Joe Louis Is Satisfied

Chicago—Joe Louis, reminiscing over his ring career in the November EBONY, says, "I'd do the same thing all over again without changing any part of my past life." There would be no changes, that is, except he would not divorce his ex-wife Marva, who is now married to a Chicago physician. Joe, writing for the 10th anniversary issue of EBONY, states that his divorce is the one thing he will always regret.

As for his bad investments, spending lavishly on his friends, being a song-and-dance man and high living he says, "People seem to think that if I had a second chance I'd hang on to more money and make wiser investments. Maybe so, but it's easy to look back and say he did it or that wrong after everything has happened. But even though I can see where I made mistakes I often say to myself: 'Joe, you didn't do too badly.'"

When writing about being free with his money Joe says, "I figure I wasn't wrong sharing with my friends. It wasn't that I was a soft touch. It was just that I enjoyed having them around. I believe that if things had been the other way around, my friends would have done the same for me."

Joe reveals that he has four incomes which make the chances slim that he will ever be down and out. The incomes are $15,000 as boxing director for the International Boxing Commission; he earns two per cent of the gross at the Moulin Rouge in Las Vegas; he is a partner in the Joe Louis Milk Co. in Chicago; and he is vice-president of a Detroit insurance company.

"very important daily newspaper across the nation will carry the 1156 Dodge model announcement advertisements beginning Oct. 6," Minor said. "More than 1,000 of these will be in major market areas. In addition, some 3,000 smaller dailies and weeklies also are on the schedule for initial and follow-up ads in a broad campaign even more comprehensive and spectacular than that of a year ago."

A rightly diversified use of all advertising media is planned for the new car announcement phase. Heavy newspaper lineages throughout the first three weeks of the announcement period will be accompanied by full-color magazine display of the announcement emphasizing the 1956 Dodge theme: "Born of Success To Challenge the Future."

"Trial", M-G-M filmization of the Harper's Prize-winning novel by Don M. Mankiewicz, is now playing at the State Theatre, with an important cast headed by Glenn Ford Dorothy McQuire, Arthur Kennedy, John Hodiak and Katy Jurado.

The author of the best-seller novel, which won a $10,000 award over 855 contestants, also wrote the screen play of the motion picture version, which tells a taut and suspenseful story of a young university instructor in law who gets his first taste of real criminal law practice when he defends a Mexican youth on trial for the murder of a high school girl. In doing so he is caught in a maze of gripping circumstances involving the double-crossing lawyer with whom he is associated, the latter's attractive secretary, the District Attorney who opposes him, and the hysterical mother of the accused youth.

Duke Ellis, John Favors, At Kellom

As your Kellom Community Center rolls into the second week of its 1955 Fall activities, we thought that this would be a good time to introduce to the readers of this column the new members of the 1955-56 Center staff.

Duke Ellis
If you should want to take part in one of the many craft projects offered at the center, you will find that your instructor is a tall, thin, likable guy called "Duke" Ellis. Duke is a graduate of St. Joe high school in York, Nebraska, and the Armed Forces Physical Training School at Fort Bragg, North Carolina. He also has two and one-half years of undergraduate work at Nebraska Central College.

