Here is the first postwar Treasury poster which will be displayed in more than one million public places from coast to coast to remind Americans who once backed the attack with war bonds that these same type of bonds continue to furnish the security fabric for the homes of the country. The slogan is now "Back Your Future" which can be translated by the individual in terms of better living and realization of ambitions when savings bonds mature in 10 years $4 for every $3 invested.

OMAHA, Neb., June 24.—Opportunity for 2,000 reserve and national guard officers now on terminal leave or inactive status, to return to active duty in company grade with units of the Army Ground Forces has been announced by Gen. Jacob L. Devers, commanding general of the AGF. The announcement, which is the Ground Forces initial move to carry out War Department directives for an interim army comprising a balanced, capable volunteer officer corps, will remain in effect until the army attains a permanent post-war status.

Officers commissioned in the Army of the United States can become eligible for duty if otherwise qualified, by applying and accepting a commission in either the Organized Reserve Corps or in the National Guard.

It also was pointed out by Gen. Devers that officers who volunteer for extended active duty at this time may indicate a preference for the overseas theatre to which they desire assignment. Consideration for this preference will be given in all assignments.

Officers who held rank higher than that of company grade at the time of separation from the service may volunteer for duty in company grade.

To be considered for duty with the Army Ground Forces, officers will be required to have had prior service in the AGF or AGF type unit; to not have attained their 37th birthday; to hold an efficiency index rating of 35.0 or higher for all military service performed subsequent to September 16, 1940 and, to meet physical standards for general service.

Officers ordered to active duty in company grade will be temporarily commissioned in the Army of the United States in grade not higher than the one in which the officer served immediately prior to processing for relief from active duty, and will be required to volunteer for service for an unlimited length of time, or, until June 13, 1947.

Interested officers are advised they are subject to overseas assignment and to any downward grade readjustment procedure in the same manner as all other officers on active duty, except that they shall not be reduced to a grade lower than the permanent grade held on December 17, 1941.

Extended active duty in a temporary Army of the United States status will not affect an officers' permanent commission in the Officers Reserve Corps or in the National Guard.

There are also a few opportunities for field officers in scarce categories, to volunteer for extended service or active duty under the same conditions as company grade officers providing they have an efficiency index of 40.0 or higher. Officers desiring extended active duty must apply for such in writing to the Adjutant General Washington, 25, D. C.

Back Your Future With U. S. Savings Bonds

During wartime these bonds backed the victorious attack on the Axis. Now these same bonds, still being bought by millions of Americans at their place of work, at banks, post offices and other issuing points, continue to be the chief insurance for a better future for the family and the individual. General Dwight D. Eisenhower describing U. S. Savings Bonds says: "While obviously it is not my prerogative to tell our veterans how to conduct their lives after their release from the Army, nevertheless my continuing interest in their welfare impels me to urge that they give serious consideration to the advantages offered by United States Savings Bonds."

VETS SPONSOR NEW SERVICE FLAG

A new service flag designed to enlist the full weight of public opinion behind employment of veterans, will soon be officially adopted by the War Department if present plans of the American Veterans Committee are successful. According to Charles G. Bolt (right) national chairman of the AVC, the new flag really stands for something—it shows the number of veterans that an organization is employing not how many employees were in the armed forces. Designed by Robert L. Marx, (left) head of Marxman Pipes, the new flag is somewhat similar in design to service flags already in use. It has a red border, white background, gold star for number of men killed and blue star for those who went into service. However, a blue "V" for veterans represents the number of veterans now employed. Thus, photograph of the flag above the first of its kind, flown in the Marxman Pipes plant, indicates that the company is now employing more veterans than left to join the service.

for overcharges, but it cannot accept such settlements as final until approved by the District Office.

If it is the merchant's first violation and the total amount involved is $10 or less, the seller is placed on probation and his case suspended. If, however, at a later date he is again found to be in violation, the settlement is based on both the present and the previous violation.

Under the Administrator's Claim the Price Control Panel may negotiate a settlement of the claim with the violating merchant, Mr. McCaw said, and if the name of the consumer who paid over-ceiling prices is known, the Panel may arrange for a refund of the amount of the overcharge only.

This is the type of action that today is preventing the line from blowing off our costs of doing business, Mr. McCaw said. Particular attention is being given to price violations in cost of living commodities which are of great importance to returning veterans and their families.

IOWA SPEED KING TO COMPETE AT STATE FAIR
 LINCOLN, NEB., June 28.—Emory Collins, national dirt track champion and for many years holder of a great many records, has added his entry to the list of nationally known speed aces who will compete on the Nebraska State Fair track July 4 for glory and $2,500 in prize money.

Collins, who set an all-time record of 37.05 seconds for a mile at Milwaukee, Wis., June 9, informed Edwin Schultz, State Fair Board secretary, that his big Offenhauser speedster, damaged at Milwaukee, will be ready for the wide-open competition here.

The LeMars, Ia., daredevil was setting a terrific pace in the Barney Oldfield Golden Jubilee feature when his motor apart, straggling connecting rods and other parts along the straitaway as he headed a big field in the Midwest's biggest classic of the first post-war season.

He informed Schultz that he been able to obtain replacement parts, and would be gunning for more records when unwinds his big Offenhauser on the State Fair track. He added that it was possible he would have a new motor. He had ordered another Offenhauser motor more than a year ago, but the Los Angeles firm, engaged in war work, was unable to deliver the hand-tooled job immediately. However, he had been informed it could be expected at any time, and Collins was hopeful he would have it in time for the July 4 program.

Collins will have plenty of competition as he goes after more points that will count toward the International Motor Contest Assn championships for 1946. Dave Champeau, who works as a Hollywood stunt man during the winter months, Tex Peterson, a native of Sand Hills, Neb., and a rodeo performer before he turned to auto racing; Chuck Frame of Belleville, Kas., Bud Simonsen of Minneapolis and Les Raymond of Washington, Ia., already have tied entries. Many others, bringing the field to more than 20 drivers, are expected.
