New York... (CNS)... RACE STARS DRAW SOME OF BIGGEST $$$ TAKES... In Los Angeles, Nat King Cole drew the biggest crowds in the last 20 years for the Coconut Grove of the Ambassador Hotel. And this is despite the general downgrade of business in nightclubs all over the country.

At this is despite the general downgrade of business in nightclubs all over the country. Nat managed to pull in 18,000 customers for his record four weeks. Naturally he got a percentage arrangement all over the guarantee for his fine work.

And in the Northwest, Louis Armstrong may be the same but the money he's drawing is not. Out in Portland, Oregon, Louis copped $53,000 in five dates. His first one of $14,200 was one of the biggest ever for a one-night stand.

And it was ditto right down the line for the other theaters. Billy Daniels pulled a hot welcome from Londoners when he opened at the Prince of Wales Theater, accompanied by venerable Benny Payne. All was tribute though to Billy's showmanship.

Erroll Garner's playing the cello now—at least for recordings. With Mitch Miller conducting the orchestra, this Columbia record also has Erroll as composer and arranger of "Sides Are Dreamy" with the flip side "On the Streets Where You Live."

Count Basie's doing well in Germany but not quite as well as others before him. At one Berlin concert he had 2,000 empty seats though 5,000 were on hand. Basie managers are saying this was because he wouldn't do the real hot jazz and so hurt some of his following.

"Too Late the Phalarope" moves into Broadway's theater row with Norman Grant of "Jazz at the Philharmonic" fame is furious at Houston, Texas for the way they treated his anti-segregated policy for audiences. Grant charges that Houston's leading stores refused to handle tickets for the two engagement shows unless he relented on his demand for a non-segregated audience.

He had to get a local record shop to sell tickets and they couldn't produce in so short a time. Only the second show was reasonably up to standard by being three quarters full. Grant says he will never return to Houston again until the town "changes some of its peculiar ideas about people."

Carrie Ford, Paris Texas, niece, Chicago, Illinois, and other relatives. Services were held two o'clock Wednesday afternoon, October 10th from the Zion Baptist Church with the Rev. F. C. Williams officiating. Roosevelt Post No. 30 was in charge of the Almeria Legion rites, the Episcopalian burial services were at 7:00 p.m. with Father F. Wilde officiating. The body was forwarded Thursday morning from Thomas Funeral Home to Paris, Texas for services. Saturday afternoon and burial in the family plot. Arrangements by the Thomas Mortuary.

E. W. Killingsworth

Mr. Edward William Killingsworth, 64 years, 2203 Lothrop Street, passed away Saturday afternoon October 6th at a local hospital after an extended illness.

Mr. Killingsworth had been a resident of Omaha forty seven years. He was a Veteran of World War One and was a Past Commander of Roosevelt Post No. 30 American Legion, member of St. Philip's Episcopal Church, Rough Ashler Lodge No. 1, F. & A.M. (PHA) Norman Ross, W. M. and various civic organizations.

For thirty nine years he was one of the owners of the Killingsworth and Price Barber Shop, the oldest barber partnership in the state.

Mr. Killingsworth is survived by his wife, Mrs. Ethel Killingsworth, brother, Mr. Elisha Killingsworth, Omaha; sister, Mrs.

tion of other human rights and eventually, unless the process is reversed, to a form of totalitarianism," as demonstrated by the history of nazism, facism and communism.

"There is no law which says that any individual or any government has to agree with the strategy of the NAACP," Msgr. Higgins asserts. "But there is a law—the very law of nature itself—which states imperiously that no power on earth has the right to legislate a voluntary organization out of existence unless, of course, in the words of Leo XIII, the organization in question is professedly seeking an objective which is clearly at variance with good morals, with justice, or with the welfare of the state."

It need hardly be pointed out that Leo XIII and his successors would not concede that the NAACP is such an organization. On the contrary, the NAACP is professedly seeking an objective which is in complete harmony with Christian social teaching as interpreted by Leo and his successors, namely, equal rights for colored people in the civic and political order."

Citing the attacks upon the Association since the United States Supreme Court anti-segregation ruling of May 17, 1954, Msgr. Higgins charges that "those states which are trying to outlaw the organization by administrative ruling or by legislative fiat are clearly violating one of the most fundamental principles of the natural law in the field of political action. That principle," he asserts, "is the freedom of association, which is given to men not by government but by the very law of nature itself and which may not legitimately be taken away from them by government."

The Catholic leader, who is director of the social action department of the NCWC warns "that any government which violates this principle of freedom of association—for whatever reasons of political expediency or local prejudice—is taking the first step down the road that leads all too quickly to the viola-

Negro Father and Son Share-Crop 1000 Acres

A colored farmer and one of his sons, who are farming as partners, are meeting their need for more land in a tight land area, where many small operators are giving up, by sharecropping the farms of some of their neighbors, reports State Agent Ross W. Newsome of the Virginia Extension Service.

The father and son are Horace Miller, Sr., and Horace, Jr., of Earlyville, Va., who have established a reputation for sound farming practices and good business management. As a result, they have been able to hang on and improve their position in the Charlottesville area where the number of Negro farmers has declined by more than 50 percent within the past 10 years.

Following the war, he worked with a railroad maintenance crew, sharecropped and worked on a farm by the day, gradually saving up enough to make the down-payment on a 21-acre farm. After paying out, he and Mrs. Miller started buying 136 acres more. But they ran into trouble with low prices, and he had to take a job in town to help pay the notes.

Their farm and modern home now have been debt-free for years. Horace, Jr., who is 33, lives next door with his wife and children. He has 10 brothers and sisters, but most of them are away. He just returned to the farm himself two years ago after five years in the armed services and 10 in Pittsburgh steel mills.

The Millers would like to buy more land to piece out their farm into two family-sized units, says Mr. Newsome. But good land for sale is hard to find in the area. Nevertheless, the Millers are keeping their eyes open for a good buy, while continuing to make the most of their sharecropping arrangement.

As partners, the Millers work together with the older man doing most of the managing and planning, while the younger one does most of the physical work. But during the busy seasons, each operates a tractor—their own and one they borrow. And they also exchange labor and the
