

Free to twenty-five ladies.

The Defiance Starch Co. will give 25 ladies a round trip ticket to the St. Louis Exposition, to five ladies in each of the following states: Illinois, Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas and Missouri who will send in the largest number of trade marks cut from a ten cent, 15-ounce package of Defiance cold water laundry starch. This means from your own home, anywhere in the above named states. These trade marks must be mailed to and received by the Defiance Starch Co., Omaha, Neb., before September 1st, 1904. October and November will be the best months to visit the Exposition. Remember that Defiance is the only starch put up in 16 oz. (a full pound) to the package. You get much more starch for the same money than of any other kind, and Defiance never sticks to the iron. The tickets to the Exposition will be sent by registered mail September 5th. Starch for sale by all dealers.

In Florence, lately, one of several Italian ladies who were entertaining Mark Twain, asked what was the American national game. "Poker," he answered. When she laughingly protested that he was facetious, he gravely reiterated his statement, and added: "Madame, to the game of poker the American people owe the most valuable lesson a nation can learn: Never give up, even after you have lost your last chance."

Mrs. Van Rensselaer Cruger tells a story of a Washington hostess who invited an attaché of one of the foreign legations to dine with her. The invitation was formally accepted, but on the morning of the appointed day a note, written by the foreigner's valet, was received, which read: "Mr. Blank regrets very much that he will not be able to be present at Mrs. Swift's dinner tonight, as he is dead."

ARMY TRIALS.

An Infantryman's Long Siege.
This soldier's tale of food is interesting.

During his term of service in 17th Infantry in Cuba and Philippines, an Ohio soldier boy contracted a disease of the stomach and bowels which all army doctors who treated him pronounced incurable, but which Grape-Nuts food alone cured.

"In October, 1899, when my enlistment expired, I was discharged from the army at Calabute, Philippines, and returned to the States on the first available steamer that left Manila. When I got home I was a total wreck physically and my doctor put me to bed saying he considered me the worst broken-down man of my age he ever saw and after treating me 6 months he considered my case beyond medical aid.

"During the fall and winter of 1900 and '01 I was admitted to the Barnes Hospital in Washington, D. C., for treatment for chronic inflammation of the stomach and bowels but after 5 months returned home as bad as ever. "I continued taking medicine until February, 1902, when reading a newspaper one day I read about Grape-Nuts and was so impressed I sent out for a package right away.

"The result is quickly told for I have used Grape-Nuts continually ever since with the best results, my health is so I can do a fair day's hard work, stomach and bowels are in good condition, have gained 40 pounds in weight and I feel like a new man altogether.

"I owe my present good health to Grape-Nuts beyond all doubt for medical science was exhausted." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Had he consulted any one of several thousand physicians we know of they would have prescribed Grape-Nuts immediately.

USE OF A COMMON TONGUE.

English Language Now Used by the Most Persons.

With the increasing intercourse of the nations, the old question of a universal language comes up—at least in the German mind, affording a topic of discussion, says the Indianapolis News. The tendency toward a common tongue is and has been for years more strongly marked by the spread of the English language. Mulhall's statistics of a dozen years old (being the latest available) show the spread of languages for the first ninety years of the last century. At the beginning of the century the languages of Europe were spoken by 161,000,000 people. In 1890 they were spoken by 401,000,000, an increase of nearly 150 per cent. The four principal languages in 1891 were French, Russian, German and Spanish. The French amounted to 19.4 per cent, and the Spanish to 16.2. English-speaking peoples amounted to only 12.7. But in 1890 the standing was:

English, 27.7 per cent; Russian and German, each 18.7 per cent; French, 12.7 per cent; Spanish, 10.7 per cent, and the remainder divided between Italian and Portuguese. The number of English-speaking people had grown from 20,520,000 to 111,100,000, German and Russian-speaking people from about 30,000,000 to 75,000,000 each, and French-speaking people from 31,450,000 to 51,200,000.

The English language had risen from fifth to first place, and was spoken by at least 50 per cent more people than any other European tongue. Of the increase of about 91,000,000 English-speaking people about 70,000,000 were in the United States.

Some Proverbs of the Japanese.

