The Governor's prompt action in returning Bartley to the pen on request of the republican state convention, raises him several notches in the estimation of his constituents.

The platform adopted by the recent republican state convention touches the high water mark as a courageous and statesmanlike document. There is no fault to be found with it, because it has met every issue squarely and honestly, and it sounds the slogan with which republicans will sweep Nebraska this fall.—Kearney Hub.

Gov. Savage's prompt action in returning J. S. Bartley, without waiting for the expiration of the parole, on the request of the republican convention proved both wisdom and loyalty the party he represents. It also proves that the insinuations of the opposition that the governor was influenced in granting the parole by a monetary consideration is not true.

The fusion papers of Nebraska are making a dolorous howl about what they term D. Clem Deaver's treason, alleging that it is by virtue of said treason that the state republican ticket was elected last fall. If D. Clem Deaver was a traitor last fall every republican who has joined the populist party during the past ten years was a traitor also.—Callaway Courier.

Nebraska republicans have nominated an exceedingly strong candidate for the supreme court in the person of Judge Sedgwick of York. In a district in which republicans have been in the minority he has been kept on the bench for years and years, and in that section is invincible no matter who the nominee may be. This is certainly a strong testimonial.—Kearney Hub.

The Conservative finds no excuse for many of the violent and vicious criticisms of Governor Savage as to his parole of ex-State Treasurer Bartley. By law and under oath Savage is governor of the state of Nebraska. Enforcing the provisions of chief executive, he has acted deliberately and conscientiously. Until there are evil results from that action, newspapers that wish to be fair and just should not condemn. The Conservative believes in the honesty and good judgment of Governor Savage.—The Conservative.

The Iowa alleged democracy, in its state convention, declared for free silver sixteen-to-one and the fallacies of 1896 and 1900 generally as expressed by conventional hysteria of Chicago and Kansas City. The Iowa fellows have the desperation of men under sentence of death, who make bravado declaration from the scaffold and say the living to harm them for execution. Long live the zebra-eopard agglomeration of Iowa, striped and spotted, neither horse, cat nor mule, but full of the elements of fool!—The Conservative.

Since the convention we have heard of several republicans who say they will not vote for Walt George, because he has been before the people as a candidate three times. Instead of being a fault this is a virtue. When nominated before, the republicans were greatly in the minority, and their candidates stood a small show of being elected; yet, Walt George accepted the nomination for sheriff and worked hard for the republican party during two campaigns. It was the work of just such men as he that brought the republican party in Custer county where it is today—in the majority. At the last convention he was nominated for treasurer against his wishes; for the republicans recognized the value of his work in former campaigns, and, being a man whose character is above reproach and whose ability is well known by his own success, would not let him go unrewarded.—Ansley Citizen.

The Beacon Still Reckless.

The following editorial we clip from the Custer County Beacon of August 29:

"The republicans of this state met in convention Wednesday of this week at Lincoln, but failed to nominate on account of the disruption in the party over the actions of Gov. Savage in paroling Bartley. The entire day was taken up in discussion and con as to the best possible way of disposing of the white elephant. Rosewater informed the convention that the republican party of the state was up against the real thing, and that they must handle it without gloves. But the little editor was brushed aside and sat down on with emphasis by the bosses."

Our friendly contemporary, across the way must have got the wires crossed last Thursday. The Republican went to press at the same time of the Beacon, and it gave the names of the republican nominees, nominated on Wednesday, and the further fact that in compliance with the resolutions passed by the convention on that day, Gov. Savage had returned J. S. Bartley to the penitentiary.

Instead of the "little editor" (Rosewater) being brushed aside and set down on," in the Bartley matter the resolutions passed were stronger than Mr. Rosewater had advocated.

The Republican candidates.

Judge S. H. Sedgwick was born on a farm in Du Page county, Ill., March 12, 1848. His parents were natives of Connecticut but removed to New York before coming west in 1844. Judge Sedgwick has had the advantage of a college education having graduated from the classical course at Wheaton college, Wheaton, Du Page county, Ill., in 1872. He studied for one year in the law college at Ann Arbor and was admitted to the bar in Wisconsin in 1874. Later he studied in a law office at Green Bay, Wisconsin. He began practice in Brown county, Wisconsin but shortly afterward moved to Kewanee, the county seat of Kewanee county, Wisconsin, where he opened an office.

