

DEATH IN TRAILING SKIRT

Danger That Lurks in Present Day Obedience to Fashion's Whim

The following short story from the Woman's Journal is very timely in the warning given against trailing skirts:

Only a little dust, almost imperceptible dust, caught on the rug on the floor of the handsome hall.

It was a Turkish rug, lying on the perfectly waxed, hardwood floor, in a hall where neatness seemed to reign along with all the appointments of wealth.

But there was that almost imperceptible dust. How did it come there? If you had ears that could hear its voices it would tell you. It would say that it had clutched a fold on the beautiful lady's gown and come in from the street.

It was a beautiful gown as well as a beautiful lady—a tailor-made gown, and its fashionable bias flounce trailed stylishly on the ground.

Everything was stylish about the lady, from her fair face, with rather deep circles below the eyes, to her slender and handsome walking shoes. She walked trailing her gown properly, dust or no dust. Indeed, she ignored the dust of the street; but will the dust ignore her?

Let us listen, if she will not, for this almost imperceptible dust moves and acts with fearful force, and if we listen possibly we may understand its language.

Soon after coming in on the beautiful lady's gown, other steps followed and other gowns helped to move the dust along farther into the house; but it had a fancy for the beautiful lady. Her frailness attracted it and it followed her to the bed chamber. Her feet had never trod the loathsome precincts whence it came, but it came to her on her gown.

Soon there came to the chamber a little child, a sweet, rosy cherub. In its romping it stirred the dust about.

Then the dust began to be separated, being formed of many particles, and these talked among themselves. As they talked they danced back and forth, waltzing, swirling, capering, with every motion of the child and its mamma, the beautiful lady.

A scientist could have understood them if he had caught some of them under his microscope. He would have called them "germs." With what alarm he would have recognized the diphtheritic, and what dismay would he have seen the tuberculous germ approaching the frail lady.

Back and forth, dancing, capering, waltzing, the germs kept time while baby, in its mother's arms, said, as thousands of other little ones were saying—

"Now I lay me down to sleep,
I pray the Lord my soul to keep;
If I should die before I wake,
I pray the Lord my soul to take."

This baby was saying it for the last time.

When night came again, thousands of little voices sent up the baby prayers, but this one was gasping out its little life on mamma's bosom—destroyed by a germ.

A yellow card at the front door warned all comers against diphtheria.

The beautiful lady vainly sought health for a year or more, then found rest "beyond the sorrow and the parting."

"Broken hearted," it was said. "Found death in the dust of the street," said the microscope. A victim of the long skirt.

Fashion and Consumption.

In all American cities and most of the larger towns promiscuous expectation is prohibited. There are ordinances and rules against spitting in public conveyances, on the floors of assembly halls and on the sidewalks. Of necessity, however, this cannot be prevented in the gutters and on the pavements.

By educating the tuberculosis patient himself in regard to his duty to his fellow citizen much more can be done. A careful consumptive is a good citizen; a careless consumptive is an enemy to society and the state.

Even with the civil and self-imposed precautions, the dust of the highway and crossings is teeming with various disease germs. It is practically impossible to eliminate these beds of filth. In the cleanest streets such colonies of germs are present.

The use of long, dragging skirts on the average highway is the height of folly. It is worse. It is absolutely dangerous. The sweeping cloth picks up dust and dampened particles carrying tubercular germs. They are thus transplanted into the very household. In this simply yet sadly effective way, the children, so carefully guarded, are exposed to the dreaded plague. The entire family, satisfied with their fancied security, are stunned when tuberculosis claims one of their loved ones.

It may not strike the family circles. The household servants may be affected. Many of the deaths of domestics have their explanation. The mistress, after a shopping tour, leaves her mud-bordered skirt for the maid to clean. In the cloud of dust arising from the brush the fatal bacillus lurks. The girl, already weakened from too long hours indoors, succumbs. A few weeks later she is forced to stop work and waste away in hopeless dependence on her overburdened family or at public expense.

Another girl is easily obtained and the careless mistress never suspects any connection between her foolish fashion and the doomed domestic's sad fate.

Expectation on the streets can never be stopped. The streets cannot be kept clean. But this can be done—

every woman should wear sensible skirts entirely clearing the ground. This will entirely eliminate this great avenue of tuberculosis invasion

The American Heart.

