M C E—I just finished reading your column as I do every week. Now I have read of the problems of others and now I have one of my own. I am a veteran and I am supposed to start to business school on the 14th of October under the GI bill of rights. I have made all arrangements and now I find that I don't have enough clothes to begin. I suppose I could borrow but I don't care to do so. I am unde-

cidated whether to go ahead with the clothes I have or wait until I get more clothes to begin school? Ans: You shouldn't put too much emphasis on clothes. It's a well known fact that there is a definite shortage of men's apparel and if you had plenty of money you still wouldn't be able to get what you wanted. Your wardrobe is adequate to begin school. You are going to school to seek knowledge and prepare yourself for a profession. Under no circumstances should you allow a deficiency in your wardrobe to interfere with your plans to get an education.

A L I—I am with my third husband and it seems like I haven't found the right one yet. Several years ago I started a course in beauty culture and did not complete it. I am thinking of taking it up again as I have always been interested in this type of work. Advise me what to do?

Ans: It's impossible to succeed in anything unless you have the perseverance to stick with it. And that holds true with marriage as well as with a profession. Take up the course if for no other reason than to prove to yourself that you can start a job and finish it. You can yet find happiness with your husband if you were to give up the idea that perhaps he was not the right one. Search no further and learn to appreciate the man you have.

L A T—My baby's daddy is in New York. I came to Florida before my child was born and am living with my mother and stepfather. He promised to do a lot for us but failed to do anything. I want to know which one of us does she love?

Ans: You admit that you don't love the baby's father so why think of going back to New York to reopen an unpleasant situation? He failed you in your hour of need and he isn't worthy of any consideration on your part. Remain in Florida and get work so that your mother can help you rear your infant.

E W—I am a serviceman and here lately I met a young college girl and one day I made a mistake of taking a boy friend of mine over to see her. Now he goes with her. The other night she was out with him having a good time and as was letting him kiss on her and when I asked her about it she said she was only pretending. And what puzzles me is she will do almost anything I ask her but yet she will let my boyfriend hang around too and he comes back bragging what all he can do. Now I want to know which one of us does she love?

Ans: The little lady isn't ready to settle down keeps, Mac. She is having too much fun. Don't push her. She'll get serious if you make the right impression. Join in the fun, if she wants to frolic cut loose and enjoy yourself. Date some of the other girls around the campus while you are about it too.

E L I—I have a friend and he gives me plenty of money but he has a wife. He will do anything I ask him to do. Now I have another friend that I really love but he doesn't give me any money and when I ask for anything he says he doesn't have it. Now which one should I plan to go with regularly?

Ans: Surely you realize that you are jeopardizing your reputation by going with a married man. He pays off now but it will be you who will pay in the long run if you do not bring this affair to a close. Become self-supporting and independent. Accepting money from men is a very bad policy a sit definitely places you under obligation to them. You need to make new acquaintances if you desire marriage and a normal home life.

THE ROAD TO HEALTH

UNDULANT FEVER
By R. Stillman Smith, M. D., Chairman, executive board Georgia State Medical and Pharmaceutical Association Macon, Georgia

Mrs. Alice Brown had had a difficult winter. Her husband was still in the army and her two children seemed to catch every childhood disease that year... whooping cough, measles, chicken pox and then mumps.

The strain of taking care of the children through one siege after another told on her and we were all glad when she decided to take the children and spend the summer with her mother in the country. We thought it would do her as much good as it would the youngsters.

So it was a great disappointment to all of us when Mrs. Brown came back to town looking worse than she had when she went away. A few days after her return I ran into her on the street and she told me she was so tired and listless that she thought something must be wrong and she was coming by to see me at the office soon. I urged her to do so and suggested perhaps she should have a thorough physical examination.

About a week later she did come to the office. She said the night before she had chills and fever followed by sweating and severe pain in her arm. She thought perhaps she had malaria. In answer to my questions, she said she thought she had been running a temperature, off and on, for several weeks and that she always seemed to be exhausted.

The symptoms Mrs. Brown described might point to any one of a number of illnesses. The pain in her arm might mean arthritis. Malaria might be suspected from the chills and fever. The tired feeling with fever and night sweats made one think of some general infection coming on over a period of weeks, such as perhaps tuberculosis.

Obviously, the first thing to do was to give Mrs. Brown a complete physical examination. This included a chest X-ray which showed that her lungs were sound so she did not have tuberculosis. And other tests eliminated the possibility of malaria, arthritis and rheumatic fever.

There were other diseases which I had suspected Mrs. Brown might have. Of these I made one which showed that she had undulant fever. So named because the fever rises and falls, comes and goes.

Now death rarely results from undulant fever, but it is a very mean disease. It causes the patient may suffer recurring attacks of great pain and suffering, and is stubborn to cure. Sometimes with proper treatment, the disease does clear up in a few weeks. Then you have even with good care the patient may suffer recurring attacks of undulant fever for years. Attacks of fever may last a few hours or several days. They cause great pain and leave the patient completely exhausted.

I told Mrs. Brown that she must go to bed and stay in bed and instructed her to drink quantities of liquids. No medicine has proved to be a certain cure for undulant fever. There is a vaccine which has been effective in some cases but even with this treatment rest is essential.

WHAT DO YOU BELIEVE?

By Ruth T Taylor

"It isn't important what we believe but how we express those beliefs that matters." "It isn't so much what we do but what we are." These are two copy book sayings that have been repeated and repeated in various forms. And they have been twisted and turned to apply to almost every situation.

Personally I feel they are wrong. These are two copy book sayings that have been repeated and repeated in various forms. And they have been twisted and turned to apply to almost every situation.

What doesn't matter is not what happens to us, but whether what we do is important to be done. We may be personally defeated but our principles never, a great thinker once said. The truly important thing in this world is not so much where we stand as in what direction we are moving.

Where we go wrong... in our own lives, in our national lives, in our everyday responsibilities is in not tracing out actions to a high expedient motive. We act on expedience not on principle. We compromise not with things, but with our own beliefs, with our own conscience.

We dodge responsibilities, we evade issues and the truth eludes us because of our own weaknesses.

Here's an example. We say that one of the great principles in American life is the denial of absolute sovereignty. Is it? Or, rather, is it put into effect? Just trying denying the absolute sovereignty in 'efficient' organizations and see how far you get. Did you ever try not 'going along with the boys'?

BOOK REVIEW

HARPER'S PUBLISHES "COLOR AND CONSCIENCE"

One answer to Bilbo's utterances on the rostrum of the Mississippi State Legislature and in the Cave of the Winds on Capitol Hill is daintily presented in Dr. Buell G. Gallagher's new book "Color and Conscience: The Irrepressible Conflict," just published by Harper & Brothers. The first full-length treatment of religion and race to appear in a quarter of a century, this book minces no word and pulls no punches as it lays bare the hypocrisy and evasiveness of the Jim Crow church. It is a flaming indictment of what passes for Christianity in America as well as exposure of the double dealings of political demagogues