The man who knows Japan was speaking the other evening of its proverbs.

"We all know," he said, "the proverb about 'more haste, less speed,' but the Japs put it: 'If in a hurry, go round.' We say, very crudely, that 'accidents will happen in the best regulated families,' but the Japanese, with a view to making the phrase more picturesque, say: 'Even a monkey sometimes falls from a tree.' The saying about edged tools and cut fingers, the people of the Flowery Kingdom vary thus: 'If one plays with tigers one is likely to have trouble,' while our 'oil and water won't mix' they know as 'you can't rivet a nail in a custard.' Where we say 'out of evil good may come,' they say 'the lotus springs from the mud.' Mrs. Partington's attempt is in Japan, 'scattering fog with a fan,' 'building bridges to the clouds,' or 'dipping up the ocean with a shell.' And when the person making such an attempt has failed the Japanese say that, after all, 'thine own heart makes the world.'—Philadelphia Press.

Why Not.

If feeling would help, when it's wet To dry up the puddles, I'd fret. And if aching would help, when it's dry To moisten the pastures, I'd sigh.

If scolding would help, when I'm cold, To make the sun shine, I would scold; If mourning would help the forlorn To have joy and good fortune, I'd mourn.

If grieving would ever relieve Their burdens who slave, I would grieve; If weeping would shorten the steep Way up to success, I would weep.

But to frown or to scold or to fret Serves only to lengthen regret; Why not give up grieving awhile To have the brave heart and the smile? S. E. Kiser.

Writers Who Were Pedestrians.

"Christopher North" (Prof. John Wilson), a giant over six feet high, whose "tread seemed almost to shake the streets," thought nothing of tramping forty miles in eight hours, or of walking from Liverpool to Ellersay, a distance of eighty miles, in a day. Wordsworth, though he could never have kept pace with Wilson's swinging stride, was always good for a twenty-mile stroll, and used to boast that he had walked six times round the earth. Charles Dickens was always at his brightest and happiest when he was striding gayly along country lanes at a good five miles an hour. On one memorable occasion he covered twenty miles "fair heel and toe" in a shade over four hours, and very proud he was of his deed. Prof. Fawcett, blind though he was, tramped his thirty miles many a day over Cambridge roads; and in our own day, Mr. Swinburne, Mr. Bryce and Mr. John Davidson, the poet, might well be matched against any other three pedestrians of equal years in England.—Westminster Gazette.

Admiral Uriu at Annapolis.

When Admiral Uriu of the Japanese navy was a lad at Annapolis naval academy he got a good hazing and stood it pluckily. Later, as an upper class man, he helped haze other youngsters, and always insisted upon living up to Annapolis traditions. One day he was dressing down George Ferguson, now an assistant engineer at the Brooklyn bridge. Ferguson was then, and doubtless is now, about twice the Jap's size. "What's your name?" demanded Uriu. "Ferguson, sir," "Spell it." "F-e-r-g-u-s-o-n, sir." "Spell it over again and remember that you're addressing your superior." "F, sir; e, sir; r, sir; g, sir; u, sir; s, sir; o, sir; n, sir. Ferguson, sir."

Sardou's Dramatic Position.

"Sardou represents a distinct type of the drama which he originated," said a pupil in Brander Matthews' dramatic literature class at Columbia university. What description of that type do you offer? asked Prof. Matthews. "Theatrical plays closely packed with interest mark the Sardine drama," replied the young man, promptly and earnestly. "Young man," laughed the professor, "with a can-opener you may yet evolve the great American play."

Dainty Decoration for Dinner Table.

In table setting there is always something new. At a recent dinner the hostess surprised her guests by decorating the center of her table with a cloth of pure gold thread, solidly worked, the border a lace design of white silk and fine gold mesh in diamond-shaped stitches. The green for the table was small ferns, set in an oval dish of dark blue china, with figures in relief representing peasants in holiday costume. At each corner of this gold center was a candlestick in dull silver of colonial design, furnished with a shade of iridescent glass, which graduated from tones of light yellow to dark orange, and then to red.

Eton Collars for Spring.

