The mystery of our pronounced and unequal success is not because we are gifted with any supernatural qualifications, nor is it due to our liberal advertising; not in our "system" nor in our ability to convince people that black is white when it isn't.

The explanation is very simple. The position we have acquired as the leading and most successful Dry Goods house is only due to the fact that we give the BEST article at the LOWEST POSSIBLE PRICE, and doing so enables us to hold our custom. Best LL Muslin always in stock at 3c to customers only; other prices according.

At a special meeting of the board Monday the resignation was accepted, and I. A. Reneau was appointed to fill the vacancy. The board has started out with the laudable ambition of keeping the expense down as near the income as possible.

As soon as an attraction is booked at the Opra House it is the customary question for the public to ask: "How many are there in the company?" The question that should be asked is: "Who are the actors or artists, and are they good?" It only requires a moment's reflection to realize that no manager can carry a company of ten, fifteen or twenty artists and have them all first class, for good artists not only demand a large salary but insist on its being paid. Mr. Heywood believes that the general public prefer to see six or eight first-class city artists to a whole stage full of "Barnstormers" and has surrounded himself with artists as fine in their respective lines as Haywood is in his. The result is a performance that from rise to fall of curtain is full of pure fresh fun, popular music, entertaining specialties and beautiful women. This attraction is to appear here on the evening of May 31.

Claude Pickett, of the Third Nebraska volunteer regiment, returned Monday night from Cuba, having been discharged with the rest of his regiment. While he did not have an opportunity to engage in battle during his experience at soldiering, he learned something about camp life and guard duty, which he will probably never forget. Then one of the most consoling thoughts in connection with the trip will be the consciousness, when he has grown old, that he was one of the number who gave his services to his country in defense of her honor.

Prof. Sofield, who was arrested on complaint, on the charge of violating the law relating to the practice of medicine, had his preliminary trial last Friday. The law which he is charged with violating provides that: "It shall be the duty of all persons intending to practice medicine, surgery or obstetrics in the state of Nebraska, before beginning the practice thereof in any branch thereof, to present his diploma to the state medical board, together with his affidavit, that he is a lawful possessor of the same; that he has attended the full course of study required for the degree of M. D., and that he is the person therein named." Upon complying with the above, the law provides that the state board shall issue the applicant a certificate, signed by its secretaries, stating such fact, and that "it shall be the duty of the applicant before practicing, to file such certificate or copy thereof, in the office of the county clerk of the county in which he intends to practice." A number of witnesses were called to prove that Sofield had been treating patients by the "magnetic" process, and that he had received pay therefor. Clerk Richtmyer was called to prove that the said Sofield had not filed a certificate, as required by law. The defendant did not attempt to prove to the contrary, but rested his case upon the plea of his attorneys that his practice did not come under the meaning of the law, and that he was not guilty. The court held that under the interpretation given the law by the higher courts that there was probable cause for action, and bound the defendant over to the district court in the sum of $300, which he gave. Attorneys Gatterson and Camereu appeared for the defendant and L. E. Kirkpatrick for the state.

and the betterment of the condition of a portion of the human family. He reports having fared well while he was gone, and especially after they reached Cuba. Last summer he says the fresh beef furnished them was not in as good condition as he would expect had he been at home, but the climate, and not the government, was to blame for its condition. The weather was so warm that it was difficult to keep it fresh. In speaking of Col. Bryan resigning and coming home, he said some of the boys were very much put out, others thought it was all right. But he, with a large per cent of the regiment, were glad of it, as his successor, Col. Vifquain, was much more competent to fill the position, besides he knew what the boys needed, and more than that he knew how to get it. In the ten months the regiment was out, he says they lost thirty while in the United States, by sickness in seven months, and only two during the three months they were in Cuba. His regiment was six days on the water returning, and five days in quarantine. They were detained two days at Dr. Tortugas, where they were intending to land, but were prevented by the high seas. Claude is looking hearty and has a soldierly appearance. He claims to be only nine pounds lighter than when he left.
