YOU MAY SEE

—out on the world in a new way with my glasses. What you have seen may be only a hint of what you MAY see. "Seeing a thing with your own eyes" is not always conclusive evidence that you see correctly. You see through a window, but the glass may be imperfect or the window soiled. You see with your eyes, but their refractive power may be faulty; thus you see a bit what you might with properly adjusted glasses—my kind. My business is to remedy eye defects which if neglected may prove serious.

REPUBLICAN CAMPAIGN OPENED.

Mrs. Mary Ellen Lease Proves a Drawing Card.

Bryan's False Prophecies Four Years Ago Contrasted with Present Conditions.

Mrs. Mary Ellen Lease opened the republican campaign in the city Monday night, with an eloquent address to an immense audience at the opera house. The meeting was advertised for the court house, where J. B. Weaver spoke to an audience of 132 recently. But before half the people who were clamoring for entrance could get in, the court house was crowded, and Chairman Royse adjourned the meeting to the North Side opera house, where fully 600 people assembled, filling the hall and side-rooms to hear the famous woman campaign orator. Several of the audience had come twenty or thirty miles. The attendance was remarkable, considering the short space of time it had been advertised, and exceeded the expectations of the most sanguine.

Mrs. Lease spoke for over an hour in a clear and forcible voice, and was clearly heard in every part of the hall. Fully twenty ladies occupied the rostrum with her. Her arraignment of the democratic party was most severe, and a reminder of the palmy days of populism, when they and the democrats would score the republicans. She was especially hard on Adlai Stevenson, whose record she reviewed without restraint. She made a strong appeal to populists, of which she claims the honor of having been a leader, to forsake copperheadism, and join with the party of prosperity and progress, which has always been loyal to the Union and against human slavery of the negro in the south, as well as in the Philippine Islands.

When she related the story of her father and two brothers who died on southern battle fields, in defense of the Union, those who had criticized her sincerity felt that she had given ample reason for refusing to follow her party, where southern democracy and the leaders in the Tammany ice and cotton trusts would dictate her political policy. She related instances of

Gen. Weaver and his wife being shamefully treated and pelted with rotten eggs in the south, when campaigning there as a populist, while she accompanied him, and charged that those same people are now supporters of Bryan and Stevenson, and are now asking populists to join them. Her eulogy of President McKinley and of the masterly manner in which he had handled the intricate questions of the times was most heartily applauded by the vast audience.

In an able way she showed up the inconsistencies of W. J. Bryan since his advent into public life, and did not forget to mention his brilliant army record, in which, after receiving an officer's commission, he enlisted in the army, and resigned to keep from going into their active service.

In discussing the financial issues, she referred to Bryan's prophecies, showing him up a dismal failure as a statesman and prophet, while upon the other hand the republican party had proved its theories correct, and that every step towards prosperity, progress and good government that has been made in the nation for the past forty years have been made by the republican party. She stated that although Bryan had prophesied in 1896 "that in case McKinley was elected and the republican party was restored to power, our imports would exceed our exports, and general disaster, poverty and misery would be increased, that the reverse was true, and that government statistics show that in the past three years what we have sold exceeds what we have bought $483,000,000. And during the previous 107 years our exports only amounted to $333,000,000, but during the past three years our exports have exceeded that of the 107 years previous $1,100,000,000. Mrs. Lease was highly pleased over the immense audience that greeted her here, and the cordial treatment she received in Broken Bow.

A Sommers, of Merna, was a welcome caller at this office Saturday.

Thomas Smith of Eudell is building a frame house on his property in this city just south of the M. E. Church.

Mrs. T. W. Bass and little girl will go to Grand Island next week and will be gone two or three weeks visiting there and Wood river with relatives and friends.

No inferior or impure ingredients are used in Royal for the purpose of cheapening its cost; only the most highly refined and healthful.

Royal Baking Powder imparts that peculiar sweetness, flavor and delicacy noticed in the finest cake, biscuit, rolls, etc., which expert pastry cooks declare is unobtainable by the use of any other leavening agent.

Alum is used in making cheap baking powders. If you want to know the effect of alum upon the tender linings of the stomach, touch a piece to your tongue. You can raise biscuit with alum baking powder, but at what a cost to health!

Governor Roosevelt.

Will be at Broken Bow Wednesday morning Oct. 3, at 8 o'clock sharp. He will speak at the depot not to exceed 30 minutes. Hon. John L. Webster Nebraska's noted orator will speak in the afternoon. Every one who can should be present.

Senator Dolliver of Iowa and other prominent speakers will also address the people.

A. A. Collom, of Lomax, has bought the grocery and confectionary store of A. Wallace. He has ordered a fresh stock of groceries and expects to have them on, ready to reopen the store again about the first of October. Mr. Collom is not a stranger in Broken Bow. He put the first bakery in the town in 1886 and afterwards had a grocery store in the building where the Stack Bros. are located. The REPUBLICAN extends to him a welcome and bespeaks for him a liberal share of trade.

Woman Suffrage Convention.

Miss Laura B. Gregg's meeting Saturday night, under the auspices of the equality club, proved to be one of the most interesting features of the woman suffrage convention held that day. It was on the plan of a question box and answers. A number of questions were handed in, bearing on the suffrage movement, many of them on criticisms made against woman suffrage. Miss Gregg proved equal to the occasion, and the fair and intelligent manner in which she handled the questions submitted, not only raised her in the estimation of the audience, but made friends for her cause. Miss Julia Willis was elected president of the county organization, Miss Nellie Taylor, recording secretary; Mrs. D. V. McKinney, corresponding secretary; Mrs. C. H. Jeffords, treasurer; Miss Ellen Covey, manager of press bureau; auditors, Meadames M. E. Thompson and L. McCandless.