We have heard much about the American stomach and the American nerves, but we are just awakening to a discovery that there is being rapidly developed a form of heart disease which, if not peculiar to America, may at least be said to be more prevalent in this country than in any other part of the world. The heart-weariness resulting from the use of tobacco and alcohol and from a sedentary life on the one hand, and extremely violent exertion on the other hand, is no longer a rare condition, but has come to be one of the most common affections with which the physician has to deal. A large proportion of the men rejected in the army examinations are refused on account of heart weakness. A large proportion of the public men who die suddenly die as a result of the failure of the heart. The same may be said also of many of the cases in which the cause of death is reported to be pneumonia, typhoid fever and other affections in which special strain is brought to bear upon the heart, and in which the failure of the organ to meet the emergency is one of the most common causes of death. The cigar, the cigarette and the pipe are probably the most common cause of this growing frequency of cardiac affections; but the neglect of physical exercise, overeating, the use of condiments and excesses of all sorts are also to a large degree responsible for the rapid increase of this grave malady.

SOME WHOLESOME RECIPES.

Vegetable Soup.—Simmer together slowly for three or four hours, in five quarts of water, a quart of split peas, a slice of carrot, a slice of white turnip, one cup of canned tomatoes and two stalks of celery cut into small bits. When done, rub through a colander, add milk to make of proper consistency, reheat, season with salt and cream, and serve.

Roast Imperial.—Mix together one-half cup of lentil pulp (prepared by rubbing well-cooked lentils through a colander), one-half cup of pea pulp, one-half cup of English walnuts, and season to taste, with sage and salt. Line an oiled baking dish one-half inch deep with the mixture. Pack in loosely a dressing made from the following ingredients: Four slices of zwieback, steamed until softened, one-half cup of hot cream, sage and salt to taste, and one well-beaten egg. Mix together lightly with a fork. Cover closely with peas, lentil and nut mixture. Spread over the top thick cream, bake in a moderate oven until firm enough to cut into slices. Serve with cranberry sauce or fruit jelly.

Scalloped Potatoes.—Pare the potatoes and slice thin; put them in layers in an earthen pudding dish, dredging each layer lightly with flour, add salt, and pour over all enough good, rich milk to cover well. Cover, and bake rather slowly till tender, removing the cover just long enough before the potatoes are done, to brown nicely. If preferred, a little less milk may be used, and a cup of thin cream added when the potatoes are nearly done.

Chopped Cabbage.—Take one pint of finely chopped cabbage; pour over it a dressing made of three tablespoonfuls of lemon juice, two tablespoonfuls of sugar, and a half cup of whipped cream, thoroughly beaten together in the order named. This is also nice served simply with sugar and diluted lemon juice.

Macaroni With Tomato Sauce.—Break macaroni into inch lengths, enough to make one cup, and drop into boiling water. Let it boil until perfectly tender. In the meantime, prepare the sauce by rubbing a pint of stewed or canned tomatoes through a colander to remove all seeds and fragments. Heat to boiling, thicken with a little flour; a tablespoonful to the pint will be about the requisite proportion. Add a half cup of very thin sweet cream and one teaspoonful of salt. Dish the macaroni in individual dishes, and serve with a small quantity of the sauce poured over each dish.

Steamed Fig Pudding.—Moisten two cupfuls of finely grated Graham bread crumbs with half a cup of thin sweet cream. Mix into it a heaping cupful of finely chopped fresh figs, and a quarter of a cup of sugar. Add lastly a cup of sweet milk. Turn all into a pudding dish, and steam about two and one-half hours. Serve as soon as done with a lemon sauce prepared as follows: Heat to boiling in a double boiler a pint of water in which are two slices of lemon, and stir into it a dessert spoonful of cornstarch; cook four or five minutes, or until it thickens. Strain the juice from one large lemon and mix it with two-thirds of a cup of sugar. Add this to the cornstarch mixture, and allow the whole to boil up once, stirring constantly, then take from the fire. Leave in the double boiler, surrounded by the hot water, for ten minutes. Cool to blood heat before serving.

THE NEWS IN NEBRASKA

STATE NOTES.

