I am thoroughly convinced that there are thousands of dollars of these taxes that can never be collected either by distress or otherwise, but which might have been, at the time they became delinquent. Therefore, to prevent a recurrence of this condition of affairs in the county, I would most earnestly recommend the collection of personal taxes as they become due:

Respectfully submitted, this 8th day of Jan. 1901. G. E. CARR.

I solemnly certify that to the best of my knowledge and belief that the above report is true and correct.

G. E. CARR.
