Don't Try To Aid Young Wild Game

The Nebraska Game Commission is concerned with the public's efforts to give aid to 'apparently' orphaned wildlife.

Each spring numerous incidents occur in which people try to help wildlife by taking care of all sorts of young they happen to find.

According to a Game Commission spokesman, "Besides the strict legal aspect of people trying to raise baby game animals and birds, our concern is also for the safety of the people. Many of our 'cute' game babies become quite dangerous as they grow up. After all, they are basically wild animals."

"Many of the young found apparently abandoned are not abandoned. If people would leave them alone, the majority of them will be re-united with their mothers," he continued.

"Legally, anyone who has a young game animal is violating the law as much as if they shot

Legion Officers Are Nominated

Theodore Roosevelt Post No. 30 American Legion had its annual nomination of officers for the fiscal year. The final election will be held the first Thursday in July, the 7th day of the month.

And it is hereby urged that all paid up members with 1955 cards be present and make your final selection of the officers to guide the destinies of the Post for the coming fiscal year.

The Ladies Auxiliary have completed their nomination of officers and are waiting for the final election coming up soon.

The organization affairs of the Legion are in good shape and slowly but surely we march on.

Please remember our sick in VA Hospital. They are Comrade Ralph Underwood and others not reported.

At the last meeting several constructive plans were launched for the betterment of the Post. An entirely new innovation is planned by one of the official staff that will certainly prove to be very outstanding here in Omaha.

We are ever mindful of our Legion oath and our sacred obligation and by the help of God may we never grow weary and to do this we ever keep faith with our sworn oath, that is, for God and country and our fellowman.

"Beware of little Expenses; a small Leak will sink a great Ship." That was Benjamin Franklin's advice. Buying U. S. Savings Bonds on the Payroll Savings Plan, 8 1/2 million Americans today are saving regularly before they are tempted to spend needlessly.

More than anything else, most Americans want security. U. S. Savings Bonds provide financial security.

"A pheasant out of season," he concluded.

Three Dramas To Be Given At Joslyn Saturday

Saturday, June 25, the Joslyn Art Museum Education Department will offer a free program for children in the Lecture Hall at 2:00 P.M. The Creative Dramatics classes, under the direction of Mrs. Leon Marx, will present two original plays, "A Trip Into Space" by Beth Swanson, and "The Modern Red Riding Hood" by Diane Else.

These plays are presented by boys and girls ten through twelve years of age. This class will also present a spontaneous play from suggestions given by the audience to show how the Creative Dramatics classes work out their own plays from original ideas.

The Creative Dramatics class for children from six to ten years will present "The Princess and the Pea" under the direction of Miss Connie Kostel. This class will work from the story but will supply original and spontaneous dialog.

The plays will be followed by a color film program: Arts and Crafts of the Southwest Indians, and Land of Pueblos.

Without—more production for each hour a man works, and without the capital to make it possible, there is no progress—no rise in pay scales, no added leisure, no drop in prices or improvement in quality.

Every day is Savings Bond Day or the thrifty worker on the 'payroll Savings Plan.

A high I. Q. (intelligence quotient) generally goes with a high T. Q. (thrift quotient). Saving regularly through U. S. Savings Bonds is evidence of, both.

Upon finishing his additional year, Sgt. Bryant plans to continue his education at the Uni-

"Davey Crockett" Being Presented

Colorful Career Of Legendary Hero Depicted In "Davey Crockett, King of The Wild Frontier"

Few men have lived more adventurous lives than Davy Crockett, whose colorful career is depicted by Walt Disney in "Davey Crockett, King of the Wild Frontier," starring Fess Parker and Buddy Ebsen, now playing at the State Theatre.

As seen in the feature length production, in color by Technicolor, Davy grew bored with simply fighting bears to death and began trying to "grin" them down. When his "death grin" failed, Davy was forced to wrestle the bear into submission.

The same valor that distinguished Crockett as a bear slayer won him further fame as an Indian hunter. He joined General Andrew Jackson's regulars to fight deprecatory Creeks. But Crockett was also a fair man who lived by the motto, "Be sure you're right, then go ahead." When Jackson later attempted to deprive Indians of certain governmental rights, Davy vociferously opposed his one-time general.

None of Crockett's exploits, however, surpassed his heroism at the Alamo. With a group of miscellaneous drifters scornfully called "Crockett's Company," the fabulous Tennessean joined Col. Jim Bowie's volunteers at the Alamo and defended it to the finish.

"Davey Crockett, King of the Wild Frontier" is released by Buena Vista. It was photographed in actual settings throughout Tennessee and the Great Smoky Mountains under the direction of Norman Foster.

University of Hawaii. About this his father said, "I hope he'll continue his work in Chemistry and Biology after being discharged."

Excessive personal income taxes may so penalize success that, to the investor, the risks will not seem worth taking.