Miss May Lear?, who has been connected with the Dempster Mill Manufacturing company in Beatrice for the past twelve years as a confidential secretary, has resigned her position.

The county insanity commission of Lancaster county has adjudged Jay Northrup, an Omaha bookkeeper, insane, and he has been committed to the Lincoln insane hospital for treatment.

Hon. T. J. Crummel returned to Auburn from Omaha with the remains of his nephew, Jess Van Ness, who was found dead in his room at 2524 N street, South Omaha, caused by taking an overdose of chloroform.

Mr. and Mrs. George Vertrees, living west of Beatrice, had a narrow escape from being buried alive. They had sought shelter in a cave from an approaching storm and shortly after they emerged the roof collapsed.

Large areas of corn have been replanted in Cuming county by reason of the wet weather having materially injured the seed. Most of the corn originally planted is showing signs of weakness, being extremely yellow.

R. L. Massey, conductor of an extra freight, was caught under the cars at Watson's ranch, west of Kearney, and seriously injured. In making a switch he slipped and fell under the cars, two of which passed over him.

Samuel S. Rieckley has commenced an action in the district court at Columbus wherein he seeks to recover $10,000 damages from the Union Pacific railroad. He was badly injured while in the employ of the company. Guy Applegate and William Roberts escaped from the county jail at Nebraska City, and no trace of them has yet been found. They were under two years' sentence to the penitentiary, having pleaded guilty to robbing a store.

The Union Pacific has two large extra gangs laying new steel on the main line. This new steel will be put between Columbus and Central City. The new rails weigh ninety pounds to the foot and is replacing steel of a lighter pattern which will be used on the branch tracks.

Fremont is using the money received from dog licenses this year in putting in new cement street crossings. These crossings cost $30, so that for each thirty licenses a new crossing is put in. Forty-one permanent sidewalk permits have been issued by City Clerk Stiles since the new ordinance went into effect.

Stacy Bell of Fremont, who has been employed for many years as a stenographer in the office of the Nye-Schneider-Fowler company, left for Manila, Philippine Islands, where he has been appointed a typewriter and stenographer in the government service. His appointment came very soon after he took the examination for the position.

During the past few days the state has purchased twenty acres of land south of the penitentiary at $100 an acre, and will, probably within a few days, take 200 acres more at the same price. To secure the funds penitentiary lands in Seward and Lancaster counties are being sold under the authority of an act passed by the recent legislature.

The Union Pacific is advancing rapidly with the line from Topeka to Marysville, Kan. The railway officials expect to have that part of the road completed before August and through trains running over that line and the St. Joseph and Grand Island into Hastings, and out of that city over the Burlington stub to the Union Pacific line at Kearney by September 1.

Herman H. Peters of Hay Springs, Sheridan county, has filed application with the secretary of the state board of irrigation for two projects to use water from Niobrara river, one to cost $1,400 and the other $500. Both of the projects are in the neighborhood of the Mirage canal, which has occasioned much controversy before the state board of irrigation.

At a special meeting of the board of education A. O. Thomas, who was recently elected principal of the Kearney Normal, resigned as superintendent of the city schools. The board by a unanimous vote elected George Burgett to fill the vacancy. Prof Burgett is a graduate of the state university, class of '98, and has been principal of the Kearney High school for three years.

At Plattsmouth, William Doud was placed under arrest upon a statutory charge preferred by Miss Della Hoban. The defendant entered a plea of not guilty before Justice Aarcher and gave bond for his appearance on May 31, when the evidence will be heard. Both parties reside at Greenwood.

APPLIED MATCH TO BOMB

Explosion That Followed Seriously Injuring Two.

FREMONT—Otto Lottenburg and Roy Killian were injured by the explosion of a bomb near Morse Bluff in Saunders county. Lottenburg had one leg amputated below the knee at the Fremont hospital and Killian had two fingers taken off.

The men were out for a trip across country and Lottenburg found a peculiar looking iron piece containing a bluish powder. He lit a match to look into it and a terrific crash followed. Lottenburg's legs were shattered and he fell senseless to the ground. Killian, a hundred feet away, had his fingers shattered by a fragment of the iron piece.

No account can be given of how the bomb came to be where it was found. It evidently had not been moved for a long time, as it was partially buried in the ground and was rusty.

