YOU NEED THEM

Man was here on earth for thousands of years before he ever combed his hair or wore a hat or spoke a gentle word to women. But the green fields eventually gave him feeling and lightened his savage face with the first human smile. He became civilized, got a house to live in, a chair to sit on, a bed to sleep in, a table to eat from, and knives and forks and spoons to eat with.

It's the latter commodity of the gentile which we supply.

Of course you can get along without them—our ancestors did, but you can't afford to do it at the prices we are offering them today.
