

Hotel Manager Is Ardent "Y" Worker

Walter W. Scott

NEW YORK CITY — (by Lou Swarz) Walter W. Scott, manager of Harlem's best in hotels, is a most ardent YMCA worker here and shows it, having won first award plaque five years in a row in the annual membership drive.

As Hotel Theresa manager, he stays on the alert, trying to see that the hundreds of guests coming here weekly and those who "sorta" call Hotel Theresa home... are happy and satisfied. With over 100 employees under his supervision he is always planning, checking and keeping things in tip top shape as to service in the hotel rooms, the dining room and grill, and also where telephone service is concerned. Only this month has a double switchboard been completed by the telephone company so that quicker and better service could be given those at Hotel Theresa. Among his many competent assistants are Jack Elliott, noted hotel personality from Cleveland, manager of bar and the dining room; Thelma Burgess, the asst. dining room manager; John Scott, his brother, asst. night manager of the bar; Lela Summy, housekeeper and Roxie Sterrett, his private secretary and reservation clerk.

With preparedness being the keynote for any successful manager, one will know why Walter W. Scott is that, with his being a Morehouse (Atlanta, Ga.) Grad, and having a master's degree from New York university.

He has been a resident of NYC for over 20 years, and before accepting the position as hotel manager of Theresa was with the Dept. of Welfare. Since being here Scott has made it known that the hotel serves the best to those who want to enjoy the best in the best way. He has the respect of all who meet, or personally know him.

Altho his position keeps him

"Buy All The Christmas Seals You Can"

This year, Nebraska movie-goers will be asked by no less famous personages than Cary Grant, Shirley Temple and Myrna Loy, to buy all the Christmas Seals they can to fight tuberculosis.

Sixty-five movie trailers, featuring these famous movie stars have been distributed to theatres throughout Nebraska, it has been announced by R. S. Nicholson, Health Education Secretary for the Nebraska Tuberculosis Assn. Through a program of alternating them in various theatres, they will actually be seen in well over one hundred Nebraska theatres, he added.

The services of the three highly paid stars was donated free of charge in making the movie trailer which is further evidence of the interest shown by celebrities in the fight against tuberculosis, financed by the sale of Christmas Seals.

Nebraska's Christmas Seal Sale opened on November 25, and will continue through Christmas. Sale of Christmas Seals is the primary source of revenue for the Nebraska Tuberculosis Association and local associations throughout the state in financing tuberculin skin testing and chest X-rays, as well as other phases in the never-ending struggle to eradicate this preventable disease.

Last year, said Mr. Nicholson, there were 446 new cases of tuberculosis in Nebraska, and 173 deaths. Up to November 2 of this year, there are already 523 new cases, or 77 more than during all of last year. By buying Christmas Seals, people can help find early cases of tuberculosis before they can infect others. In other words, by buying Christmas Seals, folks help to protect themselves and their own families against this dread disease.

son City, Missouri, and his LL. B. degree from Lincoln University School of Law in St. Louis in 1945. He is also a member of the Missouri bar. Atty. Blagburn is a veteran of World War II and the husband of the former Elsie Gearin, former teacher in the St. Louis school system and now a teacher in the San Francisco Unified School System.

MAN FORCED INTO ALLEY $20 IS STOLEN

P. H. McGinnis

P. H. McGinnis, 47, of 4538 N. 36th Avenue, reported to police Sunday evening that a stranger robbed him of about $20 at 24th and Lake Streets.

He said a burly man grabbed him by the necktie and forced him into an alley just after he stepped out of a bar. The man demanded a drink and money, Mr. McGinnis said.

Mr. McGinnis wrenched free and ran to a taxi cab on the corner and the man pursued him to the cab and again demanded money. McGinnis said he pulled out his billfold, hoping to get rid of his pursuer for a dollar. The man however, snatched the billfold and ran. The cabbie told police that he thought the men were only arguing.

SEGREGATION ELIMINATION JEWISH CONGRESS SEEKS IN CALIFORNIA SCHOOLS

arate but equal facilities. It argues that segregation, even when equal facilities are provided, transmits a social, community sanctioned "inferiority" into a legally sanctioned "political inequality".

Leaders in the fight against discrimination believe that a favorable court decision on the constitutional issue of the case would represent a long step toward the ultimate invalidation of all racial segregation laws. In addition to American Jewish Congress, the local Mexican community and the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People are active in the case.

