

Omaha Elk Order Seek To Make Lodge Largest In The Midwest

TO RENEW MEMBERSHIP DRIVE INTERRUPTED
BY THE WAR

The Officers and Members of Iroquois Lodge are glad that for the first time since the beginning of the great conflict, that we are again able to renew our policy of a drive for membership to our order. Through this Membership Drive which will last Sixty days, we are planning to make Iroquois Lodge the largest Negro lodge of this order in the Midwest.

The month of February has been an ill-fated one for our order. We have suffered the loss of two brothers who were very dear to us... Brother Booker McKenzie, who for years had been a constant builder, and benefactor of this order. Bro. James Monday, who had joined this order on his return from serving in the armed forces of our country, and believing that the unity of this order was one way for him to express himself, and to offer us the knowledge of his experiences... for his experiences, and his knowledge was what we believe the bases for the bettering of the conditions of the young Negro of today. The loss of these two Brothers is a great loss to our order, and a great loss to our society. Each and every officer and Member of this Order wishes to offer his deepest sympathy to the families of our departed brothers.

It is a proud factor that Iroquois Lodge has to offer to this community, and this factor is the two Units of this Lodge which are at this time laboring to better the ability and the morality of the most outstanding factor in any one community: the building up of the young people. The ones who will some day take our places, and carry on for the completion of the tasks which we are working to accomplish today. The Units which we are referring to are: The Elks Band, which is doing great things by the consistent cooperation of each and every young man who is a member of this unit. The Iroquois Jr. Herd Drum-Bugle Corps, the boys and girls who take pride in being a part of a unit that is outstanding as being the only Negro unit of this field in the state of Nebraska. These are the factors for which we the body of this order are proud of, these are the factors for which we the body of this order are working for... the factors for which we hope that the community will appreciate... the factors for which we all must support.

Negroes Rally To Support 1947 Red Cross Campaign

OMAHA AND DOUGLAS COUNTY GOAL IS $153,000
The Douglas County Chapter of the American Red Cross, through nearly 1000 volunteer workers, will ask the people of Omaha and Douglas County to subscribe $153,000 to carry on its far-reaching program for 1947.

In making the goal announcement, Red Cross fund chairman, E. C. Schmidt, pointed out the continuing need for Red Cross services to veterans and servicemen.
"Never in time of peace," said Mr. Schmidt, "has the American Red Cross been called upon to render such extensive services to the military forces at home and abroad and to veterans as are now required. Approximately 75 percent of Red Cross funds are still spent in war related services at home and overseas."
"The 1947 goal of $153,000 was set after a careful survey which reduced the 1947-48 budget to the minimum consistent with the responsibilities of the organization."
At the present time the chairman emphasized that the local organization must continue all of its usual Red Cross activities plus their services to men in the service, veterans and their families.
Mr. Schmidt said the 1947 fund campaign will continue through March, proclaimed by President Truman as Red Cross month.

earthquakes, floods, fires, tornadoes, or any other catastrophe which might befall mankind, the American Red Cross can be found on the scene of action as soon as the calamity occurs. This great organization deserves the support of all people everywhere, for it truly serves."
Summing up the general attitude toward the appeal for funds, Benjamin E. Mays, president, Morehouse College (Atlanta, Ga.), declared:
"In war and in peace the American Red Cross extends the helping hand to those in dire need and distress. The country would not be true to its highest ideals of constructive helpfulness without the work of the Red Cross. And this means that the forthcoming campaign needs the support of every loyal American in order that this organization may be able to continue its work for times of peace, and to help the victims of war and their families and meet the unforeseen emergencies of the future."

"The annual drive for the American National Red Cross... is an opportunity for all able-bodied Americans who have jobs to join in and give of their means, no matter how small."
"I have witnessed this great organization working at national headquarters; I have seen it in action in the metropolitan centers, on transportation lines (land, sea and air); in the backwoods sections of the rural south, including the Mississippi flood areas; in Army camps of this country, South America, Africa and Europe. I know of no other single agency that comes more nearly meeting the urgent needs of all peoples in times of stress and disaster. Irrespective of race, creed, or color, than the American Red Cross."
Similarly, James E. Shepard, president, North Carolina College for Negroes, in endorsing the campaign, stated: "In the wake of

What the Law Says About Selecting Beer Retailers

Licenses will soon be issued to the tavern-keepers who will operate in your town next year. The law covering the selection of these operators provides ample safeguards against the licensing of the unworthy.
The law specifies that the local governing bodies of cities and villages have the right to examine, under oath, any applicant for a retail license or renewal. The board may authorize its agent or attorney to act in obtaining any desired information.
Further, the law provides that the local governing body must consider any signed complaint from any citizen of a violation of the law or any objectionable conduct on the part of an applicant. A license may be revoked, or a new license refused if there is cause.
This Committee urges the cooperation of every citizen in bringing law violations to the attention of licensing bodies.

BROTHERLY BEHAVIOR

—BY—
CAPT. EARLE CONOVER

The story is told about Charles Lamb, English essayist (1775-1834) that, in walking with a close friend along a street one day, he indicated a man on the other side of the street and said, "You see that man. I don't like him."

