mother but the tension of jampacking your living in one small room is too nerve-wracking for all concerned. Help your mother to find a nice room to herself, for she is not totally dependent upon you. Once she is on her own again relations between the three of you will be restored to normal.

M. L.: There is a young man coming to see my daughter who seems very nice and has asked her to marry. She says she loves him and he apparently loves her. My girl is a nice girl, a high school graduate and is smart as can be. I don't want her to make a mistake. I don't know very much he takes care of his mother, sister and brother and treats us well, about the fellow. I do know that brother and he treats us well. Should I consent for her to marry him?

Ans: Encourage them to wait a couple or three months until they have had the opportunity to know each other better. You daughter is only 18 and that is quite young to be getting married. Be understanding with these young people and try to show them that you want them to be perfectly sure of themselves before taking this essential step. Handle the situation with tact and diplomacy, as young people strongly resent interference in their love affairs.

J. B. J. I have been married 9 years and we have four children. My husband doesn't want to give me anything but what we have to have and when I ask him for some thing, he says he hasn't got it. I am planning on leaving him and going out for myself. Tell me what to do right away.

Ans: Looking out for four kids is a man size job, my good woman. You may easily find your self in dire circumstances if you try to shoulder this entire responsibility alone. You are talking strong language when you consider quitting. Money seems to be the root of your troubles so why not do something about bolstering the family income. Many housewives earn extra dollars in their own home by taking orders for toilet goods, sewing, and numerous other little tasks that people are glad to pay for.

A. F. I am, or I think I am madly in love with a married man. I am in college and I can't study for thinking about him. Should I continue my friendship with him? Is there any future in this? I have never been in love before.

Ans: Nor are you in love now. You are letting your imagination run wild. Call a halt to this affair now before you get in trouble. The man in the case doesn't love you and he is making no effort to encourage your affection. You can easily ruin your reputation on the campus if you continue carrying the torch for this man. Try exerting your charms and feminine wiles on the single boys if you hope to win a husband.

B. T. S. C. I would be so happy if you could help me. I am nineteen years old, this is my second year in college. I am in love with a young man of twenty-three. He says he loves me very much. Will a certain thing that occurred the night before he left for camp make him stop loving me even though it was the first time?

He understands. He is still deeply attached to you and has no inhibitions about the event that took place. You really gave him a grand send off. It thrilled him no end.

NEGRO LEADER NAMED TO ARC COMMITTEE

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Dr. F. D. Patterson, president of Tuskegee Institute, was named to a 3 year term on the American National Red Cross Central Committee today by the Red Cross of Incorporators meeting in Washington. The first Negro to serve on the Red Cross governing body Patterson recently was one of the 27 member advisory committee appointed by Chairman Basil O'Connor to study the structure of the organization.

ing, reminding them that the first heavy snow has yet to arrive this year and asking that they review the driving practices which are most successful in accomplishing safe winter driving.

"When starting out," Saunders said, "get the feel of the road by trying your breaks while driving slowly and when no other vehicles are near. On wet, snowy or icy surfaces, reduce speed. Even when roads may appear to be clear, remember that bridges or shaded sections may present icy patches.

"Apply brakes lightly and intermittently when stopping," he cautioned. Use tire chains when snow and ice prevail to reduce braking distance as much as 40 or 50% and for go' traction to avoid stalling and tying up traffic.

In addition to inadequate traction, National Safety Council research has found that reduced visibility is a major hazard to winter drivers, Captain Sanders sta-

WORST STORM OF LAST SEASON STRUCK JUST BEFORE THE HOLIDAYS

The approach of the holiday season recalled to Captain C. J. Sanders of the state safety patrol that it was just the day before Christmas last year that the worst storm of the winter struck, tying up traffic all over the state. Sanders urged that Nebraska motorists be mindful of this when they plan their holiday travel-ted, advising drivers to see to it that windshield wipers, defrosters and headlights are in working order.

"Don't be the cause of one of the fatal accidents which seem inevitably to mar every holiday season," Sanders asked.
