A KENTUCKY WOMAN

How She Gained Fifteen Pounds In Weight and Became Well by Taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Women at forty, or thereabouts, have their future in their own hands. There will be a change for the better or worse, for the better if the system is purified by such a tonic as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Mrs. D. C. Wedding, of Hartford, Ky. writes as follows concerning the diffioulties which afflicted her:

"I was seriously ill and was confined to my bed for six or eight months in all, during two years. I had chills, fever, rheumatism. My stomach seemed al-ways too full, my kidneys did not act freely, my liver was inactive, my heart beat was very weak and I had dizziness or swimming in my head and nervous

"I was under the treatment of several different physicians but they all failed to do me any good. After suffering for two years I learned from an Arkansas friend about the merits of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I decided that I would try them. The very first box I took made me feel better and when I had taken four boxes more I was entirely well, weighed fifteen pounds more than when I began, resumed my household duties, and have since continued in the best of health. I have recommended Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to many people on account of what they did for me, and I feel that I cannot praise them too strongly.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills restored Mrs. Wedding to health because they actually make new blood and when the blood is in full vigor every function of the body is restored, because the blood carries to every organ, every muscle, every nerve, the necessary nourishment. Any woman who is interested in the cure of Mrs. Wedding will want our book, "Plain Talks to Women," which is free on request.

His Broken Resolve

Henry Clancy began this Monday morning with the resolution to save money. This was his custom on Monday morning, but he never really meant to until this particular morning. It is too bad a man with $75 tastes usually gets a $25 salary.

As he went to his desk the office boy brought a letter. Clancy noticed it was in a feminine hand. As he opened it and glanced at the signature his heart sank. It was from Kate Henderson. She was just stopping over in New York that night with her sister on her way to a Maine resort to spend the summer and couldn't he spare a few minutes to run around to see her? She had so much to tell him.

His first resolve was to stay as far away from Kate Henderson as possible and invent some lie to explain his absence; but his better nature immediately asserted itself and he remembered that he was really under obligations to her. He called up the address she gave. The lady who answered the 'phone said Miss Henderson was out-would he leave a message? No, she was quite sure Miss henderson had no plans for going out that night. Certainly she would tell her that Mr. Clancy would call for her that night at eight to take her to the theater.

This done, Clancy forgot all about it till closing up time that night, when the head bookkeeper came in to ask his help for a few moments with some vouchers. The vouchers were not straightened out till seven o'clock, and then Clancy hurried away to dress before he got a bite to eat.

He traveled uptown as fast as the subway would carry him, ran upstairs to his room, slung off his business clothes, gashed himself with a razor, applied court plaster and talcum powder profanely, split a shirt all the way up the back, getting into it, and then swore horribly as the shirt stud flipped from his hands and was lost to view. He searched the floor for it with a lighted match, which burnt his fingers, remembering that he had only two shirt studs in the world. The missing stud was nowhere to be found and in a gust of rage he jerked on a coat and dashed downstairs and up to the corner to a haberdashery, where he purchased three new studs. Back up to his rooms he ran, aware of the fact that he was due to call for Kate within a few minutes. He jerked on his remaining clothes and darted out again for the elevated, cursing his luck as he thought of his lost dinner and the general cussedness of everything.

As he left the train at Ninety-third street and sprinted up to Ninetyfourth street to the girl's address, he noted that he was only five minutes behind time after all. Perhaps she would forgive him for that.

He sat down in the house after sending up his name and waited. He waited 20 minutes, which seemed 60, for the lady to appear. Was she late? she asked when she came gushing into the room. Really! Oh, she had an idea -.. but Clancy already had her by the arm and was whisking her down in the direction of Forty-second street. There he succeeded in getting two seats at two dollars each for one of the popular plays.

They came out at the close of the show to find it raining. Clancy asked the girl where she would like to go for a bite to eat-he had been everywhere, and perhaps there was some special place she would enjoy visiting. Well, she didn't care about going to any of these flashy, gilded places-would it do to go to the Cafe Boulevard or Little Hungary-she had always heard they were so bohemian. Clancy signified that it suited him, and measuring the rain and the girl's flimsy dress, he called a

Clancy prided himself on showing a girl that he was no "tight wad." Besides, he had his appetite with him -having had no dinner. He ordered liberally and he enjoyed everything he ordered. So did Miss Henderson

They had a great time, and then Clancy called for the check and pulled out his roll. The check amounted to $11.50, but to Clancy's wonder, there were only five one-dollar bills in his wad, rolled around a center of cigar coupons which had been lying in his pocket for months. Then with the orror he remembered that in accordance with his resolve to pay as he went and save up, he had paid his board bill the Saturday before.

