Grangers Gets Gift From P. M.

Joseph F. Cullman 3rd, Executive Vice President of Philip Morris Inc., and a member of the Board of Directors of the National Urban League, presents its Annual donation in behalf of the cigarette company to Lester Granger, Executive Director of the National Urban League, to aid in the organization's vital work of expanding job opportunities for Negroes and other minority groups.

The pioneer efforts of Philip Morris brought about the hiring of the first Negro salesman in the cigarette industry and thereby opened the door of employment opportunities in all major industries. Today, Philip Morris employs an impressive staff of Negro salesmen in major cities throughout the U. S. and has appointed Negroes to important executive capacities.

To keep up the important and significant work accomplished by the National Urban League, Philip Morris is a consistent supporter and annual contributor. This year the cigarette company also contributed to the Urban League's Building Fund.

Philip Morris executives will attend the League's 45th Annual Conference which is being held in Milwaukee during Labor Day Week. Among those who will participate in the Conference's program are: George Weissman, Vice President of Philip Morris, Inc.; Herbert Wright, Assistant to the National Sales Promotion Manager; Thomas Shropshire, College Market Supervisor and James C. Bowling, Assistant to the Vice President. Mr. Bowling will be among the speakers at the week's conference.

A highlight of last year's National Urban League Conference was the League's presentation of the distinguished "Statesman in Industry Award" to O. Parker McComas, President of Philip Morris Inc. The tribute was: "awarded to

O. Parker McComas for pioneering in industrial race relations with social vision and statesmanship."
