Name New Trinidad Officer

The announcement by the Secretary of State for the Colonies, Mr. Alan Lennox-Boyd, that Jamaican born Mr. Solomon Hoochoy, O.B.E., Deputy Colonial Secretary, Trinidad, has been appointed Colonial Secretary, Trinidad, has brought tremendous ovation from West Indians all over England.

With this appointment, it is being argued that it will not be very long before the appointment of the first native governor in the West Indies.

Princess Margaret's tour of Kenya, Tanganyika, Zanzibar and Mauritius, which begins with her leaving Britain by air on September 21, will include the opening of the new multi-racial Royal Technical College in Nairobi, Kenya.

Acora Airtort (GLD COAST) is being extended to provide facilities comparable to those at international airports elsewhere in the world.

The International Bank for Reconstruction and Development (THE WORLD BANK) has made fifteen loans in Africa, totalling about 116 million.

The first African to be promoted to the post of Social Development officer in Tanganyika is Mr. F. J. Mohanu, who studied at the London School of Economics.

The first Sudanese Ambassador in London to be appointed is Mr. Sayed Awad Satti. His appointment brings the total number of Ambassadors to the Court of St. James to fifty-nine.

Sayed Awad Satti, aged 55, is married and has several children. The formation of a "Friends of Satchmo Club", to do honor to the music of Louis "Satchmo" Armstrong, is in process in London, England.

The organizers are planning branches throughout the leading British towns, and intend to spread the affair to the Continent (France, Holland, Germany, Sweden).

Hon. N. N. Nethersole, Jamaica's Minister of Finance, now in London seeking a substantial loan could not be contacted at the time of going to press, but the grapevine had it to say that they doubt whether he will get his substantial loan.

Emphasis on Vice-Presidents

An Intimate Message From Washington

By William H. Stringer
This looks like a campaign year in which we are going to be hearing a lot about Vice-Presidents.

On the one side, the Republicans are expected to use Vice-President Richard M. Nixon extensively to carry the campaign to the people, if President Eisenhower sticks to his intention of conducting mainly a "front porch campaign" and making his own appeal mainly via nationwide television addresses.

On the other side, the Democrats are preparing to train their guns on Vice-President Nixon particularly. They are ready to emphasize simultaneously the health issue and the Vice-President's presumed lack of appeal to independent voters by their new slogan: "A vote for Eisenhower is a vote for Nixon."

The Democrats also are searching diligently for a vice-presidential candidate of their own who can match Mr. Nixon in campaign vigor, who is invulnerable to the charges of "softness to communism" which Mr. Nixon hurled in the 1954 campaign, and who will enhance the popularity among special groups of a Democratic presidential slate which is likely to be headed by Adlai E. Stevenson.

Receiving careful attention is the able Junior Senator from Massachusetts, John Kennedy. Senator Kennedy has an attractive youthful personality, a good family background, and a strong record of anticommunism. He is a devout Roman Catholic. In the Democratic political spectrum he is mid-road—not a New Dealer, not a McCarran-Walter conservative.

Senator Kennedy's religion is not rated by Democratic strategists as necessarily a political hazard. It is argued that objection to a Roman Catholic in high office, which was in part responsible for the defeat of Al Smith's bid for the presidency in 1928 by 6,000,000 votes, is declining. A recent Gallup poll opinion sampling is cited which found that 73 percent of those questioned would not oppose a generally well qualified presidential nominee because he was a Roman Catholic. This is compared with 62 percent in a Gallup Poll of 1940.

On the other hand there are Democrats who argue that if a candidate starts out with approximately one-quarter of the voters objecting to him, this is a heavy handicap.

The Kennedy candidacy is being seriously considered in the Stevenson camp. It is argued that Senator Kennedy's name on the ticket might win back to the Democrats many Roman Catholics who voted for General Eisenhower in 1952. It is argued that Senator Kennedy is presidential timber who could be built up for a future try at the White House.

Weighed against the Massachusetts senator is his Senate vote opposing high rigid parity for farm supports. Mr. Stevenson, himself, has a moderate record on farm aid, and the Democratic politicians suggest he would do well to find a running mate possessed of a record favoring immediate and direct support for farm prices—Senator Kefauver, for instance.

