most pleasant remembrance of the Fourth, which was spent on the shady lawn at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Kimberling. After a sumptuous repast to which about 30 people sat down a very enjoyable literary program was rendered which was followed by a ball game and a tug of war; both contests between the ladies on one side and the gentlemen on the other and both resulted disastrously for the gentlemen; the first by a score of 12 to 9 and the second by a narrow margin. In the evening fireworks were indulged in until a respectable hour when the company dispersed all feeling that they had spent a most pleasant day.

Herbert, the oldest son of S. M. Dorris, had his left eye quite seriously injured Monday, by a scale of hot iron, which flew from a piece of work on which he was engaged at the forge in his father's shop. It is thought at this writing that the sight will not be permanently injured.
