Pen Picture for Women.
 "I am so nervous, there is not a well inch in my whole body. I am so weak at my stomach and have indigestion, and palpitation of the heart, and I am losing flesh. This headache and backache nearly kills me, and yesterday I nearly had hysterics; there is a weight in the lower part of my bowels bearing down all the time, and pains in my groins and thighs; I cannot sleep, walk, or sit, and I believe I am diseased all over; no one ever suffered as I do."
 This is a description of thousands of cases which come to Mrs. Pinkham's attention daily. An inflamed and ulcerated condition of the neck of the womb can produce all of these symptoms, and no woman should allow herself to reach such a perfection of misery when there is absolutely no need of it. The subject of our portrait in this sketch, Mrs. Williams of Englishtown, N. J., has been entirely cured of such illness and misery by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and the guiding advice of Mrs. Pinkham of Lynn, Mass.

 No other medicine has such a record for absolute cures, and no other medicine is "just as good." Women who want a cure should insist upon getting Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound when they ask for it at a store. Anyway, write a letter to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., and tell her all your troubles. Her advice is free.

Anxious About Wanamaker.

Several life insurance companies are watching with great interest for daily news of John Wanamaker's condition. The ex-postmaster general has over a million on his life, and is probably the most heavily insured person in the country. He has just undergone a surgical operation for the removal of a carbuncle and has not quite recovered, notwithstanding which he made campaign speeches. Love to a woman is a thrill; to a man it is a throb.

GRATEFUL FOR KINDNESS.

How an Indian Rewarded a Man Who Rendered Him a Service.

President Dwight of Yale college, tells a good story of Indian wit and friendship. In the early days of Litchfield, Conn., an Indian called at the tavern and asked the landlady for food, frankly stating that he had no money with which to pay for it. She refused him harshly, but a white man who stood by, noted the red man's half-famished state, and offered to pay for his supper. The meal was furnished and the Indian, his hunger satisfied, returned to the fire and told his benefactor a story. "You know the Bible?" said the red-skin. The man assented. "Well," said the Indian, "the Bible says God made the world, and then he took him and look at him and say, 'He good, very good.' He made light, and he took him and look at him and say, 'He good, very good.' Then he made dry land and water and sun and moon and grass and trees, and took him and look at him and say, 'He good, very good.' Then he made beasts and birds and fishes, and took him and look at him and say, 'He good, very good.' Then he made a man and took him and look at him and say, 'He good, very good.' Then he made a woman, and took him and look at him, and he no dare say one such word!" That last conclusion was uttered with a meaning glance at the landlady. Some years after this occurrence, the man who paid for the Indian's supper was captured by redskins and carried to Canada, where he was made to work like a slave. One day an Indian came to him, recalled to his mind the occurrence at the Litchfield tavern, and ended by saying: "I am that Indian. Now my turn pay. I see you home. Come with me." And the redskin guided the man back to Litchfield.—Chicago Chronicle.

NEGRO ORATORS.

Their Absence from This Campaign a Notable Feature.

In no previous national political campaign, writes Fannie B. Williams, has the negro orator been so little in demand as in the present one. There is something quite interesting and significant in the waning influence of the negro as a spellbinder. In the earlier days of freedom, when the cause of the newly enfranchised people was a subject of popular interest, the gifted men of the race formed a striking and interesting feature in the political campaigns and were to be heard in every part of the north. The great Frederick Douglass was one of the stars in the firmament of spellbinders. His noble personality and rare eloquence gave an added interest and zest to the campaigns. Mr. Douglass' prestige made the negro's cause important in every political contest, and his counsel was always sought and respected. But Mr. Douglass was not alone. There were several colored men in Congress and many others holding important federal positions in the southern states who were men of much eloquence and effectiveness on the political stump. Prominent among them were Prof. Langston, John R. Lynch, ex-Gov. Pinchback, of Louisiana, and the late Senator Bruce. All these men were immensely popular, much in demand and were justly valued as adding strength and picturesque interest to the fighting forces of the republican party. Most of the orators of the early days have gone to their rest. John R. Lynch, now a paymaster in the United States army, and ex-Gov. Pinchback live in retirement and ease in Washington, and are about the only survivors of the post-bellum negro orator. They are still loyal to the Republican party, but they are seldom heard on the political hustings.

Buncoed Out of His Seat.

"In the matter of strategy a woman can get the better of a man every time, in minor affairs, at least," said a man who is in business down town, and who rides home in a West Philadelphia car during the rush hour every evening, says the Philadelphia Record. "I usually get a seat, for I take the car away down at Fourth street. The other evening I was busily reading my paper when a woman got aboard at Twelfth street. I glanced up slyly, and saw that all the seats were occupied. Hasty as my glance was she caught my eye and that was my finish. Smiling broadly, she came over to where I was sitting and exclaimed, 'Why, how do you do? How are all the folks?' I couldn't place the woman to save my life, but I lifted my hat and replied that we were all well. 'She must be some friend of the family,' I argued with myself, so I folded up my paper and gave her my seat. After she had settled herself comfortably she looked up at me in a queer sort of way and said: 'Really, I must beg your pardon. I took you for Mr. Jones. You look so much like him.' But she had the seat, and she kept it. It was a clear case of bunco."

Opening of French Hunting Season.

In France, one has to get an official permit to hunt, and the hunting season now having been opened by President Loubet at Rambouillet, nearly half a million permits have been granted. Times have changed since the last century, were forbidden to kill a rabbit under pain of death. The right of chase belonged to the privileged and those were so few that the country was overrun and the farmers were obliged to sit up at night to keep their crops from being devoured.

A Noted Knight Templar Owes His Health to Peruna

Colonel T. P. Moody, a prominent Knight Templar, is well known in every city in the United States west of Buffalo, N. Y., as a Jeweler's Auctioneer. In the city of Chicago as a prominent lodge man, being a member of the K. T.'s and also of the Masons. The cut shows Colonel Moody in the costume of the Oriental Consistory Masons, 32d degree.

Colonel T. P. Moody, of Chicago, had Catarrh Twenty-five Years and Was Cured by Peruna.

In a recent letter from 5500 Michigan avenue, Chicago, Ill., Mr. Moody says the following:

"For over twenty-five years I suffered from catarrh, and for over ten years I suffered from catarrh of the stomach terribly. I have taken all kinds of medicines and have been treated by all kinds of doctors, as thousands of my acquaintances are aware in different parts of the United States, where I have traveled, but the relief was only temporary, until a little over a year ago I started to take Peruna, and at the present time I am better than I have been for twenty years.

"The soreness has left my stomach entirely and I am free from indigestion and dyspepsia and will say to all who are troubled with catarrh or stomach trouble of any kind, don't put it off and suffer, but begin to take Peruna right away, and keep it up until you are cured, as you surely will be if you persevere."

"My wife, as many in the southwest can say, was troubled with a bad cough and bronchial trouble, and doctors all over the country gave her up to die, as they could do nothing more for her. She began taking Peruna with the result that she is better now than she has been in years, and her cough has almost left her entirely. The soreness has left her lungs and she is as well as she ever was in her life, with thanks, as she says, to Peruna. Yours very truly, T. P. Moody.

Catarrh in its various forms is rapidly becoming a general curse. An undoubted remedy has been discovered by Dr. Hartman. This remedy has been thoroughly tested during the past forty years. Prominent men have come to know of its virtues, and are making public utterances on the subject. To save the country we must save the people. To save the people we must protect them from disease. The disease that is at once the most prevalent and stubborn of cure is catarrh.

If one were to make a list of the different names that have been applied to catarrh in different locations and organs, the result would be as-
