

LANDMARK FOR PEACE

Wilmett, Ill.—(Official Navy Photo)—Used as a landmark during the war by Naval aviators at nearby Glenview Air Base, the Baha'i Temple here, near Chicago, continues to stand out as a symbol of peace.

Among architects the Temple is recognized as one of the outstanding edifices of its kind in the world dedicated to the international brotherhood of man and universal peace, as followed in 78 countries by adherents whose sole purpose is to further the principles of the Faith.

THE SOUTHERNERS HAVE IT

With the temporary defeat of the Fair Employment Practice Bill, Southern senators are gloating over the fact, not that they were successful in defeating fair employment practices, but more over maintaining State Rights.

To thwart any infringement on State Rights was the main issue of southern senatorial opposition. Getting the support of their constituents back home was easy for they knew that all necessary was to publicize the old bugaboo of social equality. They knew their constituents would not, or could not read the provisions of the bill, even if they did know that White supremacy would render them blind or unconscious to anything else.

This is just as true today as it was before the war. The annihilation of that theory was taken from America to Germany after causing millions of men to lose their lives has not enlightened the people at all.

What were the objections to the President's Fair Employment Practice Commission?

Ignorance to its provisions seems to be the most logical answer.

In simple language, the bill only prohibits discrimination in employment because of race, creed, color, national origin and ancestry. It only applies to agencies of the Federal Government; employers of six or more persons who operations affect interstate or foreign commerce, and federal contractors and sub-contractors who employ six or more persons.

Is that undemocratic? If it is, what about this: "All persons born or naturalized in the United States, and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, are citizens of the United States and of the State wherein they reside. No State shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of the citizens of the United States; nor shall any State deprive any person of life, liberty, or property, without equal protection of the laws."

Or what about this? "The right of citizens of United States to vote shall not be denied, or abridged by the United States or by any State on account of race, color, or previous condition of servitude."

These are amendments to the Constitution. The first was adopted in 1863, and made clear that Negroes were citizens. The second was adopted in 1870 to secure Negro suffrage and to prevent Negroes from being disfranchised. Now to deny the Negroes these, according to southerners is democratic. Still they are part of our Constitution.

Something is wrong somewhere. . . If it is undemocratic to guarantee fair employment to citizens of the United States, and undemocratic to deny citizens privileges guaranteed them by the Constitution. Somebody has the bull by the wrong end, or the Constitution isn't worth a damn.

It has been evidenced that it was poor strategy on the part of politicians after the south was defeated and whipped into the union to trade State Rights for party support. The South got the power it welcomed, for it gave southerners the right to deal with the Negro the way they saw fit. Today that power has become detrimental to the entire structure of a democratic country, and if not curbed soon, is likely to cause the overthrow of entire America.

Already the traditions of the South have made it the poorest section of America, the most illiterate, the poorest in health; and that alone has cost the North, East, and West more than their share of casualties in our late world struggle. This is in addition to making America a menace to world's peace.

True southerners know this to be true. They know something, sooner or later must be done. This much is admitted in many circles. Still they fight and oppose anything offered to better the conditions from other sections. "We must work out our own program," they say. Yet, nobody offers a program for any substitution.

It is our prediction, unless the South wakes up and of-

Veterans Training and Employment Opportunities

Veterans of World War II are urged to report to the United States Employment Service, 210 South 18th Street, to take advantage of counseling in regard to employment and training opportunities, that are available through special services for veterans.

If the spring construction increased production activities are as great as anticipated, many workers will be needed to meet the demand.

Public Law 346 now provides increased advantages for World War II veterans, subsistence allowances were increased from $50.00 to $65.00 per month for single men, and from $75.00 to $90.00 per month for married men. The new law states there are no restrictions, therefore, any veteran is entitled to the full amount of training as his length of service entitles him to.

The United States Employment Service is making a sustained effort to broaden this field of work for colored veterans.

Employers who are interested in providing jobs or training jobs for these veterans, should contact the United States Employment Service. If yours is a "C.I. Training Program", this office will provide necessary application and training blanks, and will assist you in organizing a training program.

SO FHA APPRAISALS A MEASURE OF PROTECTION AGAINST INFLATED REAL ESTATE PRICES

Prospective home buyers can now gain a substantial measure of protection against dangers of inflated real estate prices by consulting local lending institutions to obtain FHA appraisals for them at a flat cost of $10. Dr. B. T. McGraw of the Administrator's Office of the National Housing Agency said.

Dr. McGraw called attention to the interest of minority groups in the very real danger of further inflated real estate prices and the advice offered to home buyers by Commissioner Foley of the Federal Housing Administration in a recent news release explaining the FHA's unbiased appraisal system.

In addition to advising prospective home buyers to consult their local lending institutions to obtain FHA appraisals for them, Commissioner Foley urged "Families who are going to buy homes should not be misled and should not be persuaded by spurious arguments into buying homes on an unsound basis".

Mr. Foley further stated, "The FHA provides a safe financed method. Under the FHA plan, the average family obtains the services of technically trained valuers, appraisers, and inspectors. When a mortgage is submitted for FHA insurance, the staff of the Administration's local office examines the property, the neighborhood, and the whole mortgage transaction. Many of the mistakes common in previous mortgage financing are thus avoided."

Even if the purchase of the home is not to be financed under the FHA plan, prospective home buyers can now obtain an FHA appraisal of the property at a cost of $10 by consulting local lending institutions and requesting a conditional FHA commitment on loan insurance.

When you go into a restaurant and nobody cares whether or not you like what you get, you don't like it, do you?
When you go into a store and the clerks pay little attention to you, you don't like it, do you?
Somehow, it was a better world, wasn't it, when "the customer was always right"?

We are all somebody's customers. Likewise, we all have our customers.

Did you ever stop to think that an employer is a customer? He is a customer for somebody's service.

This has been almost forgotten in recent years. Few people think anymore of giving an employer his money's worth.