THOMAS ELECTED PRINCIPAL OF NORMAL

LINCOLN—Ex-State Superintendent Fowler, who was elected principal of the Kearney normal, declined the position. He declared in a telegram to the state board of education that he had made a contract with an eastern publishing house, and could not accept the place.

The declination was accepted. The board took two ballots, and on the second ballot A. O. Thomas of Kearney received four votes. He was declared elected.

Cannot Force Issue of License.

Attorney General Brown has filed a brief in the supreme court sustaining his demurrer to the application of E. S. Spinney of the Bankers Union of the World, for a mandamus to compel the issuance of a license from the auditor's department. The state contends that the auditor refused to issue the license in the free exercise of the discretion conferred him by the statute, and that he cannot be coerced where the act is not ministerial.

NO DEFINITE NEWS OF WOUNDED COLONEL

OMAHA—Senator Millard received a telegram from Colonel Edwards, chief of the insular bureau of the government relative to Colonel Taylor, recently reported wounded in the Philippines. Practically all the $20,000 stock is sold to local investors and steps will be taken to permanently organize and incorporate as soon as the result of the above experiment is learned to be favorable.

IN SEARCH OF REST

RECORD OF VACATIONS TAKEN BY PRESIDENTS.

Chief Executives Have Frequently Left the White House on More or Less Extended Trips—Criticism of Johnson's Journeys.

The presidents have been accustomed to spend more or less of their time away from Washington, although once in the history of the country the lower house of congress took it upon itself to criticize the chief executive for his absence from Washington, says the New York Sun. The criticism consisted in asking the president what executive acts were performed by chief executives while they were away from the capital. The president of whom the inquiry was made was Grant. As a matter of record presidential vacations began in the administration of Washington. Investigation shows that the father of his country in the eight years of his office took 181 days to himself.

The country at that time did not offer the same inducements in the way of travel as now. It is not mentioned anywhere, so far as investigation has extended, that Washington suggested any deduction from his pay for time he was on jaunts.

The first Adams beat the traveling record of his predecessor. While he was in office only one term, he was away from the seat of government altogether one year and twenty days, or more than one-fourth of the time for which he was chosen.

Jefferson was a good deal of an absentee. Unless the figures in his case are wrong, he was away from the capital 796 times in the eight years of his administration.

Monroe, in whose term there was a surplus of good feeling in the country, was away in the eight years he served nearly one-third of the time.

Jackson served two terms and took more than a year and a half out of his time.

While all the presidents have taken vacations, those who served in the good old times, when, according to some, the government was nearer the people than in more recent years, did a good deal more knocking about than the presidents since the civil war.

Lincoln, by reason of the war, was forced to remain in and about the capital more closely than any other president. After Lincoln's death Johnson made his famous swing around the circle, for which he was censured by the country generally, as his travels were unmistakably for political purposes.

Grant made several trips while he was president. Hayes made few. Arthur was the first president to go into the far west. During part of his visit he, like Roosevelt, disappeared for a few days from the correspondents when he went into the depths of Yellowstone park.

In Cleveland's first administration he went fishing to one of the inland lakes of Wisconsin. In his second administration he made several brief trips and hunted ducks frequently.

Harrison, who came between the two administrations of Cleveland, made a swing through the south and later made a rapid journey through Illinois, Iowa, Kansas and Missouri. During the trip he addressed the Grand Army of the Republic of Illinois, laid the cornerstone of a college building at Galesburg, dedicated a corn palace in Iowa, attended a Grand Army of the Republic review at Topeka, Kas., spoke in Kansas City the same night and visited St. Louis the day after.

As is well known, President McKinley was the first president to visit California. His was the longest continuous presidential journey in point of miles.

President Roosevelt is the greatest presidential sportsman in the history of the country. His last was his second trip to the far west in search of game.

Rebuilding the Campanile.

Slowly but surely the work of restoring the campanile of St. Mark's at Venice is proceeding. A high wooden paling hides the scene of operations from outsiders and forms a workyard. In this space eighty workmen are employed either in preparing the stone or hewing the timber or carrying the cement which is needed for the foundations. A huge, square pedestal in the middle is all that is left of the original site and of the old campanile and is to serve again for its successor. The groundwork of this pedestal is the part on which the hands are now engaged and in the strengthening and consolidating of this under-pedestal lay the great difficulty of beginning the work of reconstruction. For it was long before any means could be found whereby to prevent the ground under it from yielding.

