These "mountains" and "valleys" represent a serious trend in America today—a more or less steady loss in patents issued, according to National Patent Council. Some of America's most important industrial states have seen the annual number of patents decline for the last decade and a half. Only one in this group—Delaware—has indicated patent strength in recent years. That entire state has relatively few patents, however, with an annual peak of not more than 350. Constant subversive efforts to destroy incentive and thus undermine invention have been an important factor in the decline of patents, the Council reports.

Railway Electric Signal
Thomas Edison invented the battery cell which powered the first electric semaphore signal ever used on an American railroad. He worked 10 years on what is sometimes called his greatest invention—a battery designed especially for railroad purposes, the prototype of modern batteries whose use by railroads ranges all the way from air conditioning to the propulsion of locomotives.

With Grain of Salt
Not so many years ago salt was used in payment of a fine in central Africa. When a murder was committed, according to custom, the community in which the murderer lived was responsible for paying the blood-money. The chief of the village went around on an appointed day and collected from each of his subjects two cupped handfuls of salt. This was pooled to form payment for the life taken.

TEACHER'S POT

YAKIMA, WASH.—Jerry Syrcle, 6, shouldn't have any trouble winning favor after polishing this apple for his teacher, Verna Eastman. Of course, big apples from Washington state don't grow quite as large as the trick camera makes this one appear. It is just symbolic of the Yakima apple country's bumper crop. And Jerry represents thousands of small boys who will be bringing Washington apples to their teachers all over America.
