

THE BEST COUGH CURE

Cough syrups are all cheap enough, but if you should get a gallon of cough syrup that does not cure for the price of a small bottle of the best cough cure, you would have made a bad bargain—for one small bottle of Kemp's Balsam may stop the worst cough and save a life, whereas the cough "cure" that does not cure is worse than useless.

Kemp's Balsam

LAW URGED BY SELF-SEEKERS.

Real Animus of Movement Against Remedies Deservedly Popular.

An adroit but plausible scheme by which it is hoped to prejudice the sale of proprietary medicines is the proposition to prohibit the sale of any remedy which "contains poison" unless each package or bottle is expressly labeled "Poison." Such bills are also well designed to impose upon men who have no familiarity with the subject matter. The pretense of protecting the public health put forth in support of such bills is generally the merest subterfuge; and whenever you hear a demand for a law of this kind it originates with those who have a direct pecuniary interest to serve by destroying the sale of proprietary remedies.

Some of the best and most widely used remedies in the world contain some one ingredient which, if taken in sufficient quantities, might be poisonous, and yet the preparation as a whole is not poisonous at all. Opium, for instance, is used in small quantities in many of the best cures for coughs, colic, diarrhea, etc., in toothache drops and in almost all liniments. To require such medicines to be falsely labeled "poison" would be merely a cunning device to alarm the public and thus bring about the destruction of the sale of those remedies, and indirectly to compel people to procure the medicine they want by the more expensive method of consulting a physician and getting his prescription. In other words, it is an effort to prevent them from getting cheaply the remedies which they and their fathers before them have used for many years.—Medical exchange.

ECZEMA FOR TWO YEARS.

Little Girl's Awful Suffering With Terrible Skin Humor—Sleepless Nights for Mother—Speedy Cure by Cuticura.

"My little girl had been suffering for two years from eczema, and during that time I could not get a night's sleep, as her ailment was very severe. I had tried so many remedies, deriving no benefit, I had given up all hope. But as a last resort I was persuaded to try Cuticura, and one box of the Ointment and two bottles of the Resolvent, together with the Soap, effected a permanent cure.—Mrs. L. B. Jones, Addington, Ind. T."

Siberian Reindeer Farms.

In Siberia reindeer farming is a growing industry. Owners of young deer brand the animals on the ear. In capturing the creatures a long lasso with a thick knot on one end and a noose on the other is used. The weapon is composed of seal skin straps braided together, and some of the young women on the reindeer farms are as expert as the men.

Selling Out.

A legitimate, bona fide advertisement: "A young couple has to ride out in the country for some purpose, and has seven rooms, with best furniture, with piano, to be sold cheap before eight days around."

Omaha, Nebr., Oct. 26.—It is reported from Casper, Wyo., that sales of town lots for the new town of Shoshone, located at the edge of the Wind River Reservation on the new line of The Chicago & North-Western Railway across the state from Casper, have been unprecedented.

Bidding for town lots runs high and a large number have been disposed of within a short time. Buyers evidently figure on the growth of the city here when the Indian Reservation is thrown open to settlement next June.

WOMAN TELLS OF TROUBLES WITH HER HAWAIIAN SERVANTS.

"Hawaiian servants," said a brown woman, "are the best—the best in the world, but they are strangely unsophisticated, strangely naive.

"Hawaiian servants insist on calling you by your first name. Ours were always saying to my husband, 'Yes, John,' or 'All right, John,' and to me, 'Very well, Ann,' or 'Ann, I am going out.'

"At last I got tired of this and to John, when we got a new cook, I said:

"Don't ever call me by my first name in this new cook's presence. Then, perhaps, not knowing my name, he'll have to say 'Mrs.' to me."

"So John was very careful always to address me as 'Dearie,' or 'Sweetheart,' but the new cook, a watchful cat, gave me no title at all.

"One day we had some company, some English officers. I told them how I had overcome, in my new cook's case, the native servants' horrid abuse of their employers' Christian names, and I said, 'By this servant, at least, you won't hear me called Ann.'

"Just then the new cook entered the room. He bowed to me respectfully and said:

"Sweetheart, dinner is served."

"What?" I stammered.

"Dinner is served, dearie," answered the new cook."—New York Herald.

"GHOST" IN ENGLISH VILLAGE.

Plays Pranks with Residents of Inn at Pontypool.

