BARNEY GOOGLE

This is the story of Barney Google, who lived in potato row on Ruth McGee's farm Route 4 South Omaha.

Mrs. McGee, who is Secretary to Earl Frederiksen Safety Engineer of the Metropolitan Utilities District said that she grew a personality potato patch.

Barney is the boss of the garden. This picture shows Barney Google exactly as he was dressed, when a brisk tug of Mrs. McGee's wrists permitted him to extract himself from entangling roots in potatoe row so that he could travel out and see the world.

"Barney is a wee bit bald and he looks like a tough potatoe." Said Mrs. McGee. "He really and truly isn't. He is always kind and thoughtful." Should you wish to pick your hoss in any AKSARBEN race, all you need do is rub Barney's head three times with the three fingers of your right hand, if Barney takes a fancy to you. You are on the money. "Should barney feel that you are not a con-vivial spirit and not kind to Bull Frogs and Angle Worms, teller you are not just outside looking in and a cold potatoe.

In case you want an Ernest Goole in your home or his little sister Gretchen, write or phone Mrs. McGee and she will giv'g around in potatoe row to see if they are at home.

Barney sez, it is O. K. by him if you want to play the ponies. Just rub his head in the picture and when you are fast asleep, you will see your dream horse coming in at the post first by his head. Be sure to take a peek at the Jockey's number in case you don't quite remember what your dream horse looks like, otherwise when you go your bookie you are just outta luck and your pot of gold has gone with the rain.

Just one little more hint. Be sure to snore, since nothing scares a dream horse so much as a little good loud snorting snore.

Publicity guys have done so much advance work on "The Egg and I," "Duel In The Sun" and "Carnegie Hall" without one advance showing until Broadway is tired of waiting. Benny Leonard, the former champ who died in the ring last week while refereeing, was a Harlem kid from Lenox Ave. In the old days whenever he fought the whole neighborhood came to watch.

Congressman Adam Powell will have fun driving the $4,000 staton wagon on weekends at their Westchester home. It was an earlier gift from Hazel. She's headlining the Roxy Theatre stage show... Aside to Brooklyn Dodgers: Give us abreast, fellas and don't snub out Jackie anymore.

Joe Louis, in the middle of the heated discussion of who he will fight this June 26th, comes up with the bright idea that fans won't pay to see any opponent they are now considering. Joe, loaded with South American loot, prefers to wait until Fall...

Channing Tobias and wife are staying the few days at Hotel Theresa while their Central Park-view home has its elevator repaired. And Tobias will soon be a new member of the exclusive Lee Haven Beach Club of Conn. of which Walter Scott, Theresa manager, is President. Riverdale Children's Association is angling for the premiere proceeds of "Reet, Petite and Gone," Louis Jordan's latest film...

Just as we were settled with the sad news that Stan Kenton was disbanded due to ill health, a report comes that the 6ft. blond and handsome leader will go on as long as his health remains fairly good... Flo Hawkins has really gone south with the keys to the Hill apartment which she and Erskine shared for so many years. Divorce proceedings have already begun... And it seems to be a little matter of a $60,000 settlement...

Paul Deni, Radio Editor of the New York Post wrote quite an alarming column last week downing Jack Benny for inserting the Rochester voiced joke: "This is your favorite 'brunet'." Deni thought the gag in bad taste because the humor was based on a man's color... he wrote him: "I take exception to your item in Bad Taste. I heard the broadcast along with several other Negroes, and not one of them took exception to that comment. In fact, we enjoyed it and thought it quite clever." We must add that Rochester's gag was mild compared to some we've heard and therefore barely passes the O. K. line.

P. N. C.—I have been home six weeks and my wife acts strange. She received my allotment for 3 years and worked regular and she lived well. I saved my money and brought it home with me. I want to build a nice house on part of my property but she says she isn't interested in a home or anything I have. Now I have made up my mind to build the home and move in regardless. She can come if she likes or stay as she is.

Ans: The new home will prove a good place for you to live.

Ans: Leave well enough alone.

Neither one of them had what it took to make you contented—it won't be any different now. Continue your search for Mr. Right—he'll be the first to attempt to keep the fire-iriden city...

C. B.—For the past month I have been worried to death. My first and second husband both are pestering me to return to them and I can't make up my mind if I want either one?

Ans: Leave well enough alone.
