

Mr. Bryan Comes to Iowa

Tomorrow night W. J. Bryan of Nebraska, standing candidate for president of the United States will deliver his set speech in the new auditorium at Des Moines to an audience drawn from all parts of the state.

Iowa is a mighty poor field for Bryan and his propagandum of calamity and reactionarism. The 56,000 square miles which make up this imperial state is the best contiguous body of land of equal area anywhere upon the surface of the earth. There is a school house upon every square mile of it. A majority of the people own the homes in which they live, and the farms which they till. Some of them are in debt, but their notes and mortgages which are as yet uncancelled, are evidences of thrift rather than evidences of distress.

In all its history this state has never shown any tendency towards the doctrines which Mr. Bryan stands for. Occasionally in years of distress and once in a while by accident a populist has been elected to congress. But the state as a whole has never endorsed a single principle for which Mr. Bryan stands.

Affairs are unusually unpropitious for him at this particular time. The state is out of debt and has a surplus in the treasury. The crops already harvested have been bounteous, while the outlook for an immense yield of the great staple corn was never better than it is today. In national politics, by reason of the strength and ability of the republican senators and representatives in congress who represent this commonwealth at Washington, the state of Iowa is without a peer. What possible use can the people of Iowa have, under these circumstances, for the doctrines of Mr. Bryan?

He will tell his audience that under the gold standard, it is impossible for the people to be generally prosperous. The inhabitants of this state know better through their own experience. He will tell his audience that there is in this country a great army of unemployed men when everybody who has looked about him knows that men are not seeking jobs in this state, but that jobs are seeking men. And he will tell this intelligent and patriotic people which is represented in the Philippines by a brave regiment of splendid troops that the cause for which these men have fought, is an ignoble one. Will he be believed? Not for one moment. His auditors may applaud his sentiments from first to last, but they in no wise represent the citizenship of this state. They never have represented it, and they never will. Bryanism or anything akin to it is barred from this state. You can no more cultivate it here than you can grow palms in Greenland.—An Iowa Exchange.

County Fair Notes

The date—October 3d, 4th, 5th and 6th.
The fact that the fair is held later this year than usual, is most favorable to grand display of corn and garden truck. Last year the general opinion was, that the middle of September was about two weeks too early. This year it is held the first week in October.

Just seventeen theatrical companies have made applications for the Broken Bow opera house during fair week. The public will be pleased to learn that the Redmond Company, which gave such good satisfaction last year, will play the fair date again this year.

Premium lists of the fair may be had by writing the secretary at Broken Bow. They will also be placed in every post-office and nearly every business house in the county. Ask your merchant for one. The book contains $3,500 of premiums, purses and attractions.

The management of the fair is making an effort this year to have the exhibit of grains and garden produce largely increased from what it ever has been before. Good premiums are offered in this department, and every farmer who attends the fair should take enough interest in this display to have on exhibition at least a half dozen of his finest specimens.

The speed program for the day is out, and it gives a list of eighteen racing events, in which nearly $1,500 is offered. The list contains three races of $150 each; three of $100 each, and four of $75 each. A new feature in horse racing is the hurdle race, in which there will be not less than eight starters. The horses are to leap over hurdles three feet in height. Six racing events are booked for each day, and it is expected that fully 100 fast horses will be in Broken Bow during fair week.

In addition to the splendid race program, the fair this year will have two attractions, which alone will be worth the price of admission. Prof. Hardy, the champion rifle shot, has been secured at a heavy expense, and he will give daily exhibitions in front of the grand stand between racing heats. He is positively the greatest rifle shot on earth. He shoots pentules in the air, cuts a card edgeways with a bullet, shoots objects out of hand with sights tied up; shoots ashes off cigar in mouth of another person, while standing on his head, and does a hundred other feats fully as difficult. His exhibition is in open air and is free.

Another attraction which the fair has secured, is Prof. Ellis, positively one of the best and most daring highwire and trapeze performers known. He will perform in front of the grand stand between racing heats each day. His feats are truly marvelous, and this alone will pay anyone to go miles to see. Both of the attractions above named will be free to everyone on the fair grounds.

The Rev. W. B. Costley, of Stockbridge, Ga., while attending to his pastoral duties at Ellenwood, that state was attacked by cholera morbus. He says: By chance I happened to get hold of a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and I think it was the means of saving my life. It relieved me at once." It is the only remedy that makes labor short and delivery easy. It is the only remedy that puts the breasts in condition so that swelling or rising is impossible. Don't take medicines internally. About one month ago my child which is fifteen months old, had an attack of diarrhoea accompanied by vomiting. I gave it such remedies as are usually given in such cases, but as nothing gave relief, we sent for a physician and it was under his care for about ten days and was having about twenty-five operations every twelve hours, and we were convinced that unless it soon obtained relief it would not live. Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy was recommended, and I decided to try it. I soon noticed a change for the better; by its continued use a complete cure was brought about and it is now perfectly healthy.—C. L. Boggs, Stumptown, Gilmer Co., W. Va. For sale by all Druggists.
