TO CARVE SHOULDER

1 Have round bone side away from carver with blade bone side at carver's right. Use fork to roll roast up on edge as knife follows along ribs, removing ribs and back bone. Put bones onto auxiliary platter.

2 Cut slices from arm bone side at right until blade bone is reached.

3 Remove arm bone and blade bone by cutting under the bones, thus separating bones from meat.

4 Carve remaining boneless shoulder meat, across the grain of meat. No amount of fat and gristle is too little to save. Melt it down, add it to the used fat container. Every drop is needed.

CHESTER BOWLES THANKS COLORED AMERICANS

Washington, DC. (Special to GNS).....In a telegram to Mrs. Mary McLeod Bethune, President of the National Council of Negro Women on the responsibilities facing the American people now that rationing has ended, Chester Bowles, Administrator of the Office of Price Administration stated: "Because your organization has strongly supported the continuance of rationing of meats, fats, and oils to assist in getting adequate food supplies sent abroad, I realize you may be concerned about the announcement of the end of this program.

His telegram continued, "would deeply appreciate your passing on by thanks and congratulations to the members of your group for all they have done to make this program work. End of this rationing program means we can concentrate even more intensively on our crucial price control program.

TO CARVE LOIN

1 Have the butcher loosen but not remove back bone, as indicated. Roast fat side up with back bone on pan.

2 When roasted, remove the back bone and tenderloin in kitchen. Remove excess fat, melt it down when oven is lighting for other baking. Used fat brings cash and ration points for every pound.

3 Remove the pieces of bone that were under the tenderloin. Take out the hip bone. Serve the two boneless pieces of meat on the platter and carve across the grain.

4 Slice tenderloin and the boneless back muscle into uniform servings. To satisfy everyone, serve some tenderloin to each individual

I know that you recognize that the nation faces the most critical inflationary pressures in our history, and I am glad I can count on the members of your group to cooperate fully.....to establish a sound foundation for maintaining prosperity in the years to come." In reply to Mr. Bowles' telegram, Mrs. Bethune thanked him, and pointed out, "The National Council of Negro Women at its recent national work shop, pledged its full support to rigid price control program to insure against inflation and to provide the necessities of life to the great masses of the American people, 14 million of whom are Negroes. The Metropolitan Councils of our organization, establish all over the Nation, are now working in their communities toward the end of holding the price line."

Oven Control Marks 30th Year

This year marks the thirtieth anniversary of the world's most famous cooking device, the oven temperature regulator invented by Benjamin E. Mescham, associated with a manufacturer of gas ranges at Lorain, Ohio, to liberate American women from baking failures. So efficient did the regulator (circled) prove to be that eventually it appeared on the ranges of other manufacturers. Home economists were first to recognize its importance as the measure of successful baking and they worked out tables of time and temperature for all oven cooking which appear in up-to-date cook books.

something can be released relative to this production. We appreciate the public's splendid cooperation in being patient with us uptodate, and hope you will continue to be for just a while longer. Thank you.

LOU SWARZ CAPTIVATES SOUTH IN RETURN ENGAGEMENT ON RECITAL TOUR

Concord, North Carolina Special Lou Swarz, noted actress and movie star really took her audiences by storm when she appeared in Recitals at Savannah, Georgia, sponsors First Congregational Church, Columbia, South Carolina, sponsors, Benedict College and Allen University and Concord, North Carolina, sponsor Barber Scotia College.

