MR. WHITNEY'S OARDEN.

coated in New York City, It is Worth a Million Dollars.

A picturesque lawn is that of Willam C. Whitney in New York city. Here the work of years is shown, and he tail columns and gables alongside ire wreathed in vines. These are durng June a vivid green; and of such small even leaf that the like is not tnown in New York-not even upon old Frinity, whose vines were brought rom abroad by William Astor. The Whitney garden runs alongside the couse and covers an immensely valuble plot of ground. Here there could sasily be a double apartment house rected, with rents as enormous as hose of the flat house a little further west where William D. Howells lives. But Mr. Whitney will not build. Heoves that city garden, and so do his children love it. One of its principal 'eatures is a snug dog kennel, covered with ivy. Almost every day during fune you may see Mr. Whitney, always listinguished with eyeglasses and polshed from boot to beaver, standing in ront of his $1,000,000 garden, admiring t. Sometimes his daughter joins him, and here the two stand and talk, seemspending their happiest outdoor monents. From the upper window of the ine-covered gable of William C. Whitrey's house may be seen the city garlen of- John D. Rockefeller, three iquares below. This is No. 4 West 54th street, just out of Fifth avenue, but so near if that none of the value is lost. in fact, Mr. Rockefeller selected this spot a door away from "Croesus" street secause he could see up and down the avenue without having all its publicity. The lawn, which he laid out, is the most ocautiful one in the city from an aristle standpoint. The Rockefeller louse is a large square one, very deep. and alongside it, running nearly fully three bouse lots in extent, is the city garden. A tall iron fence screens it a dittle, but the tall paims tower above, and from the gardens grow flowering vines upon arbors and house walls. Now the wistoria is just dying off, but the summer ivy is bright green, and there are yards and yards of honeysuckles.

The Bievele Industry.

It is estimated that last year (1894) over 200,000 wheels were manufactured precincts will attend to calling cau- by the different companies engaged in cuses in their respective precincts their production. This year, with at such time and place as may in their greatly increased facilities and improved machinery, together with a large It will also be the duty of this increase in the number of producers, convention to select a county central the product will reach in the neighborcommittee and a chairman thereof for | 100d of 400,000 wheels. What it will be lext year can only be guessed at, as this year's business has been dwarfed and held in check by a positive inability to supply the unparalleled demand for wheels of every description. New factories contemplate entering this seducive business; additions are being built to old factories, almost equal to the original plant, stocked with the most inricate and "up-to-date" machinery, Queen Wilhelmins's Autograph.

When young Queen Wilhelmina vissted the other day the marvelous vaults at Maestricht, which are one of the sights of the place, she was requested by the authorities to inscribe her name upon a marble slab in the wall, which bears the signatures of many other sovereigns, Dutch and foreign, prominent among them the autograph of the first Nepoleon. Just at the very moment when she was about to comply with the request three tiny gnomes sprang out from behind a pillar and exclatmed. in accordance with time-honored cus-"Who are you that dares add tom: your name to that of William the Silent and of many illustrious rulers of the Netherlands?" Queen Withelmina, who had been prepared for this little piece of pantomime, replied: "I am the daughter of this King William III., whose signature you see here, and his successor to the throne of Holland," whereupon the gnomes - three small boys dressed up for the occasion-bowed low, received some coin, and retired.

She Cut the Cord.

She Cut the Cord. Among the many anecdotes told of that famous Italian contraito, Mme, Al-boni, is one which, reading like fletion, is nevertheless perfectly true. About twenty-five years ago at a state concert at Buckingham palace. Mme, Albont was communied to appear. And ap-pear she did, and sang exquisitely. As she turned to go after her last aria she slipped her hand into her pocket and drew forth a pair of scissors, shirp and new. Bending down she quickly snip-ped the cope which separated the ar-tists from the audience. "I hare dome it," she whispered triumphantly to a friend, and escaped as gracefully as might be. Mme, Alboni, I need scarce-by add, had republican tendencies... Lady Mary, in the Woman at Home. Lady Mary, in the Woman at Home. Lady Mary, in the Woman at Home. Mark Bending to Ocean Greyhounds.
