Your BABY

By Edna Mae Melton

SC

Vitamin D is not present in the foods we eat in sufficient amounts to meet the extra demands made by pregnancy nor for the rapidly growing baby after birth. Even milk does not have this vitamin, unless it has been added to the milk, as in irradiated evaporated milk. It may be possible to obtain vitamin D from sunbaths in the summer time, but most of the year and in most places it is not enough to depend on the sun.

During pregnancy and throughout the years of rapid growth of children, fish liver oil or some form of concentrate prescribed by your doctor, should be included every day. Babies are usually given cod liver oil after the first two weeks of life and this should be continued all during the years of most rapid growth, while bones and teeth are forming and developing.

Be sure it smells and tastes fresh and has no evidence of rancidity. It is best to keep the bottle in the refrigerator. It's in a dark bottle to prevent the action of light. Cold and absence of light retard the development of rancidity.

Recent surveys made by the National Research Council have shown that even now far too many babies have rickets. In fact, rickets from a deficiency of calcium, phosphorus and vitamin D, and scurvy from lack of enough vitamin C are still common diseases of infancy. Both of these are unnecessary in the normal baby.

After the first few weeks, baby cereals fortified with B vitamins, and iron, then strained vegetables and fruits furnish vitamins and minerals in natural forms without resort to concentrates other than cod liver oil.

insure good health.

Meals prepared under the industrial program and for school lunches follow the basic seven pattern. It is pointed out by nutrition specialists that many workers and school children rely chiefly on the one you cook daily for growth and health.

LATEST RECORD MEETS SUCCESS

(by Dolores Calvin)

New York City, (CNS) The King Cole Trio will be well around New York and vicinity this summer. For they have just signed contracts to replace Bing Crosby on the Kraft Music Hall air show this summer for thirteen weeks. Starring with them will be Stan Kenton and his Artistry in Rhythm Orchestra.

The Trio, which carved another niche for itself in the King Cole Room of the Trocadero night club which they returned to after a tremendous successful tour of the east last February, is quite proud of their coming summer show. After appearing as guest stars on the Frank Sinatra and Andrew Sisters program, they will at last have a show of their own which will be aired from coast to coast each Thursday on the National Broadcasting System.

Closing their Trocadero date on the 6th of May, they play a week at the Orpheum Theatre beginning the next day and waste no time leaving for New York on the Constellation May 1st, arriving at LaGuardia airport the evening of the same day. At the airport they will be met by press photographers and feted royally before their first Kraft show begins.

The Trio, which is enjoying the life of serving, hard-working musicians, have been offered an engagement at the famous Ben 4Marden Riveria—and also a return to the Copacabana which they played back in November. way they go, the boys will around New York all summer minus the two weeks in June they run over to Baltimore to appear at the 21 Club there. But that won't interfere with the Kraft show. Nat Cole and his Trio will come in on Thursdays to handle that.

Meanwhile, their recording of "Route 66" released this week, is following the way of J'l the Trio's tunes, right to the top. According to Capitol, the Bob Troup original was "made for the boys."

OUR NEIGHBORHOOD BY MYRTLE GOODLOW

This is the time of the year we can spend many hours working on our lawns and flowers and pull the weeds along the street To keep our yards clean and neat If neighbors worked for the good of their neighborhood And kept their yards and sidewalks clean and neat Wouldn't they have a beautiful street And with very little effort all could Do something to beautify their neighborhood By keeping windows and curtains clean For they are always first to be seen By all who pass by and should be pleasing to the eye A clean outside appearance makes known The general condition inside the home The cost is so small to pay To have rubbish hauled away And yet ashes tin cans and what not Ruins the looks of many a lot Some folks make it their daily task To keep little tots off the grass But we should never be so mean To keep little children off the green For they need their yard in which to play To enjoy life everyday And the sweetest memories ever known Are of happy days we spent at home So let their little romping feet Play on the lawn instead of the street In closing may I say: It shouldn't take A contest to make us try to win For we should always do our best To keep our lawns and hedges trim Content to know we have done some good To beautify our neighborhood.
