(BY BEVERLY CRUSE)

The Executive Board of the NAACP met at Bethel A.M.E. Church Monday, August 27. Mr. George Cooper is the local president.

Miss Barbara Linton returned from Hiawatha, Kansas after spending a short vacation with her cousin and relations.

The Kiddies' Lawn Party given by the Youth Council of the NAACP, was a great success.

Miss Helen and Lenora Hawkins of Omaha spent a few days in Council Bluffs visiting Mrs. Amanda Coleman.

Mr. C. Ashford of Detroit, Michigan, was here for the death of his grandmother Mrs. Alice Davis, 114, the son of Mrs. Fannie Holloway.

MEMORY OF MRS. ALICE DAVIS

The deceased was born in Nashville, Tenn., October 28, 1867. When but a child, her parents moved to Ocala, Iowa. In 1896 she came to Council Bluffs where she was married to Samuel Davis, deceased. She departed this life Aug. 19, making her 77 years, 9 months and 11 days. She is survived by one daughter, one adopted daughter, two brothers, one grandson, one niece, two nephews and a host of friends mourn her passing.

TO ALICE DAVIS

It has been well said: "peace hath her victories, no less than those of war". Hence, not all the heroes are found upon the battle fields. Continuing this thought, not all the truly great are to be found in high places. In our midst for those worthy of praise and emulation, we often wander needlessly far afield.

Why is a worm like a hole in a sack?

That's easy. Both the worm and the hole waste chicken feed.

Name a good worm remedy. That's easy, too—Nicozine. There's a product that destroys two species of poultry worms. These are the large roundworm and the cecal worm. Nicozine, furthermore, is a flock treatment. It is given along with a little feed to the flock—they eat the mixture. Treat your flock now with Nicozine.

When the very object of our search is right in our midst. Concrete proof and evidence of this is now before us—a valiant soldier for Christ, who performed gloriously "over and above the call of duty." Just a plain, bare recital of actual facts connected with her life, unvarnished by glamor, unbiased by friendship or admiration, would amaze even many who thought they knew her, while to many others it would be almost unbelievable.

In reviewing her life, we find it fairly teeming with superlatives, and the word MOST must necessarily occur so often as to become almost monotonous. Thus: the most faithful member of the Church has ever known; the staunchest supporter of the Community Center; the foremost advocate and exponent of economic independence, continually urging us to stand on our own feet and to do for ourselves rather than to be continually seeking aid from our Caucasian friends for our various projects. More Negroes in our community have acquired or are now paying for homes due to her insistent preaching of thrift than to any other influence I know. The most unselfish, giving lavishly of her time, means and energy to the unfortunate; the most tireless worker; the most thrifty and the most efficient manager. The most patient and long-suffering, yet, when necessary, the most militant in defense of her convictions; the most perfect example of implicit trust in the Almighty. Personally, more than once I have sought to remunerate with her about taking on additional charitable responsibilities, reminding her advanced age, her waning vitality and her reduced earning capacity. And always the same reply: "The Lord will provide a way. He has never failed me. Just put your hand in God's hand and everything will come out alright." Sum it all up: the most powerful influence for good in the community our group has ever known.

Last but not one of the OLD GUARD which organized Bethel Church in 1904, she was a member for more than 40 years. For more than 30 years she was Choir Director. For an even longer period she was a Stewardess. At various times she also served as a Trustee and also as a Class Leader. Thus, a tireless worker in the Master's vineyard, abounding in good deeds. "And were everyone for whom she did some loving kindness to come and lay a wreath upon her grave, she would sleep tonight beneath a wilderness of flowers". Almost 2600 years ago a man looked down through the centuries yet to come, saw this very day and hour, and said of her: "but now do, they rest from their labors and their works do follow them". She needs no inscribed marble slab to perpetuate her memory—the shining example of practical, every-day Christian living which she so gloriously exemplified will be an imperishable monument in the hearts of all who knew her.

ALICE DAVIS, SERVANT OF GOD, WELL DONE.

R. R. Brooks Talks To Elks

At Annual Convention

Address by Robert R. Brooks, OPA Deputy Administrator for Information, to the Annual Convention of the I. B. P. O. of Elks, of the World at the Chris J. Perkins Auditorium, Philadelphia, Pa., on Monday, August 27, 1945.

The Improved Benevolent and Protective Order of the Elks of the World has made an outstanding contribution to the success of the stabilization program. The members of your organization have bought more than $20,000,000 worth of war bonds. They have not only helped to finance the war. They have also stored up purchasing power, which if it had been spent, would have added fuel to the fires of inflation. And that buying power can soon be used to buy the flood of goods which will pour off the assembly lines as reconversion gets into full swing.

