It Happened in a Drug Store.
"One day last winter a lady came to my drug store and asked for a brand of cough medicine that I did not have in stock," says Mr. C. R. Grendin, the popular druggist of Ontario, N. Y. "She was disappointed and wanted to know what cough preparation I could recommend. I told her that I could freely recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and that she could take a bottle of the remedy and after giving it a fair trial if she did not find it worth the money to bring back the bottle and I would refund the price paid. In the course of a day or two the lady came back in company with a friend in need of a cough medicine and advised her to buy a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I consider that a very good recommendation for the remedy." It is for sale by J. G. Haerberle.

The Callaway Postoffice Robbed
George Greer was arrested yesterday and taken to Anslay for a preliminary hearing before U. S. Commissioner Porter, by Postoffice Inspector Swift and Deputy U. S. Marshal Moore, on a charge of robbing the Callaway postoffice. The crime was committed on August 25. Postmaster Douglas was standing at the front door of the office talking to some parties, and upon his return inside he found the cash drawer of the safe on the mailing table, with $20 in bills missing. He at once suspected Greer, who had formerly been employed in the office. Upon being charged with the crime Greer denied it, but subsequently confessed, and returned the money. He entered the office by the rear door while the postmaster was outside.—Callaway Courier.
The Anslay Chronicle says: "The accused was brought to Broken Bow, where a hearing was had before Judson C. Porter, U. S. Commissioner, who placed him under bonds of $700, to appear at the next term of the U. S. district court at Omaha. The father of the accused furnished the satisfactory bond and the prisoner was released."

A Young Balloonist.
Broken Bow can boast of having one of the, if not the youngest balloonists in the country. His name is Clifford Lomax, the ten year old son of H. Lomax. It is one of the instances in which greatness was thrust upon him.
Clifford Lomax was one of the hundreds last Friday evening crowded around the balloon, being inflated with gas prior to Prof. Ward's ascension which he was to make for the managers of the Custer county fair. When the balloon shot up through the trees by which it was surrounded, Clifford was evidently caught in the hoop of the parachute and carried up with the ascending balloon. Prof Ward who had not left the ground saw the situation and called out, "hold on kid," and as soon as the rope on the trapeze lifted him from the earth he made his way up to the boy as rapidly as he could. By this time the boy was two hundred feet from the earth. Prof. Ward had reached him and caught him by the coat collar in order to make the boy safe until he straightened himself comfortably for the rest of his eventful journey.
They were carried two and a half miles southwest of the city, where they were safely landed. The boy got one hand slightly hurt in a wire fence, by becoming tangled in the rope after he struck the ground, otherwise he was not injured. His parents knew nothing of it until he returned home, and secured their promise not to whip him if he would tell them what had happened. He had some misgivings as they had told him before he left home to keep away from the balloon. It is

Miss Nan Alexander, who has been visiting friends in the city, left Wednesday morning for Chicago, where she goes to resume a course in kindergarten work. Fred is not cranky anymore and grows better each day. Will be pleased to meet all, both old friends and new, and the stranger within our gates, and will treat all with like hospitality. That Street Car Conversation.
Fragmentary reports of a recent conversation to which a few neighbors and myself were parties do me great injustice, seeming to rank me among sympathizers with anarchy. Nothing could be more absurd. No man alive abominates anarchy in every form more heartily than I; perhaps few have done more with arms or with pen to repress anarchy. I, myself have nothing to keep back, but as parts of the conversation referred to might be thought to compromise the other parties I will not detail it without permission. Suffice it to say that all urged opposition to anarchy, I, as earnestly as the rest, only our methods differed.
I respectfully request you to give this statement such publicity as you can. E. BENJ. ANDREWS, Chancellor. University of Nebraska, Lincoln, Sept. 24, 1901.

Rev. H. E. Myers was returned by his conference, to serve the Broken Bow charge another year. He will preach at the regular hours, 11 a. m. and 7:45 p. m. at the church in town, and at 8 p. m. at the King school house. Next Sunday the morning theme will be "Shining Lights." In the evening the pulpit paintings will be devoted to one of the most popular stories in the English language, "The Life of Joseph." This story filled with high, and seemingly impossible dreams, in youth, the romantic and fascinating adventures, and pathetic scenes of early life and the realization of the highest honors of God and man in advanced age, presents one of the purest and staunchest ideals to young men ever written. "Pictures of Glory that God Paints," will be the subject Sunday night. A cordial welcome to all. Special music.
M. E. CHURCH.
Next Sunday will be the last in this conference year for this church. At this time reports will be made of the year's work, and sermons preached at both hours appropriate to the occasion. The pastor will be glad to greet all members and friends at the church at both services.
