$450,000 CAMPAIGN DRIVE IS NOW ON URBAN LEAGUE SERVICE FUND

The 37-year old Urban League movement is the most effective single force for improved Negro relationships in the United States, as well as the development of equal economic opportunities for the Negro "one-tenth of the nation," Henry R. Luce, editor of Time and Life, said yesterday in launching the national 1947 Urban League Service Fund Campaign for $450,000.

Mr. Luce, campaign chairman, spoke to members of the campaign committee meeting at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel at which fund raising tasks were assigned. "Three thousand Negro and White communal leaders, serving as board members, and 400 staff members in the National Urban League and 56 local leagues throughout the country are active the year 'round in carrying out the Urban League program," Mr. Luce said.

"All fields are explored in the league's attempt to find jobs, create new job opportunities in business and industry, give vocational guidance, initiate interracial cooperation to prevent friction and ease tension, promote better housing and develop other activities in behalf of Negroes. "The increase of Negroes in employment previously closed to them is definitely attributable in a great measure to the tireless work of League officials with business firms, labor and governmental agencies."

Mr. Luce also reported briefly on the League's community relations project which will end in August after three years of operation. During this period, he said, 13 communities have been studied, with the cooperation of local agencies, to investigate the conditions under which Negroes work and live, and to recommend improvements.

The $450,000 set as the campaign goal, Mr. Luce said, is for the National League's program of research, planning and coordination of activities by the local leagues, as well as the neighborhood work of Greater New York.

Fifty-five other local leagues are supported mainly by community chest grants.

Other speakers including Lester B. Granger, executive secretary, National Urban League, and Edward S. Lewis, executive director, Urban League of Greater New York.

Serving on the campaign committee are: Lloyd K. Garrison, former member of the War Labor Board, and recently elected president of the National Urban League, and Dr. William H. Kilpatrick, president of the Urban League of Greater New York, who are vice-chairmen; Henry Bruere, president of the Bowers Savings Bank of New York City, who is treasurer, and the following members: Frank W. Abrams, board chairman, Standard Oil Company of New Jersey.

William H. Baldwin, former president, National Urban League; Joseph Barnes, foreign news editor, New York Herald Tribune; Parole Commissioner Samuel J. Battle of New York City; Mrs. Mary McLeod Bethune, president, National Council of Negro Women.

BOYS ATTACK STREETCAR—

by R. F. Poindexter
On the night of April 18th, a tragedy occurred as the Crosstown streetcar was ending its run near 27th & Lake Street. As the car stopped to admit a passenger, yells of daring boys filled the air in silence and then an echo of broken glass from the rear window aroused the passengers of the car. The conductor, who requested that his name be withheld, entered the oil station on 30th & Lake Street to notify the police and streetcar repairmen. Police cars arrived at the scene about 9:30. The police returned from a search within a few minutes with seven young boys between the ages of 14 and 16. The police officers lined the boys on the sidewalk for the conductor to identify. Due to the fact that the conductor did not see the boys' faces when the window was broken, he was unable to identify the assaulters. The boys were then released and sent home. An elderly lady who occupied the rear seat to notify the police and streetcar repairmen. Police cars arrived at the scene about 9:30.