The Eton collar is noticed on some spring suits. It is a welcome change from the collarless effects of former seasons. It gives a girlish, not to say boyish, look to the wearer. It has already been seen on the English tennis suits of white duck and sea green linen in Florida courts, and now it comes along as a top dressing of the boisterous or jacket-shaped bodies of spring suits.

It is of linen usually, but is made more becoming and softly feminine by a frilling of soft Valenciennes lace sewed all the way around. The open space between the collar points is thus filled in and finished with a bow.

Menu Card Ideas.

Nothing is prettier for a dainty luncheon than the ribbon menu. This consists of a nine-inch length of broad satin ribbon, with a floral emblem and the word "Menu" painted on it.

Another idea is the swan menu, which is cut out of deckled cardboard. The tail feathers are first cut, and the word "Menu" printed at the top with the bill of fare underneath. The head and wings of the bird are then cut separately, and a piece of baby ribbon in the shape of a loop attached to the head and over the tail feathers to keep the different parts of the anatomy together.

Eton Jacket.

Eton jackets are to be noted among the most fashionable coats and are jaunty, becoming and generally attractive. This one includes the tiny vest effect that marks the latest designs with full sleeves and the drop shoulders that give the broad line of fashion. As shown it is made of wood brown broadcloth with trimming of brown and white braid, the vest being white cloth braided with brown and tan, but all suiting materials are appropriate and the vest can be one of many things. Oriental embroidery is much liked, brocades and lace are seen and wide brand is used.

The jacket is made with fronts and back and is fitted by means of single darts, shoulder and under-arm seams. The little vest can be applied over the edge and finished with the braid, or the jacket can be cut away and the edge of the vest arranged under it, then stitched to position. The sleeves are gathered and are joined to the drop shoulders, the seams being concealed by the braid and are finished at the wrists with flare cuffs.

The quantity of material required for the medium size is 4 yards 21 inches wide, 3 yards 27 inches wide or 2 yards 44 inches wide with 3 yards of vesting, 5 yards of braid and 3 yards of lace to trim as illustrated.

The pattern, 4686 is cut in sizes for a 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40 inch bust measure.

Potato Salad.

Eight cold boiled potatoes, one bunch of celery, two white onions, one head of lettuce. Slice the potatoes, cut the celery fine and slice the onions very thin; take off the green leaves of the lettuce, wash carefully and drain and line your salad bowl with them; break up the center of the lettuce and mix with the salad. When ready to serve mix the mayonnaise through before putting in your salad bowl. Garnish with olives and hard boiled eggs.

Small Mutton Pies.

Pour enough boiling water upon half a pound of clarified beef dripping or upon the same quantity of cleaned, and crumbled suet to melt it to the consistency of lard.

Make a hollow in two pounds of sifted flour to which you have added a little salt, and pour in the melted dripping, adding more water if required. Work with the hand until it is a smooth paste, and then roll out. Line small tins with the paste, put in the meat, cut small and parboiled, place a "lid" of paste on the top, press the sides and top together, cut a small hole in the top and bake in a quick oven.

Seven Gored Skirt.

Full skirts are rapidly becoming general and some fresh variations are shown each week. This one is eminently graceful and suits the season's fabrics admirably well. As shown it is made of novelty sage green voile with trimming of ecru lace, but there are numberless other materials that suit it equally well. The combined plaits and tucks are notably smart but when liked shirrings can be substituted for the latter. In either case 4687 Seven Gored Skirt, 22 to 30 waist.

The lines are good and the skirt falls in becoming folds below the stitching which confine the fullness over the hips.

The skirt is cut in seven gores, there being a box plait at the back edge of each with tucks between that are stitched with corticelli silk. The plaits in the center back meet and beneath them the invisible closing is made.

The quantity of material required for medium size is 9 3/4 yards 21 inches wide, 9 1/2 yards 27 inches wide or 5 1/2 yards 44 inches wide with 5 1/4 yards of lace applique.

The pattern, 4687 is cut in sizes for a 22, 24, 26, 28 and 30 inch waist measure.

A French Salad.

Take one cup of lima beans, one cup of celery, cut in small pieces; one cup of peas, one cup of brussels sprouts, one-half of a cauliflower, three medium-sized potatoes, two small carrots and one chopped onion. Boil all these separately. When cold, mix in a salad bowl and season with salt and pepper. Break into small pieces the center of one head of lettuce and mix with the salad. Let all stand until ready to serve, then mix through it a mayonnaise sauce.