He was married in 1878 and in the fall of the same year he came to Nebraska and opened an office at York where he has engaged in the practice of law since. In the fall of 1895 he was elected district judge although his district was a fusion district. He served in that capacity four years. In 1899 he was renominated but was defeated by a small majority. Last spring he was appointed a commissioner of the supreme court which position he now holds.

Mr. Gould has served for one term to the satisfaction of his party colleagues and his friends are urging that he is entitled to the endorsement of a nomination for another term. Mr. Ernst was selected by the Lancaster convention as the preferred candidate of this county. He was not an aspirant for the place. He has been for more than twenty years in the land department of the Burlington, except a few years when he was manager of the Lincoln Street Railway company and is now in charge of the Nebraska lands of the company. His splendid business qualities and especially his knowledge of the most approved methods of accounting and auditing will make him one of the most valuable members of the board, if elected.—State Journal.

The Pop Machine Needs Oil.

It is reported that the populist machine that runs the politics for the voters are about to complete arrangements to have the democratic convention at Ansley next Tuesday endorse two or three of the pop nominees. Just who they shall endorse is the question that is now causing a little trouble with the machine. All the nominees no doubt would like to have the endorsements, but it has been decided that it will not be good policy to have the convention endorse more than three, while some are insisting that if more than two are endorsed it will have a tendency to drive a number of the anti-fusionists out of the party. Just who the two or three shall be is causing the old machine to squeak. All conceded that Sheriff Armstrong must be one that is endorsed. But who the others shall be is now a live question.

The friends of Mr. Dean insist that nothing short of the democratic endorsement will save him, while others claim that nothing will save him any way, and it would be folly to waste an endorsement on him. Then there is the treasurer. His friends insist that he should be one of the favored ones, and the same is claimed for the county clerk and register of deeds.

The scheme is to make sure the election of two or three of the candidates and let the rest of them paddle their own canoe. The rank and file of the party, who are anti-fusionists, are opposing any endorsement and declare, if it is done, they will lend their influence against the whole ticket.

Some of the democrats are willing to make any kind of a deal that the pop leaders may suggest, especially are they favorable to endorsing the democrats nominated on the pop ticket, who have been masquerading in sheep's clothing. It is argued that the sheriff is a democrat and has a democrat deputy, and that he should be endorsed.

Then there are other democrats who are strongly against any endorsement. They say that the pops passed resolutions against fusing with the democrats and that any democrat who would accept a nomination on that kind of a platform is not worthy of democratic endorsement or support and insist that they will support the republican ticket straight, unless a straight democratic ticket is nominated. The opinions with both the pops and democrats are so diversified that it is difficult at this writing to tell whether the pops or straight democrats will run the convention. If the endorsing deal goes through it will be all arranged here before the convention meets and the prime movers in it, of the populist party will not be at Ansley on the date of the convention.

The Lost Boy Found.

Last Thursday evening the alarm bell was rung for recruits to search for a lost boy. Word was brought in that Oscar Alexander, a nine year old boy residing with Joseph Booth, had disappeared in Custer canyon, and that the efforts of the neighborhood to find him, after a night and day, had been fruitless. A large number of our citizens went out to Custer canyon and put in the night, but failed to find him. The boy had gone after the cows Wednesday evening, and in some way became bewildered, and could not find the way home. When Mr. Booth came home after night and found the boy gone and the cows not at home, he went in search of them. He soon found the cows but no boy. Being unable to find him, he secured the assistance of the neighbors, who, with him, put in the most of the night in search.

Another crowd went out from this place Friday morning after word reached here that the boy had not been found.

About 9 o'clock Friday morning he was found within less than a half mile of the house, making his way toward home. From the boy's story it appears that he lost the directions and every circuit he would make would bring him out in the north part of the pasture, the farthest distance from the house. When discovered he seemed to be wild and fled from his pursuers like a wild beast and tried to evade them by running into brush thickets, and he had to be run down with a horse and then caught and held to keep him from fleeing. No doubt the boy had frequently sighted the men with lanterns, clubs, etc., and in his bewilderment had become so frightened that his whole thought was to evade his pursuers, who, he imagined, were seeking to harm him.

The whole country was wrought up over the affair and it was a great relief when the little fellow was found unharmed.
