The dainty little French performer on a vandeville stage was drawing a the towers and battlements of an oriental town in the background. It was a night scene, and the moon was full and cept a woman well in the front of the theater. She saw it with her eye, but her imperfectly constituted brain didn's see that the lines on the board represented anything.

"Do you see the ship now?" asked ber impatient husband. "It must be night," she said,

"Of course it's night. Don't you see "What is that white stn? in the rear?" she asked, referring to the oriental city. "Dear me," said her husband, "you are like the fool that can't see the man in the moon, only worse. "Any way, he's a bandsome man," oursued the female. "Do you suppose he's 45 or 83?" "Don't you see the ship and the city now?" parsisted the husband. "I see something that locks like cheese," she admitted, but at the look of despair on her partner's face she added: "Oh, yes, now I do see it all. How stupid I was. How pretty and clever it is, to be sure. He's a handsome fellow, and well dressed. Shall we go home, dear, or see what the next act is?" Without answering her husband arose and helped her on with her coat, and they left the theater, together in body, but widely, widely, separated in spirit.

He Was at Home.

When Mr. Felix Mahoney was a special pension examiner, he bad a bit of an experience which deserves a place in the singular coincidence list. It happened up in Connecticut. Mr. Mahoney and a temporary hireling of his were re-location of the county seat of of pure water and good range for driving along a country read in a sleigh, when in a snow filled cut the conveyance broke down. In the field beside the road Mr. Mahoney caught sight of Apply, to V. HAJEK, owner, a man's bead. He lifted up his voice and called to the man. The head rose slowly, higher and higher, till its owner's entire figure was revealed, as he climbed out of a grave he had been digging.

"Where does Jim Smith live?" roared

Mr. Mahoney. "Hey?" said the gravedigger, for of course he was deaf. You never heard of a gravedigger in a story who wasn't.

"Where goes Jim Smith live?" roared the pension examiner again, fortissimo. The gravedigger pointed to the near-"Well," said he, "that's his house over there.' "Is he at home?" bellowed Mr. Ma-"Oh, yes," said the gravedigger.

"He's at home. I'm just digging his Coal In the Transvani. In one colliery not half a dozen miles frem the gold mines I have seen a seam of conl 70 feet in thickness. This coal, though of a low quality, suffices for the gated; splendid well will supply purposes of the gold mines, and there prise, Cesar rose to his feet, glauced is a sufficient quantity of it to outlast far the lives of all the gold miners. Besides these coal deposits near the gold-27 head of cattle, 10 young fields and those others by the Vani river, which furnish coal for the railway system far down into Cape Colony, there are literally hundreds, perhaps even a thousand, square mileaof coal in the Middleberg and Ermelo districts lying between Pretoria and Delagoa Bay. In the midst of these coal beds is the onterop of lion ore, and running through them is the lately constructed railway to Delagea Bay. With these Will also offer a lot of farm vast coalfields close to a first rate port on the Indian ocean the prospects of the coal mining industry seem brilliant .-"South Africa Today," Younghusband.

The Bicycle Fiend. "One most obtrusive unpleasantness in the conversation of the bicycle fiend, " observed a nonbicyclist, "is his habit of personally appropriating every part and particle of his machine. It is apparently not enough that he should possess the bicycle in its entirety, but also in detail. 'My wheel,' when uttered two or three times to every sentence, is bad enough, but when it comes to 'my saddle, ' 'my tires, ' 'my valves, ' 'my handle bar' and so forth, the effect is both irritating and irrational. I once heard a man discourse for hours upon 'my inner tube.' Being then not so erudite npon the thing as I am now, I had the greatest difficulty in determining what he meant. From the viewpoint of him who does not ride, the possessive case is nowhere so overworked as in the conversation of the bicycle fiend."-New York Sun.

President Kruger on Office Sceking. A good story of President Kruger is told in an article on "Mining and Politics In the Transvaal," in The National Review. Some of the president's young relations applied to him for office. He considered awhile and said, "I can do nothing, for the high offices of the state are in firm bands and for little clerkships you are too stupid."

TIGER AND BULL.

A Fierce Battle, In Which the Tiger Was Radly Beaten.

The Paris letter of the London Post gives details of an extraordinary entertainment given at the Plaza de Madrid in the presence of 1,300 spectators. This was a combat between a royal Bengal tiger and an Andalusian fighting ball The tiger, Cesar, was a full grown brute belonging to Spessardi, the trainer, who had never been able to do anything with it and had, indeed, once nearly fallen a victim to its ferocity. He sold it for 6,000 francs to the director

A cage 17 yards square by 4 in height had been exected in the middle of the arena, and the animals were brought on in vans, the bull being the first to be released into the inclosure. The brute immediately began to run round and round his prison, bellowing and throwing up sand and gravel with his hoofs.

The instant the tiger entered the cage he gave a roar and bounded on the bull, avoiding the horns, and fixed on his flanks and belly with both teeth and claws. The bull remained still for a few seconds, and then seemed to be sinking backward to the ground. The spectators thought that all was over, but the tiger let go for a second to take another hold, and in the brief interval was kicked over by the wild plunges of the bull. Before the tiger had time to recover the bull was on him, and, sinking his borns into the striped hide, it tossed the tiger into the air. This was repeated four or five times, the buil varying his tactics occasionally by banging his adversary against the bars. When the bull stopped, the tiger lay limp on the ground, and the crowd, thinking he was dead, cried, "Bravo,

The bull stood stamping for a moment in the middle of the cage, and then, seeing the tiger did not move, approached and smelled him. But Cesar was only shamming death and seized the bull's muzzle in his powerful jaws so the animal could not move. Eventnally, however, he was released, and after stamping furiously on the tiger again caught him on his horns. This time the tossing, stamping and banging apparently really ended in Cesar's death. The eage was then opened and the bull rushed out and back to his stable. For precaution's sake the tiger's van was brought up, and, to the general surround as if afraid the ball was still there, and then bounded into the van. The tiger was found to have five ribs broken, besides having a number of wounds from the bull's horns. It is said that all wild animals-bears, lions, panthers and tigers-fare badly in combat with the Spanish fighting bull. Man and the elephant are the only sure victors over these active and ferocious Enelly Enough.

Here is a Sioux City (Ia.) Sunday school story;

They were studying in the catechism about the wonderful greatness and power of God. "Can God do everything?" asked the tencher. It was generally admitted that he could. Then the teacher rather mischievously propounded a stickler perhaps as a test of faith. "Could God make two and two equal five?" he asked. The query rather startled the little girls in the class, and their faces took on a worried, puzzled expression. They had never thought of such a thing as that, and it looked as if their faith was wavering. The teacher waited with a rather amused smile on his face. Then up shot a little hand. "Well," asked the teacher, "what do you think about it?" "Yes, sir, he can," was the prompt and certain response. Now it was the teacher's turn to look surprised. "Well, how can God make two and two equal five?" "By adding one," was the triumphant answer, and the mischievous teacher couldn't dispute it. - Sioux City Journal.

How It Happened. "Look here, young man," said the druggist. The clerk did not have to be told that he had made a mistake. He knew it long before. Indeed he had figured it out for himself and was able to tell just how it happened. "You have charged only 75 cents for this prescription," asserted the druggist, "and the regular price is $1."

"I admit it," said the clerk. "The fact is I was rattled. You see, I made a hasty calculation as to the cost of the ingredients, and the result was 3 centr fustead of 4 as it should have been. That is how it happened."-Chicage
