

Steeplejack and Bridge Painter Invents Time-Saving Paint Brush

New Device Tested on New York's Triborough Bridge... A new dipless paint brush was recently demonstrated on the world-famous Triborough Bridge in New York City.

shut-off clip on hose gives complete control of the paint-flow. Actual tests in homes, farms, factories, under every working condition where paint is used, show an average saving of 38% in time and paint.

on the market in the near future. The Air Flow Brush Company (57 West 35 Street, New York 1, New York, manufacturers and distributors) are planning an advertising campaign to make the Air Flow Brush a painting "must" in every home, farm and industry throughout the United States and Canada.

The inventor claims that not only does the brush save time, but also saves wear and tear caused by cleaning of ordinary paint brushes. This dipless brush is now in production and is being placed

Spray Mosquito Swamps

Mosquitoes are effectively controlled by DDT. According to a department of agriculture report, "the most reliable method of applying larvicides over a wide range of conditions is by means of sprayers." The wet, swampy mosquito breeding areas should be sprayed. Much relief can be obtained around the home by spraying screens, trees and shrubs where the mosquitoes light. Any good sprayer can be used depending upon the amount of spraying to be done. The same sprayer also may be used for other purposes.

Forestry in Europe

The Zurich municipal forest, the Sihlwald, has been producing wood crops for nearly a thousand years, and in 1422 the city council decided that the cut of that forest should not exceed 20,000 pieces of timber per year. This order constituted the first recorded forest regulation that is known.

Young Go First

Many young birds, including those of the Red-Wing, migrate south before their parents, thus disproving the old adage that the adults guide the young on their first southward flight. In other species the migrating young and adults remain in family groups. Canada geese follow this pattern, the families combining into large flocks but retaining their unity. With no calendar or compass to guide them, birds set forth along ancestral routes each fall at much the same time for their southern wintering grounds and return as punctually each spring.

MRS. WILLA BUFKINS IS LAID TO REST

A symphonic musical setting for the rites was furnished by the touching special songs by friends, plus the melodious chants of the choir of Mount Calvary Community Church, with the sublime echo of the organ chimes furnishing a serene background.

Pallbearers were the men members of Calvary Community Church. Following the church rites, a solemn motorcade, moved to the beautiful Mt. Hope Cemetery where the body was laid to rest.

Survivors Mother Buffkins was born August 15, 1892, in Lavada County, Arkansas. She had also been a member of Mount Calvary Church since January 1, 1935. She died conscious of the fact, that she would not recover, and had peacefully committed herself to her Maker.

She is survived by four sons, Woodrow Qualls of Milwaukee, Wis.; Paul Qualls of Chicago, Ill.; Van Lawrence Qualls of Omaha; and Theodore Qualls of New York City. Also by three daughters, Mrs. Mary Watts, Idola and Maggie Buffkins, all of Omaha, and by two grandsons, James of Milwaukee, Wisconsin, and Orville Qualls of Omaha. Her husband preceded her in death about 13 years ago.

Vast Sheep Ranges Found In Many Parts of World

Sheep can be raised on land too poor for farming. They can be raised on land too dry for other uses. Sheep can feed on grass too short even for cattle. The world's great wool-growing areas are on vast ranges, as in Australia. Most of the world's great sheep ranges are in the temperate zones. Nearly three-fifths of the world's wool comes from the temperate zone of the Southern Hemisphere. Australia, Argentina, New Zealand, South Africa and Uruguay are the big wool-growers.

New 'Peg-Top' Beet

Interest of agricultural engineers and sugar beet technologists is keen in a new sugar beet variety because it holds promise of an "easy-pull," "harvest-all" type to simplify the job of mechanizing sugar beet harvest. The "peg-top" shape of the root makes for easier lifting and less tail breakage. The new variety is the fourth generation selection from a cross between a red garden beet and the leaf-sprouting sugar beet, George W. Deming, agronomist of the U. S. department of agriculture at Fort Collins, Colo., creator of this new type, held on to the shape characters of the red garden beet parent but dropped red color in leaves and root in favor of true sugar beet characters.

New Radio for 'Hams'

A new and radically-simplified single-band radio transmitter bids fair to double the number of radio-telephone stations which can be operated without interference. The transmitter was perfected at Stanford university. The new transmitter requires no special components and can be readily duplicated by amateurs. It is expected to be used in both the commercial and amateur field. Simultaneous transmission and reception are made possible for the first time with this new arrangement, thus making amateur radio contacts exactly like phone calls.

Cattle Travel Far

Brown Swiss cattle, one of the world's oldest breeds, are found in every climatic zone in the world. For more than 5,000 years they have been exported from Switzerland, and for the past 30 years this breed has been imported by the United States. In the last 15 years the breed has found its way into 35 countries, and in some cases the breed, which is hardy and disease resistant, has been used effectively in crossbreeding.

Shoes of Tomorrow

All conditioned shoes are now available for industrial footwear for workers who have a athlete's feet or blisters. The ing is made of fine plastic meshlike material. Every step pumps air into the shoes. An Austrian shoe-maker has announced electrically warmed shoes. A small battery fits into a cavity in the heel and keeps the shoe constantly warm. Eighty-five per cent of all the 20 million cattle hides consumed annually in the United States are used in the manufacture of shoes.

Prices Outstrip Output

From 1915 to 1919, total U. S. farm income rose 180 per cent but farm production went up only about 25 per cent.

Safety Record Still High

Nebraska has scored again on the Safety-Side of the ledger, reports the Nebraska State Safety Council. Although the Council predicted three and possibly four traffic deaths over the long Labor-Day holiday, only one such death has so far been reported. Nebraska's only holiday fatality was that of Mrs. Lester Hollenback who was killed on September 6 in Shelton when the auto she was driving was struck by a fast train. Nebraska drivers have every right to be proud of themselves for their record, the Council said, for the nation as a whole exceeded estimates set up by the National Safety Council. "Much credit is due to the many agencies, both public and private, who made possible the successful promotion of the Labor-day traffic safety campaign," Dwight Havens, president of the State Safety Council, said.