Humanity.

In tracing up the various faults To which mankind is heir,
The great, the small, the odds and ends Scramped up from here and there,
No doubt you'll find some flinty breast Their hiding place, but then,
There's still a deal of heavenliness Within the worst of men.

In tracing up the virtues, all To which mankind is heir,
The virtues great, the virtues small, The virtues odd and rare,
Perhaps you'll find them centered in Some other breast, but then,
There's still a lot of hellishness Within the best of men.

Thus be reluctant to condemn Nor anxious to condone;
"The righteous, judging lives of men To measure first their own."
Nor where you see the works of God The devil's, too, you'll find;
Who's one be most in evidence The other lurks behind.

ATAXIA IS CURABLE

REPORTED CURE STANDS TEST OF FULL INVESTIGATION.

A Former Victim of Locomotor Ataxia Now Free from Suffering and Actively at Work.

"Yes," said Mr. Watkins to a reporter, "it is true that I have been cured of ataxia by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

"Are you sure you had locomotor ataxia?"

"The doctors themselves told me so. Besides I recognized the symptoms."

"What were they?"

"Well, the first indications were a stiffness about the knee joints that came on about four years ago. A few months after that appeared, my walk got to be uncertain, shaky-like. I lost confidence in my power to control the movements of my legs. Once, when I was in the cellar, I started to pick up two bottles of coal, and my legs gave way suddenly, and I tumbled all in a heap in a basket. I couldn't close my eyes and keep my balance to save my life. Then I had fearful pains over my whole body and I lost control over my kidneys and my bowels."

"How about your general health?"

"Sometimes I was so weak that I had to keep my bed and my weight fell off twenty pounds. Things looked pretty bad for me until I ran across a young man who had been cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and who advised me to try them."

"Did these pills help you right away?"

"I didn't see much improvement until I had used six boxes. The first benefit I noticed was a better circulation and a picking up in strength and weight. I gradually got confidence in my ability to direct the movements of my legs, and in the course of seven or eight months all the troubles had disappeared."

"Do you regard yourself as entirely well now?"

"I do the work of a well man at any rate. I can close my eyes and stand up all right and move about the same as other men. The pains are all gone except an occasional twitch in the calves of my legs."

Mr. James H. Watkins resides at No. 72 Westerlo street, Albany, N. Y. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills can be obtained at any drug store. They should be used as soon as the first signs of locomotor ataxia appear in a peculiar numbness of the feet.

Selfishness the Ruling Spirit.

No one performs a single free action from anything but a selfish motive. That is, at any given moment we are doing the thing we wish to do, if we are free to act. The difference comes in the things we are doing.

ULCERS FOR 30 YEARS.

Painful Eruptions From Knees to Feet Seemed Incurable—Cuticura Ends Misery.

Another of those remarkable cures by Cuticura, after doctors and all else had failed, is testified to by Mr. M. C. Moss of Gainesville, Texas, in the following letter: "For over thirty years I suffered from painful ulcers and an eruption from my knees to feet, and could find neither doctors nor medicine to help me, until I used Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Pills, which cured me in six months. They helped me the very first time I used them, and I am glad to write this so that others suffering as I did may be saved from misery."

The fraternity of bellringers is known in Britain as "the exercise," as the dramatic profession is known as "the" profession. A bellringer is a "member of the exercise."

FIXING RAILROAD RATES.

Making railroad rates is like playing a game of checkers or chess. Communities to be benefited, producers, manufacturers or shippers to be aided represent the pieces used. Every possible move is studied for its effect on the general result by skilled traffic managers. A false move in the making of freight rates may mean the ruin of a city, of a great manufacturing interest, of an agricultural community. Railroads strive to build up all these so that each may have an equal chance in the sharp competition of business. So sensitive to this rivalry are the railroads that in order to build up business along their lines they frequently allow the shipper to practically dictate rates. Rate making has been a matter of development; of mutual concessions for mutual benefit. That is why the railroads of the United States have voluntarily made freight rates so much lower in this country than they are on the government-owned and operated railways of Europe and Australia that they are now the lowest transportation rates in the world.