The purchases which will be possible in the future through the use of these savings will mean new comforts, new labor-saving devices in the household, and new homes for thousands of your members. It means washing machines, radios, electric lights and decent plumbing. It will also mean jobs for workers and farmers who are building the homes and making the things your money will buy.

workers than ever before in our history have had decent jobs at fair wages. These men and women, per haps more than any other group in our society, have a stake in maintaining the kind of stability which will make possible full peacetime employment and production.

As consumers they must be protected against increases in the cost of their food, their clothing, their household furnishings, and in many cases the homes they have dreamed of buying. As workers, they must be protected against the spiralling of prices and costs which inevitably ends in business collapse, unemployment, bread lines, and the interracial friction and intolerance which feed on insecurity.

All of us, every delegate here, all the members of your huge organization have a stake in the success of our common national effort to promote the economic stability essential to a free and prosperous world. Your officers have fully recognized their responsibility for giving their support to this national effort.

In his second official Proclamation for the year Dr. J. Finley Wilson, Grand Exalted Ruler of the Elks made the following statement to more than 500,000 men and women's auxiliaries members of the Order.

"Price control, rent control and rationing have saved us from economic scramble immediately after the war, we must demand price control and rent control in accordance with the principles of the Office of Price Administration. We must provide for Cost-of-Living Committees in each lodge and temple, auxiliary to the various War Price and Rationing Boards, to keep down our living costs. These Committees will furnish information to members as to illegal prices or of unfair rationing practices."

"I know that hundreds of your Lodges and Temples have gone ahead with this program of establishing Cost-of-Living Committees to help your local OPA War Price and Rationing Board in your community hold down the cost of the necessities of life.

Everyone of us must see to it that he never pays more than ceiling prices or rents and that he reports all illegal overcharges to his local Board or his Area Rent Office. In this fight every consumer has a part. Inflation begins with penny overcharges. A little higher price here and another higher price there becomes the trigger of inflation with results that could be as disastrous to our hope of peacetime prosperity as the atomic bombs were to the teeming cities of Japan. Now that the war is over the need for your continued effort is greater than ever before. We must not, at the last moment, relax our vigilance until we know for sure that the danger is over.

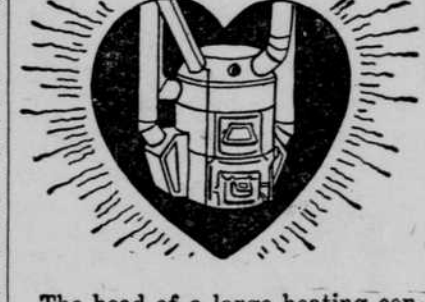

I know we can count on all of you to keep up the fight until the battle is won.

Your Home
By Frances Ainsworth

The head of a large heating concern recently remarked to me that the success of his company is largely the result of correcting other people's mistakes. What he meant was that most of their business came from homes which were experiencing heating trouble of one kind or another.

A chief mistake is that of allowing the price rather than the adequacy of the furnace to determine one's choice. In doing so they ignore certain laws of heating which must be conformed to if good results are expected. There are definite formulas for calculating the capacity of a furnace in relation to the size and type of home to be heated, and while it does no harm to install a furnace of over-capacity, it does bring trouble to install one of inadequate size. Size for size, all furnaces run pretty much equal in installed cost; therefore, when an experienced heating man figures out the price of a correct installation, it does not save money by taking a smaller size than is recommended. It just means replacing the inadequate job later on, which in effect is paying double for one's heating plant.

The heart of your home is its furnace, and there just isn't any chance of having a healthy home with an undersized heart. The only safe way is to place the matter in the hands of a reliable heating man who makes the selling of the furnace secondary to the accurate determination of your home's heating needs. He will plan your heating system as it should be for greatest efficiency, using mathematical calculation instead of guesswork, and when he arrives at the correct answer, that's what he'll stick to. And if you also stick to his findings, you'll not be making a mistake that shall later have to be corrected.

HIGHLIGHTS IN PACIFIC AREA
New York—As the occupation of the Tokyo area got well under way other events cast their shadows on many sections of the Far East. The above map provides highlights on several important developments. As indicated, the Russians have occupied all of Sakhalin and virtually all of the Kuriles. Gen. Stilwell has cracked down on the Japanese in the Ryukyus and early settlement awaits all of the unfinished surrender business in the Carolinas and Marianas.