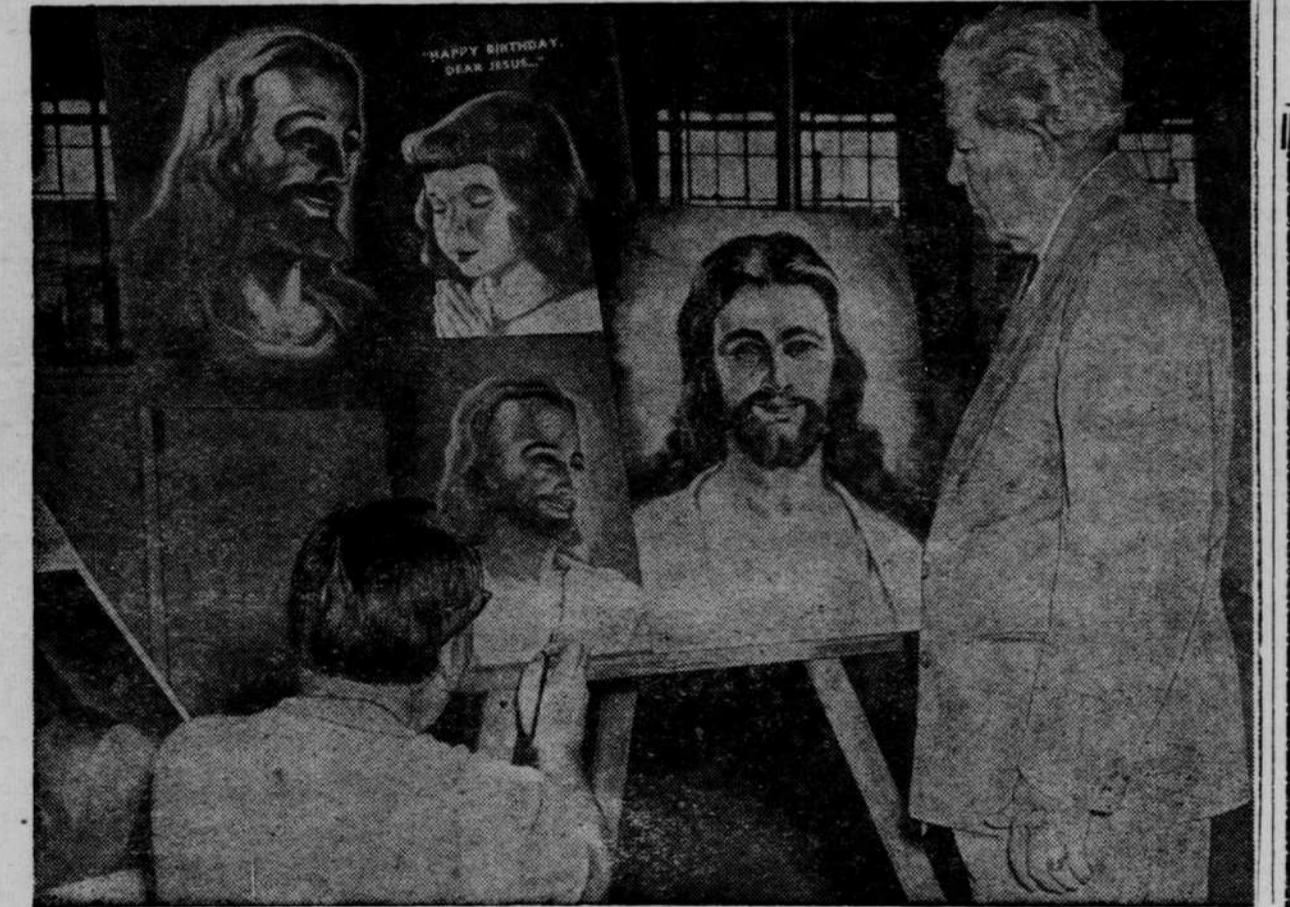

Duke came to Kellom after having a long line of experience in the recreation and athletic field in both military and civilian life. He has coached football, basketball, and track at St. Joe high, Nebraska Central College, and William Penn College in Ocala, Iowa; served as physical instructor for U.S. Maritime Service, U.S. Air Corp at Kelly Field, Fort San and Scott Field, and as a physical therapist at the army and navy general hospital in Hot Springs, Arkansas. Mr. Ellis has also worked for the Parks and Recreation Commission in Wichita, Kansas; and during the past summer he was employed by the Omaha Parks and Recreation at Kountze Park.

Along with his other achievements, Mr. Ellis is justly proud of having won, in 1952, the World Herald's "Honor Roll of Good Citizenship."

John Favors
Our game room supervisor for the coming year is no newcomer to this community or Omaha. John Favors has served as a summer playground supervisor for three years, for the Omaha Parks and Recreation Commission, at Corby Park.

John has not only served as an elementary school teacher for a large number of years but is also an ordained minister who has his own church. He is well known in the community for his energetic efforts in "Y", church, and many other types of community work.

LIFER - ARTIST PAINTS 200th CHRIST SMILE — The "Old-timer," an inmate-artist at Florida's Raiford Prison whose impressions of a "Smiling Christ" are sought by churches throughout the Christian world, completed his 200th painting last week. It will be presented to a revival group by the mayor of Phenix City, Alabama. "I took my first drink in Phenix City," the old artist explained, "and in time I became an acute alcoholic right there. My family shunned me in Columbus, Georgia, right across the river from Phenix City, and in time I hit bottom. Now that the Sin City is cleaned up, I'd feel proud to paint them a dozen Smiling Christ portraits to replace the old gambling-saloon signs."