Again, it is argued that Senator Kennedy is a "moderate" like Mr. Stevenson and that the ticket should be strengthened by nominating a New Dealer for second position. And it is pointed out that Mr. Kennedy, too,

The Last Word

By Elizabeth Davis Pittman

I don't know whether the old fashioned "burp" is still practiced, but the old fashioned picnic is still with us. I attended one of the most enjoyable I have ever had the pleasure of participating in (or perhaps I should say "indulging in") when my church had its annual picnic outing a few days ago. The tables were piled high with barbecue, meat loaf, wieners, potato salad, cole slaw, relishes, baked beans, green beans, corn pudding, pies, cakes and ice cream. Now I know how King Farouk got his spread! I left several pounds heavier and looking like a little stuffed toad.

But aside from the games, camaraderie and general good fellowship, it gave me a deep feeling of satisfaction to see so many people who worship together. Everyone was smiling and saying kindly things to his fellow man and God was in His Heaven smiling down and knowing all's right with the world. People who have grown up together watched their children ed both the exterior and the interior. "We had a full basement poured and I had to get help on the heavy work, lifting the rafters and floor joists, but the rest I did myself," Mrs. Spencer said. With the week-end help of her husband, she completed the job in 20 months, and had the house in livable shape in 18 months.

The job wasn't the initial venture into the construction field for this young mother of a two-year-old son. She handled her first project, the remodeling of a barn and the family's previous home, six years ago. That also was a major task, in which Mrs. Spencer reduced the barn from 48 to 36 feet in width and used the lumber she salvaged to repair the structure.

Next, she lowered the high ceilings in the old-fashioned farm home of her parents, and she's been doing general construction work ever since.

General housework, caring for son Charles, and building projects don't leave much time for Mrs. Spencer to follow such ordinary feminine hobbies as sewing or gardening.

Since the house was finished, she's embarked on a new job—remodeling the garage at a neighbor's home into a combination greenhouse.

"I'm like most people," Mrs. Spencer insisted. "If I have just a little to do, I'll sit and look at it, but if there are a lot of things to be done, I get to it."

And, we don't mean that she "built" it by offering helpful suggestions to a crew of skilled tradesmen. We mean she built it by hand and virtually without help.

Mrs. Spencer's salesman husband, Richard, pitched in only when she needed a strong back. Without anyone's help, Mrs. Spencer wired the house, installed the plumbing and flooring, papered the walls, and painted.

On the Republican side, when the 21 Republican Governors at Atlantic City signed a petition urging President Eisenhower to run for reelection, they omitted any reference to Mr. Nixon.

This was because a few of the Governors regarded him as something of a political liability.

If Mr. Nixon receives no further smudges from the association with his former campaign manager, Murray Chotiner, if his campaign strategy this time is held to a higher level, if his speeches are more carefully prepared and reflect a more matured judgment, it is conceivable that Mr. Nixon may turn out to be a campaign asset to the Republicans.

The Democrats don't think that Mr. Nixon can keep to this course, and one of their hopes is to needle him into a hard hitting mud-slinging campaign which will boomerang against the GOP

Woman Builds A New House

By the Associated Press

A mile and a half south of this Kansas City suburb, Mrs. Dorothy Spencer and family are living in a new, seven-room frame house. So what, you say? She built it herself—that's what.

And, we don't mean that she "built" it by offering helpful suggestions to a crew of skilled tradesmen. We mean she built it by hand and virtually without help.

COOL

... there's no wasted heat
Once you've tried cooking electrically, you'll agree that an electric range makes a delightful difference in kitchen temperatures during hot weather.
The reason is that your electric oven is completely insulated—top, bottom and sides—to keep heat in the oven and out of the kitchen. Electric surface units cut waste heat, too, because they heat by direct metal-to-metal contact with cooking utensils.
That's one of the important reasons why last year Omaha housewives purchased more than twice as many electric ranges as any other type.
Find out for yourself how cool electric cooking can be, and discover its other advantages, too. You'll like its cleanliness, safety, and economy. See your favorite appliance dealer soon.