He asked the girl to excuse him and in a low tone requested the waiter to lead him to the manager or any person in authority. The manager eyed him coldly, but Clancy was evi dently so sincere and backed his tale so strongly with a gold watch that was evidently genuine, that the man ager promised to hold it as security.

Clancy was strangely silent on the way home, though the girl chatted gayly by his side and seemed inclined to snuggle up to him.

At the door of the house she turned with a radiant smile. "Oh, Hefry how shall I ever thank you? You've been such a dear. And now do look at your watch and see what time it

On his way home Clancy kept turn ing over in his mind the question: "Did she known about that watch and was she guying me, or was it just a chance remark?"-N. Y. Press.

BABY'S TORTURING HUMOR.

Off-Face Mass of Sores-Cured by Cuticura in Two Weeks for 75c.

"I feel it my duty to parents of other poor suffering babies to tell you what Cutlcura has done for my little daughter. She broke out all over her body with a humor, and we used everything recommended, but without results. I called in three doctors, they all claimed they could help her, but she continued to grow worse Her body was a mass of sores, and her little face was being eaten away; her ears looked as if they would drop off. Neighbors advised me to get Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and be without it again if it cost five dollars, instead of seventy-five cents. Mrs. George J. Steese, 701 Colburn St., Akron, Ohio."

Hindu Moon Lore. The full eclipse of the moon was observed in Singapore on the night of August 4. According to the Hindus this eclipse is the contact between the moon and another planet called Rahoo, but the masses believe that owing to the will of God, Rahoo, or the serpentlike planet, catches hold of the moon by its hideous mouth and releases it after a short time. At the first contact the Hindus bathe principally in the sea and anxiously await the release. After the contact they take another bath. During the interval they are not allowed even to drink a cup of water, as their belief is that all things in the world get polluted during the contact.-Singapore Times.

Bird Breding Islands.

During the last year the Audubon Society of Louisiana has rented some 17 bird breeding islands, located in the waters of the gulf. Last year the islands were watched by two wardens, whose wages were paid by the national committee of Audubon societies, and although they were not wholly able to prevent trespassing and egg stealing nevertheless the results attained were wellnigh marvellous. On their own and the neighboring islands of Breton reservation, owned by the federal government, by these simple preventive measures, there were hatched and raised all of 40,000 birds, composed of the following species: Common terns, foresters, terns, royal terns, laughing gulls, b' k skimmers. -Country Life in America.

Strange World Tour. A story is told in Paris of a titled painter's pilgrimage. Ten years ago Viscomte Jacques de Gruart laid a wager of $60,000 that he and his bride, to be married in the day of departure, could make a tour of the world, living on the earnings of the vicomte's brush. There was no stipulation as to time. The pair have just reached Paris on their return, after successfully accomplishing their undertaking and winning their bet. They have traversed Euroupe, America, Africa and Australia, living on nothing but the meager profits of the vicomte's brush.

THE LAXATIVE OF KNOWN QUALITY There are two classes of remedies; those of known quality and which are permanently beneficial in effect, acting gently, in harmony with nature, when nature needs assistance; and another class, composed of preparations of unknown, uncertain and inferior character, acting temporarily, but injuriously, as a result of forcing the natural functions unnecessarily. One of the most exceptional of the remedies of known quality and excellence is the ever pleasant Syrup of Figs, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., which represents the active principles of plants, known to act most beneficially, in a pleasant syrup, in which the wholesome Californian blue figs are used to contribute their rich, yet delicate, fruity flavor. It is the remedy of all remedies to sweeten and refresh and cleanse the system gently and naturally, and to assist one in overcoming constipation and the many ills resulting therefrom. Its active princtples and quality are known to physicians generally, and the remedy has therefore met with their approval, as well as with the favor of many millions of well informed persons who know of their own personal knowledge and from actual experience that it is a most excellent laxative remedy. We do not claim that it will cure all manner of ills, but recommend it for what it really represents, a laxative remedy of known quality and excellence, containing nothing of an objectionable or injurious character.

There are two classes of purchasers; those who are informed as to the quality of what they buy and the reasons for the excellence of articles of exceptional merit, and who do not lack courage to go elsewhere when a dealer offers an imitation of any well known article; but, unfortunately, there are some people who do not know, and who allow themselves to be imposed upon. They cannot expect its beneficial effects if they do not get the genuine remedy.

To the credit of the druggists of the United States be it said that nearly all of them value their reputation for professional integrity and the good will of their customers too highly to offer imitations of the