The Coal Scuttle Bonnet.

The quaintest of all chapeaux for little people is a coal scuttle bonnet in white satin trimmed with roses and other white flowers. The sides of this bonnet are sometimes folded over after the manner of Breton caps. For the little fancy coat and wrap, white cloth is the general favorite. There are many different designs for these garments, but the Gretchen shape, which is simplicity itself, seems to be the most popular.

One Style of Sailor Hat.

A hat on the Bretonne sailor order that is selling well in London has the brim made of green yedda and the crown of a green and white plaid silk braid, pleated and standing on edge. A band of emerald green velvet ribbon around the crown is ornamented at each side with steel buckles. These buckles hold pairs of dainty small wings, shaded from green to white.

The Summer Sleeve.

Sleeves are still full and voluminous below the elbow, but in the summer dresses they will be half length, and some will fall in fan plaits from the elbow.

New Fabric for Spring.

A new voile, something of a cross between cloth and crepe de chine, is among the latest fabrics for spring costumes.

BEEES TOO SMART FOR HIM.

They Found a Way to Get Back Honey Taken from Hives.

One of our neighbors has for a number of years past derived a very satisfactory revenue from the industry of his bees. His farm is a village lot 50 by 200 feet, in a sheltered corner of which he keeps a few colonies of bees. With the numerous families he has always lived in the most perfect harmony of purpose, and each individual seems to know and respect him, however warlike they may appear to strange faces. When all the boxes were filled this season they were replaced by others, as is the usual custom. This operation did not commend itself to the bees, as it taxed their proverbial industry to too great an extent. In a season of few flowers, like the past.

Seemingly, a council was held, and the question of a winter's supply of food duly considered and soon carried into effect. Some wise bee found a small hole in the attic, where 100 or more pounds of honey was stored. At once all the forces of the colonies were summoned, and with determination that knows no failure they transferred every particle of honey from the garret to the new boxes on the hives. A few days ago when our bee farmer went to the garret for a supply to fill an order, he found he had been robbed. No, it was not robbery! The bees got back what had been taken from them. It was theirs.—New England Homestead.

THE RETORT WAS APT.

Pious Old Lady Answered Fool According to His Folly.

After the opening meeting of the Religious Education Association's recent convention in Philadelphia the Rev. Erastus Blakelee, of Boston, entertained Dr. Frederic Tracy and Dr. Halsey Gulick with stories of his youth.

"A friend of mine at college," this learned editor said, "was a lad of skeptical views. He and I made a walking tour one summer, and late on a certain evening we stopped at a lonely farmhouse and asked for shelter for the night.

"The old woman who owned the farm welcomed us. She had a simple, pious mind, and she insisted on our taking part with her in evening prayers.

"At the prayers' end my skeptical companion attempted to deride her piety.

"Do you really believe," he said, "that men are made of dust?"

"The Good Book says so; therefore I believe it," said the old woman.

"How about wet weather, then, when there is no dust, when there is only mud? What is done then?" said my friend.

"The old woman looked at him and laughed.

"When there is only mud," she said, "infidels and such like truck are made."

Easily Explained.

A dear son of New England having plied a newcomer in the milling region of Nevada with every conceivable question as to why he visited the gold region, and hopes, means, prospects, etc., finally asked him if he had a family.

"Yes," was the reply, "I have a wife and six children, and I never saw one of them."

After a brief silence the bore commenced:

"Were you ever blind, sir?"

"No."

Another pause.

"Did I understand you to say that you had a wife and six children living in New York, and had never seen one of them?"

"Fact."

"How can that be?"

"Why," was the reply, "one of them was born after I left."

Their Heads Alike.

Justice John Proctor Clarke of the Supreme Court was holding court a few afternoons ago in one of the badly ventilated rooms of the County Court House. Before him was a lawyer whose head was almost as devoid of hair as that of the Justice himself—and the latter comes pretty near to holding the record in that way.

"Your honor," said the lawyer, "I must request that the window over on the other side of the room be closed more tightly. I feel the draught on my head."