The American Jewish Congress' briefs marshals a variety of arguments to support its case.

Segregation is held inconsistent with federal policy as expressed in the ratification of the United Nations Charter and in the resolution accompanying the Act of Chapultepec. The brief likewise declares the segregation of children of recent immigrants contrary to the Federal naturalization policy which envisages the rapid assimilation of immigrant groups in to American life.

The brief points out that segregation against Negroes, Mexicans and other minorities is predicted upon assumptions of inferiority or superiority and cites numerous opinions by Southern courts which frankly declare Negroes to be so inferior to whites that a white person may recover damages for libel or slander if he is written or spoken of as a Negro. Southern courts view segregation laws as official recognition of this inferiority. Where white persons have been compelled to ride in segregated Negro coaches, Southern courts have considered the humiliation and mortification so great as to warrant an award of damages.

Supporting its contentions with numerous references to sociological and psychological literature, the brief demonstrates that an official sanction of segregation "helps to perpetrate racial prejudice, contributes to the degradation and humiliation of the minority," and that "crippling psychological effects" upon the individual personality.

The American Jewish Congress urges the disregard of racial and religious differences "not for the sake of minorities alone" but because both the dominant and subordinate groups are adversely affected by segregation.

The point is made that while the United States Supreme Court upheld segregation in the decision of Plessy vs. Ferguson, in 1896, it did so only upon the assumption that legal segregation did not imply the inferiority of the Negro race. It is maintained, however, that, in the light of fifty years' experience with legally enforced segregation, "the only meaning of the distinction between Negroes and whites" is that of inferiority of one group to another, and that the very doctrine of the Plessy case "calls for the outlawing of humiliation and discriminatory laws."

The argument concludes that while "all discrimination is bad," none is so vicious as the, humiliation of innocent, trusting children American children full of faith in life. Their humiliation strikes at the very roots of the American Commonwealth.

The Westminster case is only one of a number of legal and legislative actions against racial and religious discrimination in employment, education and housing undertaken by the Commission on Law and Social Action of the American Jewish Congress.

New York (IPS.) — Preparations are being made for the formal presentation of five acres of Irene Rich's ranch lands in San Bernardino County to the negro settlement of Landon, to be used as a community center.

With the development of the Fontana area as an industrial region there has been a great influx of workers for the Kaiser steel mills, and Miss Rich has donated the five acres through the North Fontana-Landon Chamber of Commerce, to be used for a Chamber of Commerce building, swimming pool, baseball park, club house and community center.

Miss Rich, who can soon be seen in Republic's John Wayne starrer, "Angel and the Outlaw" and "Calendar Girl," expects later to develop a negro residential tract, "The Outlaw," and "Calendar Girl," now in production.

Most Taverns Do More Than Barely Keep Within the Law

Nebraska has one of the best liquor control laws in the nation. This law, together with rules adopted by the liquor control commission, clearly specifies the rights and duties of all beer licensees.

Too many licensees once seemed mainly interested in knowing, "How far can I go and not get in trouble?"

The situation steadily improves. Now most beer retailers are well informed on the liquor control laws and rules. They seek to obey every one—not simply because they fear penalties but because they know careful law observance is the surest way to win and hold public good will.

This improvement in tavern operations can be partly credited to the Nebraska Committee's program of Self-Regulation. Eight years of this program has helped build in Nebraska one of the beer industry's most valued assets—a good name.

Consider Disney's "Uncle Remus" Dangerous

NEW YORK — Continued controversy over the new Walt Disney production "Song of the South" touched off when TIME MAGAZINE and other influential publications presented varying reviews seemed certain as liberal individuals and organizations requested an expression of opinion from Walter White, NAACP executive secretary, who has long been actively interested in influencing Hollywood away from the usual haekneyed stereotypes. Mr. White stated, "The National Association for the Advancement of Colored Peoples recognizes in 'Song of the South' remarkable artistic merit in the music and in the combination of actors and the cartoon technique. It regrets however, that in an effort not to offend the South, the production helps to perpetuate a dangerously glorified picture of slavery. Making use of the beautiful Uncle Remus folklore, 'Song of the South' unfortunately gives the impression of an idyllic master slave relationship which is a distortion of the facts'.