This twentieth century ghost story is told by the London Chronicle: "A 'ghost' of bellicose tendencies is troubling the peace of mind of the occupants of an old-fashioned inn in a village near Pontypool. According to the narrative of the proprietor, uncanny noises have been heard almost nightly for some weeks. A few nights ago the landlord's son, after he had retired for the night, heard a click, as though some one had pulled the trigger of a pistol. This was followed by a groaning noise and the slamming of a door.

"He conducted a search through the house, but could find nothing unusual. A day or two later a customer put up at the inn for the night. Soon after he had retired he aroused the landlord in alarm and complained that while in bed he was struck on the face two or three times by some mysterious figure. He struck a light, but, to his surprise, found himself alone in the room. There were marks on his cheek where he had been struck.

"Nor could the proprietor throw light on the occurrence. He told of a further curious incident. Some months ago a strange odor was noticed in one of the rooms, and when the floor boards were taken up a wreath of lilacs of the valley in a good state of preservation was discovered."

The New Japan.

The tourist from Cincinnati lolled back his copious girth in the tiny stool of the Tokio tea house, while through the carven latticework the tinkle of a samisen came in alluring cadence over an expanse of stunted pine, wistaria and fairy lakes.

"This is all to the Pierre Lott!" he mused. "And yonder comes a dainty geisha girl to take my order. I will speak to her in the poetry of the land."

"Ah, O Mimosa San, I swear by the white crest of the mountain Fujiyama that you love, that—"

"Oh, fudge!" said the geisha girl in limpid English. "I've just graduated from Barnard college, and I prefer the Pallasades or the Catskills." Then to the kitchen she ordered. "Draw one!"

"Ah," said the tourist, in a hurt tone of voice. "I thought you were one of the poetic creatures made famous by Lafcadio Hearn."

"Who was he?" asked the Jap maiden, with polite interest. "Seems to me I've heard of him, but I'm reading Huxley and Emerson just now."

Listening again, the tourist discovered that the tinkle of the samisen was only the sound from the shuttles of a cotton mill.

Are Japanese the Lost Tribes?

Are the Japanese the lost ten tribes of Israel? The Jewish World revives this old theory, remarking that it was probably inevitable that they should be sought in the Japanese in view of the fact that the 'museums of Japan contain numerous engravings purporting to show the landing of Jews in Nippon. One of the pictures cited is said to show a procession in which the priests wear hats of biblical pattern. Another depicts Solomon in the act of receiving gifts from the queen of Sheba, while—and this is regarded as the most conclusive of all—the founder of Japan's dynasty of 126 emperors bore the same name (Osea) as the last king of Israel (Hoshea), his contemporary.

Do You Think I Could?

I'd gathered many a sweet wild flow'r
Growing in the glade,
So sat me down—it seemed an hour—
Dreaming, I'm afraid;
Then 'Somebody' in coat of gray
'Came toward me through the wood,
Should I go home the other way?—
Do you think I could?

We wandered where the woodbine grew
And roses peeped between,
He said it was the prettiest view
He had ever seen;
But all the while he looked my way,—
I don't know why he should—
I couldn't find a word to say—
Do you think I could?

Beneath my lashes flew a fly,
I could scarcely see,
So he picked the creature from my eye
Very carefully;
He wanted some reward for this;
Would he please, I thought,
Would I refuse a little—kiss?—
Do you think I could?

OPERATIONS AVOIDED

Two Grateful Letters from Women Who Avoided Serious Operations.—Many Women Suffering from Like Conditions Will Be Interested.

When a physician tells a woman, suffering from ovarian or womb trouble, that an operation is necessary it, of course, frightens her.

"The very thought of the operating table and the knife strikes terror to her heart. As one woman expressed it, when told by her physician that she must undergo an operation, she felt that her death knell had sounded.

Our hospitals are full of women who are there for ovarian or womb operations!

It is quite true that these troubles may reach a stage where an operation is the only resource, but such cases are much rarer than is generally supposed, because a great many women have been cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound after the doctors had said an operation must be performed. In fact, up to the point where the knife must be used to secure instant relief, this medicine is certain to help.

The strongest and most grateful statements possible to make come from women who, by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, have escaped serious operations.

Margrile Ryan, Treasurer of St. Andrew's Society, Hotel English, Indianapolis, Ind., writes of her cures as follows:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I cannot find words to express my thanks for the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did me. The doctor said I could not get well unless I had an operation for ovarian and female troubles. I knew I could not stand the strain of an operation and made up my mind I would be an invalid for life.
