Bryan is back and has made his speech. His reception was certainly a most remarkable one—though every effort had been made by the democrats to make it an enthusiastic one—and give it every appearance of spontaneity. The address is an able one—especially from a democratic point of view. The subjects are well treated and it will undoubtedly be the key-note of the democratic campaign. His remarks also give evidence to the fact that John Sharp Williams, of Mississippi, succeeded in seeing him before he sailed from Europe, and succeeded in impressing upon him the fact that if he intended to again be a candidate for president he must modify his views on the subject of the ownership of the railroads—provided he desired the support of the people of the southern states. He made the desired modification—which shows that Bryan can learn—and declared, that while he favored municipal ownership, he believed federal government should only control the trunk lines and the other systems should be owned and operated by the states. This will save the south from the nightmare which the people of that section have had for some time that government ownership might mean the abolishment of separate cars for the whites and the colored people. The fact that Bryan made this change in his views is also an evidence—if any were needed—that he intends to again be a candidate for the position of chief executive—if it is possible to secure the democratic nomination—provided Teddy adheres to his decision to not be a candidate. If, however, Roosevelt is forced to accept a nomination, Mr. Bryan will not be anxious to sacrifice himself for the third time.

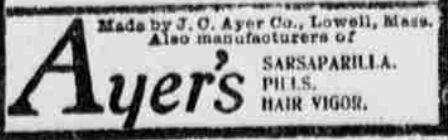

The active political campaign in the state will probably not last more than four or five weeks. The republican administration which stands before the people for endorsement, stands for clean, business methods, fair dealing, the proper discharge of official duties in all departments, for economy without parsimony, for decency without hypocrisy and a proper and conscientious discharge of responsibilities to the people of the state. It is to be desired that the campaign in the state shall be fairly and decently conducted by all political parties, that the right of candidacy for office shall be accorded every man, and that the same good faith shall be observed between political opponents as should be observed in every fair and square rivalry. The fair-minded and unprejudiced voter who examines the record of the state administration will admit that the affairs of the state have been honestly and creditably conducted and that there is no reason why any republican should hesitate to cast his ballot for the nominees on the republican ticket. The candidates are the choice of a large majority of the delegates selected by the republicans of the state and entitled to the support of all republicans. And there is no good reason why they should not receive it. The Republican believes they will and that the ticket will be elected by a larger majority than that of two years ago.

He Spoke Well and Truly.
The following is from a Missouri farmer's address before a farmers institute: "A rule the farmer knows no firmer friend than the country press. The home paper is distinctly the farmers' own paper, supported directly or indirectly by the farmers who compose the backbone of the printers' subscription list and largely for what the enterprising merchant advertises. Now, brother let us not forget our friends. Let us see that our subscription is paid, and a year in advance if we can afford it. The man or the paper that fights my battles shall have my support. Another thing, the merchants who advertise are the

It Quiets the Cough

This is one reason why Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is so valuable in consumption. It stops the wear and tear of useless coughing. But it does more—it controls the inflammation, quiets the fever, soothes, and heals. Sold for 60 years.

"Ayer's Cherry Pectoral has been a regular life preserver to me. It brought me through a severe attack of pneumonia, and I feel that I owe my life to its wonderful curative properties."—WILLIAM H. TRUITT, Waverly, Pa.

ones who make it possible for us to get a good local paper; and the men or firms who are too penurious to advertise and support the local press, have no right to the farmers' patronage. I propose hereafter to go to a good, live, local advertiser and a man who will do his share of supporting the local press, thus contributing to my support, rather than buy of a man who proposes to take all and give nothing in return.

A Great Snap.
Every once in a while some cheerful individual remarks to us: "Well, now that the paper is out you can take it easy for three or four days," and we are reminded of what another country editor once said. Yes, how delightful it is that a country editor has practically nothing to do between press days. Business runs along automatically. When paper bills become due money drops off the trees with which to pay them. Subscribers vie with each other to see who can pay the farthest in advance. Advertisers beg for additional space. And the way the news hunts up the editor is also pleasant to contemplate. There is something really peculiar about the way news items act. When the paper is out the editor simply goes to his desk and leans back in his easy chair and looks wise and waits for the next week's press day. The day before press day the people line up in front of the office door and then they file past the desk and tell him all the news of the week. He writes it up in fifteen or twenty minutes, takes it back and hangs it on the copy hook. The compositors take the copy, shake it over the type cases, say a few mystic words, the type flies into place and after a few passes by the foreman the forms are ready for the press again. And the editor goes down and deposits some more money in the bank. It's the greatest snap in the catalogue.

Happily Wedded.
(Communicated.)

On Sunday, September 2nd, at twelve o'clock occurred the marriage of Miss Zinn Grant to Mr. William H. Parker, the event taking place at "The Elms," the summer residence of the bride's parents.

With Mrs. Zeda Wehling at the piano and to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, the bridal couple entered the parlor, with Miss Bertha Shackelford as bridesmaid and Mr. Jack Wood as groomsmen, marched to a corner draped with the National colors and decorated with the state flower—golden rod. And in the presence of half a hundred friends, tried and true, with the Rev. Mr. Pinckney officiating, the ceremony was performed that changed the current of two lives.

Miss Zinn Grant is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William D. Grant, of this city, and has grown to womanhood in our midst, is a graduate of the Broken Bow High school and is well known by all.

Mr. Parker is a son of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Parker, a recent addition to the population of Custer county, moving here from Gresham, Polk county, Nebraska, last March, and is a prosperous young farmer well liked and respected in his former home.

Congratulations, rice and confetti were showered on the newly wedded pair, then the entire party repaired to a large tent in which dinner was served. After dinner came ice cream and the punch bowl with nothing more than Frappi in it. Many beautiful presents were received by the happy couple and the company united in wishing them a long, happy and prosperous life. Just before the leave taking Mr. Ed. Purcell, with his ever ready kodak, "shot" the bridal party and later the entire company. Mr. and Mrs. Parker left Monday morning for a short wedding trip to his old home and to Lincoln. On their return the groom will build a new house on his farm, 4 1/2 miles north of town. In one of the numerous presents was the following verse:

Bring flowers, fresh flowers for the bride to wear,
They were born to blush in her shining hair,
She is leaving the home of childhood's mirth,
She has bid farewell to her father's hearth,
Her place is now by another's side,
Bring flowers for the locks of the fair young bride.

A Stir in Music Circles.

Music lovers of this city are much interested in the success of "Azaleas," a new two-step Intermezzo that is being played by bands and orchestras all over the country.

"Azaleas" is popular in form, but unlike most "popular" pieces, is really musical.

"Azaleas" is one of the new Lyon & Healy publications and we predict that it will not be long until every piano is decorated with a copy.
