Eisenhower Speaks With Confidence

WASHINGTON

Following is a stenographic transcript of President Eisenhower's remarks to a Republican victory rally here early on November 7:

Mr. Chairman, Mr. Vice President, my very good friends in this audience and everywhere in the United States to whatever areas my voice reaches:

This is a solemn moment. The only thing I should like to say about this campaign is this: It is a very heart-warming experience to know that your labors—your efforts—of four years have achieved that level where they are approved by the United States of America in a vote.

Such a vote as that cannot be merely for an individual, it is for principles and ideals for which that individual and his associates have stood and have tried to exemplify.

To all the people of the United States who have understood what the administration—the Republican Party—has been trying to do in these past four years, and consequently have worked so hard for the reelection of that administration, my most grateful thanks.

The only thing I can say to all the people—all the Americans who have voted that ticket which puts us back into the same positions of responsibility—I can only say, it is our earnest prayer that nothing we can ever do—or shall do—will betray that trust.

And now let me say something that looks to the future: I think that modern Republicanism has now proved itself. And America has approved of modern Republicanism.

And so, as we look ahead—as we look ahead to the problems in front, let us remember that a political party deserves the approbation of America only as it represents the ideals, the aspirations and the hopes of Americans. If it is anything less, it is merely a conspiracy to seize power, and the Republican Party is not that!

Modern Republicanism looks to the future. Which means it looks to that area—that time in which our young are most interested. And this means that it will gain constantly new recruits from the youngest of our voters. And as such, as long as it remains true to the ideals and the aspirations of America, it will continue to increase in power and influence for decades to come. It will point the way to peace among nations, standards here at home in which everybody will share, regardless and to prosperity—advancing of any accident of power, of station, of race, religion, or color.

And if we cling to these ideals, if we uphold them, if we fight for them, then I say: Republicans deserve, then, the vote of confidence that Republicans, friendly Democrats, and independents, have given us this day.

My friends, I conclude with a pledge: With whatever talents the good God has given me, with whatever strength there is within me, I will continue—and so will my associates—to do just one thing; to work for 108 million Americans here at home—and for peace in the world.

The Last Word

By Elizabeth Davis Pittman

—figures such as President "Ike" Eisenhower, with whom Clark attended West Point, and Mamie, General George Marshall, Madame Chiang-Kai-shek, Mrs. Syngman Rhee and others.

She is quite taken up with her children and their lives through a great part of the book and describes their mischievous pranks and great adventures. This is the story of a closely knit family who were "true Army" until the General's retirement after the Korean War, when he signed the only American truce ever negotiated without victory, an action he debated endlessly before taking the step. A story telling of a great, wise and kind man, and his family, it is well worth the reading.

The Last Word

By Elizabeth Davis Pittman

Many generations ago the Pilgrims set foot on these shores and suffered tragedies and hardships the like of which we do not know today. They struggled for bare survival and learned how to live together. Throughout all this they had to have an abiding faith in God. Their triumph over the wilderness in which they found themselves would have been impossible without belief in their Divine Protector.

In commemoration of their landing, one year later they set aside a day for prayer and thanksgiving. They wished to thank God for guiding them in their decisions, for protecting them in their ignorance. So this holiday has come down to us as a time for giving thanks to God for His goodness and for the continued health of our families.

We must look into the past to thank those people who came before us for carrying a light strong enough to guide us in these modern times.

We take time out from our busy routine during this season to attend church and thank God in his infinite grace and wisdom and to wish well to our fellow man.

Highway Program Is Starting

— Reynolds Knight —

NEW YORK, November 12 — The $33-billion federal-state highway program is starting out at a moderate pace. So far 107 projects, to cost around $100 million, have been awarded. Another forty projects, to cost perhaps $120 million, have been cleared for bidding later this month.

Affected so far are only 276 miles of highways in 31 states. As might be expected, these are mainly bottleneck projects which the states concerned had been hoping to get at for some time. Approached and the like, not coming under the federal aid program, account for some of the total. Thus the federal ratio of spending will be lower than the nine-to-one approved by Congress; federal funds of $76 million and state monies of $24 million will be spent.

The slow start should not minimize in anyone's mind the immense changes this program will make in the transportation map of the country. Routes for the system have been agreed upon, at least tentatively. The small main links in the interstate "housekeeping" projects, like the ones now being approved, will be out of the way in a year or so.

Many personal opportunities and personal tragedies—lie ahead as the main route takes shape. There will be need for new motels, new truck stops, certainly new gravel pits and similar roadbuilding auxiliary industries. On the other hand, some established

Dr. Bunche Key Figure Middle East

New York. (CNS) . . . As the United Nations sought to implement its "immediate cease-fire" directive to Britain, France, Egypt and Israel in the Middle East war, UN Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold once again appointed Dr. Ralph Bunche to a key spot in the area he is so familiar with. Dr. Bunche was named to a three-man watchdog committee to report on the situation directly to Hammarskjold. Others on the committee include UN Undersecretaries Elya Tchernychev of Russia and Constantin Stavropoulos of Greece.
