Sounder Education Needed To Maintain Free World

Economics and Geography Among Studies Required to Ground Students in the Problems at Home and Abroad.

By BAUKHAGE News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, 1616 Eye Street, N.W., Washington, D. C. (This is the first of two articles on the subject of the "new reconversion.")

In the last two months the public has learned a lot about the importance of industrial reconversion. For many months, business men, with the help of the best technical advice they could obtain, have been preparing to shift from wartime to peacetime production.

But what many people do not realize is that the nation, the whole world, for that matter, is facing another reconversion problem, equally as difficult to solve, equally as important to achieve.

It is no exaggeration to say that our current educational system, which along with our wartime industrial system made Allied victory possible, is no more adapted to meet the new and starting problems of the postwar world than the Japanese defense could meet the atomic bomb.

Enlightened educators everywhere realize this. In a short time experts will meet in London to work out a program outlined in San Francisco by the men and women who planned the educational and cultural council of the United Nations.

Education for world freedom is an important objective; education for freedom in the land of the free is equally important, for it is the foundation stone of world democracy. We have the task of reconverting our own antiquated machinery so that it will be geared to produce and maintain freedom.

We have a powerful example in the need for this in the demonstrated strength of the Nazi ideology and the weakness of what we have so far produced to combat it.

Nazi Propaganda Remains Strong

A report made public only a week or two ago reveals how "Nazism at its blackest," as the report describes it, is being kept alive in a series of "resistance clubs" in Germany scattered from the North sea to the Bavarian mountains.

The offense is powerful, and the weakness of our defense is illustrated in recent dispatches telling us how Nazi propaganda is affecting the viewpoint of the American army of occupation. A major is reported as doubting the truth of the atrocity stories in the concentration camp of Dachau located only a few miles from where he was stationed.

I have just come from a long talk with one of America's great educators, John Studebaker, United States Commissioner of Education. It was he who introduced me to the phrase, "the new reconversion."

"Our democratic system is threatened from within and without," he said to me earnestly. "The Amer-

RAY ROBINSON IN COAST BOUT

New York (CNS) Ray Robinson has agreed to meet either Chester Slider or Paulie Peters in a San Francisco war bond show December 17th, according to Gus Wilson, Robinson has been offered a $12,500 guarantee.

For 168 years America has been conspicuous among all the nations for its deep repugnance for militarism. Distrust of the professional soldier is one of the best and noblest of American traditions, and this tradition is unquestionably the most formidable obstacle to the Administration's plans for enacting peacetime conscription.

1. That compulsory training tends to discipline youth.

But America is a political democracy, and the kind of discipline taught through military training is alien to the exercise of political democratic rights. Military training is unquestioning and unthinking obedience. This is the sort of discipline expected of a citizen of a totalitarian State.

2. The compulsory training enhances democratic institutions.

On the contrary, because militarism is, itself, authoritarian, it has only contempt for democracy. In every country where conscription has been permitted to flourish, the militarists have sought by means ranging from insidious pressure on educators and legislators to forcible intervention, to create society after its own image.

3. That compulsory training is not a menace to labor.

If Negroes, as Negroes, have reason to resist the rise of militarism, they have even more reason to resist it as workers. In every capitalist nation in the world, militarism, and the military caste it inevitably creates, has repeatedly intervened against the workers in their struggle against their exploiters, supporting the tyranny of capital directly and indirectly.

Of course, armies recruited on a voluntary basis have also intervened on the side of employers in economic conflicts. In countries which repudiate militarism, however, such interventions are checked by public opinion.

Another resolution was adopted insisting on "the complete and immediate cessation of segregation in the armed forces" and urging that "promotion and assignments be made on the basis of merit and ability."

Ernest E. Johnson, former Washington correspondent for the Associated Negro Press, will direct public relations for the United Negro College Fund, William J. Trent, Jr., Executive Director for the Fund, announced.

When former President Edwin Barclay of the Republic of Liberia paid an official visit to this country in 1943, Mr. Johnson was invited to accompany the party as the only reporter. His pioneering activities in behalf of the Negro press in the field of foreign affairs soon won for him membership in the State Department Correspondents Association, a singular distinction.
