamins and minerals are essential to health, until 1941 about 40 per cent of all Americans ate a diet which failed to provide all of these nutrients they needed. What American dietaries lacked chiefly were some of the B-vitamins and the food mineral iron, and these nutrients have been added under the wartime enrichment program.

Moisture Needed

Fertilizers are of no value to the plant unless the soil contains ample moisture and air. Fertilizers should not be applied to dry soil; so, during periods of drought, artificial watering should be practiced. On soils known to be highly acid or deficient in calcium this condition can be corrected by applying agricultural ground limestone or hydrated lime at a rate of 50 to 70 pounds per 1,000 square feet. The rate of application of lime should be based on soil tests, and lime should be applied only if analysis shows it is necessary.

Cabbage Vitamins

Air, water and heat are the thieves that rob cabbages of their vitamin C. Therefore, the less you cut, cook or have to store cabbage the more vitamin value you receive for your money. Young green cabbage fresh from the garden, washed and eaten raw is the ideal way to get the most flavor and food value that cabbage can give.

Tire Life

Motorists' habits affect tire life so markedly that it is possible to deduce the driving habits of a car's operator if you can compare his average tire mileage with that of other drivers in the same area, it is said. Quick stops and starts, taking turns at high speed, running tires at subnormal inflation or at high speed, greatly reduce tread mileage.
