THE NEW 1946 READINGS ARE READY

G. M.—I have been going with this man for the past 11 years and he hasn't said anything about his marrying me yet and I am about fed up with that kind of love now.

Ans: You are certainly justified in making other friends. Surely, he can come to some kind of decision in eleven years and if he can't he needs to be given a jolt. But in all fairness to him, it would be well to let him know that you are making future plans that do not include him. If he cares, he will let you know and will want to do something about it. This procedure will let you know how you stand with him before you become involved with anyone else. Remember, his mother is a fixture in his life and if you take him, you will have to accept her as well.

D. D.—My wife has been calling me up lately long distance and she says that she is ready now to settle down and wants me to take her back. I love her but I don't want to take her back and there is a re-occurrence of what has happened. Please help me.

Ans: When you left her, you told her to have her fling and get it out of her system before contacting you again. Evidently, she is ready to settle down now. The only way you will ever be able to determine if you can live together peacefully is to take her back and try it once again. There is one important issue for you to consider—if you take her back, make up your mind to forget the past and put it out of your mind entirely. You won't ever be happy if you let your mind continually dwell on her past actions and bring it up as a constant topic of conversation. If you forgive, forgive wholeheartedly.

L. B. J.—I desire to know if I should continue this entertainment profession, dancing and beer-selling or continue on teaching. I see that I won't be able to do both?

Ans: These two professions definitely do not work hand in hand. A teacher is one who must set a good example for young people to look up to, respect and love.

If in her spare time she runs a dance hall where beer is sold, she will be criticized and condemned. Decide which type of work you prefer and do not try to mix the two. There are many other extra lines of endeavor you could enter during your spare time and would not conflict at all with your teaching.

A. B. E.—At 18 I married a man who I have been married 2 and out half years. I have a child 1 and one-half and am expecting another in April. I realize now that I made a grave mistake in marrying this man and not going to college. He is common, he gambles, gets drunk, curses and calls me all kinds of names yet he says he loves me. He is very devoted to the child. I want to leave him but haven't anyplace to go. I am so unhappy, what must I do?

Ans: It's much too late now to be worrying about what might have been and what you could have had you not married. You chose marriage and you must accept its responsibilities. You have one child and another on the way and their welfare must be your first consideration and your own personal feelings put in the background for the time being. You loved your husband when you married him and the chances are you two could find happiness if you would discontinue your bickering and be more understanding and pleasant. You won him with affection, kindness and pleasant ways and that is the only way in which to live with him. If you will do all within your power to make him happy and iron out your little problems, he will cut down on his gambling and drinking life. His devotion to his child shows that he loves his home and will settle down to his responsibilities if encouraged and induced in the right way. You can be happy again if you make the necessary effort to bring about this change.

USED AUTOS NOW CHEAPER

Washington.—The new year has brought a four per cent reduction in the re-sale ceiling price on used automobiles, the Office of Price Administration announced last week. The reduction of prices applies to used cars sold by either dealers or private owners.

OPA's price regulation for used cars provides that ceiling prices be reduced 4 per cent every six months to cover depreciation. On July 1, 1945, under this provision a previous four per cent reduction in ceiling prices became effective.

7th SERVICE COMMAND

Omaha, Neb., Jan. 26.—Members of the Enlisted Reserve Corp may enlist in the Regular Army in the grades they hold in the ERC providing the enlistment is effected on or before January 31, according to a recent War Department directive.

This new regulation, said Col. George R. Connor, Adjutant General, Seventh Service Command, gives ERC members the same opportunity as men still in service to enlist with their war-time ratings as permanent grades in the Regular Army.