"The court sympathizes with you perfectly," said the Justice. The court has the same kind of a head.—New York Times.

Life's "Scarecrows."

Once on a time a farmer made a scarecrow, fierce and high; A scarecrow, fighting near it, said, "It looks so cozy, I believe it is the very best Of nooks wherein to build a nest."

And so he went to work, and soon A pretty home had made. And by and by his charming mate Four cunning eggs had laid; And from that happy nest one day Six gleeful birds flew far away.

But ere they went, the old bird said, "My children, all through life Remember what you think of this: That brings peace or strife, And even scarecrows joy may bring If one knows how to view a thing."—Nixon Waterman, in Woman's Home Companion.

After-Dinner Candies.

The fashion of eating sweetmeats with dessert is one that is ever gaining ground, and dainty little silver dishes of chocolates, salted almonds, fondants, as well as preserved ginger and dried fruits, are now as necessary an addition to our dessert as fresh fruits. Where only a small dessert is required, both fresh fruit and sweetmeats may be tastefully arranged in a glass or silver center dish.

Tree's Wonderful Vitality.

A curious incident occurred during the gale at Mansworth, a short time ago, says a Scotch paper. A large tree was blown down across the roadway. A number of men were told off to remove the obstruction, which they commenced to do by lopping off some of the larger branches. After about half a ton had been thus removed, the tree began to lift itself from the ground, and as soon as a little more weight was taken off it sprang into a vertical position, which it retained despite the subsequent rough weather. It was found that the roots had been stretched, but not broken, and were sufficiently elastic to pull the trunk after it had been relieved of some of its weight.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out of this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; plus cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. F. J. CHILNEY & CO., Toledo, O. Sold by Druggists, 75c. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Value of Carrier Pigeons.

The best carrier pigeons are worth several hundred dollars in the market, and some cannot be purchased at any price. During the annual pigeon show in New York last year $200 and even $300 was refused by the owners for some of their choicest pets. The average exhibits were valued at $25 and $50. Prices, however, do not stand in the way of the pigeon fancier today, for excellent homing pigeons can be purchased for $5 and less. One can start a loft with half a dozen breeders, and within a few seasons have all the birds desired.

"I am disgruntled," said Senator Foster recently: "I'll never give money to a street beggar again as long as I live. There was a very pitiful-looking beggar in the avenue, a few minutes ago, and my heart going out to him, I stopped to hand him a few small coins. I had difficulty, I admit, in finding my change, but was that any reason for the beggar to frown at me and say, impatiently: 'Hurry up, sir, I've lost several customers while you've been muddling over them pennies.'

What a "Yeggman" Is.

The word "yeggman" is now eligible to dictionary honors. It has court authority. In a recent damage suit at Lynn, Mass., the plaintiff set forth that by calling him a yeggman the defendant meant "that the plaintiff was a desperado, a criminal, a night burglar, a tramp burglar, a crook, a freebooter, a murderer, a man who posed as a tramp in the daytime and was a burglar in the nighttime."

A well-known actor was telling his sixteen-year-old son, who he considers very immature and young for his age, that he ought to be doing something for his glory and his country. "Why, when George Washington was your age, my son, he was surveying the estate of Lord Fairfax." The boy thought a moment, then he replied, quietly: "Well, when he was as old as you, pa, he was president of the United States."

An Easy Way To Do It.

Mineral, Idaho, April 11.—Mr. D. S. Colson of this place has something to say which will be of interest to many men. Mr. Colson claims to have found a simple way to get rid of pains in the back, Sciatica or Rheumatism. He has cured himself and so claims personal experience in proof of his method.

Mr. Colson says:—"I had awful pains in my hip. They got so bad at last that I could hardly walk. I tried several things, but got no relief till I began to use Dodd's Kidney Pills and I had taken but a few of these pills till the pain left me entirely.

"Dodd's Kidney Pills certainly did me lots of good and I consider them a great medicine."

The remedy that cured Mr. Colson is the same that has been making such sensational cures of Bright's Disease, Diabetes, Dropsy and Rheumatism all over the country. The name of the medicine is Dodd's Kidney Pills.