The friend, who was in the same circle of acquaintances as was Lamb, replied, "Why, I shouldn't have thought you even knew him." To which came the answer, "I don't. That's why I don't like him."

It had been said about "Al" Smith, former Governor of New York State and Presidential candidate in 1928, "If you don't want to like him, don't meet him."
"Tis strange, isn't it, what meeting a man will do for him—and us. The reaction is usually in the proper direction: we will have a normal appreciation of him as a person. Gone then (usually) will be the fear and distrust of him as an utter stranger, which is probably a relic of the days of the cave men when such was perfectly normal and good. These cave men passed the "first law of nature", that of self-preservation!

Instinctively all of us are "afraid" of those things and those things and those persons which are not part of our normal life. The "fear" frequently is not a conscious thing, but it shows itself in the aversion of many to meet strangers, to purposely widen our friendships.

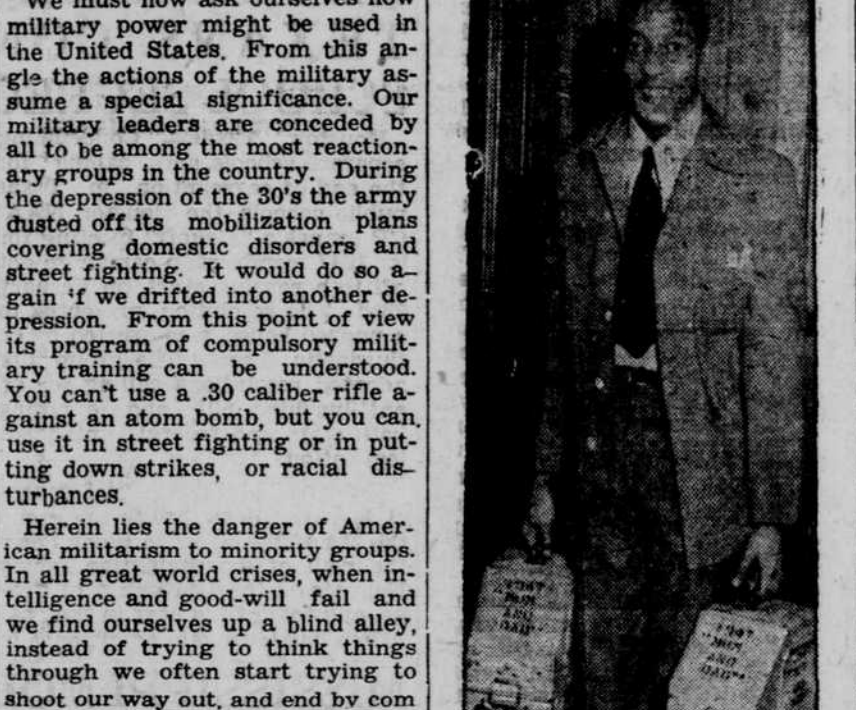

Other people act exactly opposite; they are quick to make new acquaintances. An invitation to go into a strange group causes no shudders. Indeed, it is welcomed.
We can live expectantly. Every person we meet can bring to our eyes and to our care a new vista of life, because of his wealth of experiences. Much can be learned from every stranger, for after all we learn more from those who differ from us than we can ever learn from our "own kind". Conversation is still one of the fine arts.

Meeting a man enables us to get at least a partial glimpse of that real person. A little time in his company may reveal a person who is, after all, very much like ourselves. He has no dagger hidden at his waist; he has not swung at us with his fist.
Indeed, he looks harmless and peaceable enough. His face and voice are reassuring. He smiles pleasantly—perhaps we laugh together. Casual conversation becomes personal.

After a little while if we learn that his background is quite different from our own, that he worships God in a little different way, or that his people were immigrants more recently than our own, what difference does it make? We knew him first, didn't we?

final show-down decisions are made by the Pentagon bureaucracy, and not by the courts of the land, Negro GI's will not soon forget the star-chamber proceedings of Army courts martial.
5. The system of conscription and compulsion now in effect, and proposed even for times of peace, dominates every home, influences the educational system of the country, and affects the social and moral life of the people.
6. Our executive department places greater and greater reliance on the military—so much so that it can hardly be considered as accidental. Military personnel dominate every home, influence the educational system of the country, and affects the social and moral life of the people.
So we Americans must do two things. First, we must be on our guard against the military even as our liberty-minded forefathers were. Second, we must THINK our way through the difficult problems which lie ahead and not wait until we come to the end of our blind alley, and then try to shoot our way out. Our way must be the way of unity and cooperation.

JESSE OWENS, Lecturer
Wilmington, Ohio—Facts were revealed today by Kroger Babb, head of Hygienic Productions, whose world offices are located here in the "hygiene capital" of the universe, establishing beyond any doubt the great popularity of Jesse Owens with people everywhere.
Owens, America's outstanding young colored athlete and a hygiene lecturer, under contract now to speak to theatre audiences on health and hygiene subjects in conjunction with the special Hollywood motion picture "Mom and Dad", is in the greatest demand of any of the company's "Mom and Dad" units of the show.

Babb said since his company acquired Owens' contract last year, Hygienic has received over 1,800 requests for his personal appearance from theatres, auditoriums, colleges, high schools, churches and civic and fraternal groups. Owens' personal appearance tour