The actresses' first performance which was a return Recital in Savannah, Georgia, brought praises from K. E. Palmer, critic on the Savannah Daily Evening Press as well as the Savannah Tribune. Miss Swarz held an audience of approximately 1100 at the First African Baptist Church spellbound with a full two hour show. Rev. A. C. Curtright, pastor of the First Congregational Church which presented her was high in his praises of her performance, and when she was forced to do encore after she had won her audience. Of her performance Mr. Palmer wrote in the Daily Press: "Lou Swarz, accomplished dramatist, delighted her audience last night at First African Baptist Church in a Recital sponsored by the First Congregational Church. Attractively and appropriately gowned in change of costume for each number and speaking with clear enunciation in her rich, vibrant voice Lou Swarz presented Patterns by Amy Lowell; "The Wooing" by Paul Lawrence Dunbar, original monologues; "The Tramp"; and an enactment of a Gypsy Fortune Teller before the climatic part of the program "From African Waif to American Poet" and a group of specialties. On Friday evening November 30, Miss Swarz presented her "one woman" theatre at Benedict College under the sponsorship of Benedict and Allen. Her interpretation of the "Apache" and "The Tramp" swept the audience off its feet; and she found it most difficult to leave the stage although her program had just about reached the first half. Following her performance the actress photographed several hundred programs at the delightful Tea which was in the home of President Bacot's. Then at Barber Scotia College on Saturday evening it was Lou's performance that won another group.....with her perfect diction and superb acting. Accompanying her on her tour were Cecile Walker and Frances McNichols.....secretary and wardrobe mistress who played a great part in the "quick" costume change made by the actress. After the tour through the southland Miss Swarz returned to New York where she will continue work in pictures as well as social study at ANT (Americap Negro Theatre) and under her manager.

YOUR DENTAL I. Q.

HOW ARE YOU DOING, DENTALLY?

Find out by scoring yourself on the following questions.

ASK YOURSELF—

1. Do you eat well-balanced meals every day for your general health—meals that contain adequate amounts of milk, fruits, vegetables, meat or fish, eggs and whole-grain cereals? Yes  No
2. Do you restrict your intake of sweet foods to a minimum amount? Yes  No
3. Do you brush your teeth at least twice a day, after breakfast in the morning, and before going to bed at night? Yes  No
4. Do you brush your teeth the way your dentist advises? Yes  No
5. Do you use a small, straight-edged, firmly-bristled toothbrush so that you can reach the inner and chewing surfaces of the teeth and the tiny crevices? Yes  No
6. Do you visit your dentist regularly—at least twice a year? Yes  No
7. Do you use a dentifrice that bears the Seal of Acceptance of the Council on Dental Therapeutics of the American Dental Association which indicates that it is safe, effective and honestly advertised? Yes  No
8. Do you rinse your mouth with clear water after brushing your teeth to assure a thorough cleaning job? Yes  No
9. Do you have two toothbrushes so that each brush can dry thoroughly in a clean, light place after using? Yes  No
10. Do you rinse your toothbrush in cold water before and after you use it to keep the bristles firm and clean? Yes  No

FOR PARENTS ONLY

1. Do you give your child a well-balanced diet including milk, vegetables, whole-grain cereals, meat, eggs, fruits and cod-liver oil? Yes  No
2. Do you limit your child's consumption of sugar, confections and highly sweetened foods which seem to encourage dental decay? Yes  No
3. Do you see that your child brushes his teeth at least twice a day—after breakfast and before going to bed? Yes  No
4. Do you see that your child brushes his teeth the way they grow—down on the upper teeth and up on the lower teeth—never across? Yes  No
5. Do you carefully protect your child's "baby" teeth because they are just as important to his chewing, speaking and jaw formation as permanent teeth are to the adult? Yes  No
6. Do you follow the advice of dental authorities who say that the child's first visit to the dentist should take place no later than his third birthday? Yes  No
7. Do you make certain that your child returns to the dentist at regular intervals—at least every six months? Yes  No
8. Do you guard your child's six-year-old molars because they are the most important teeth in his mouth and their loss through neglect can throw his whole "chewing machine" into disorder? Yes  No
9. Do you have the dentist carefully check your child's permanent teeth as they replace his "baby" teeth to determine if they are growing in straight? Yes  No
10. Do you give special dental attention to the adolescent child since teen age children suffer the highest rate of tooth decay of any group? Yes  No

According to the American Dental Association, if you answered "yes" to all ten questions, you are doing everything you can do to maintain a healthy mouth. If you answered "yes" to only 8 or 9, check the items where you've slipped up and remedy the situation. If you answered "yes" to 7 or less, it's time to change your whole dental care routine and improve the attention you give to your teeth before it's too late.
