Lew Swope went to Alliance two weeks ago where he installed a bowling alley for G. F. Bray which was opened last Thursday. It is the first and only one in Alliance and he writes that it was popular from the start and the patronage steadily increasing day by day and a full house all the time.

The REPUBLICAN does not want anybody, however humble, to come to Broken Bow or anybody living here to go out of town without getting their name in the paper. It will be your fault if it is not, because we want you to let us know it. All you have to do is to call for phone No. 78 and tell us.

Do not fail to remember that next Thursday is Thanksgiving as well as publication day for the REPUBLICAN. If you have anything for insertion in the paper bring in the copy on or before Wednesday and the office force will observe the day in accordance with the recommendations of our beloved president Teddy.

Christmas is coming. This fact is made the more evident by the line of goods being placed on exhibition in the various business houses, likewise the increasing attendance at the various Sabbath schools in this city where presents are always dispensed at Christmas time. Nothing like the anticipation of a Christmas present will swell the enrollment of a Sunday school.

A party drove from Berwyn to this city and at five different farms sought to purchase potatoes. At three of the places the owners stated that they didn't have any except what they bought and at the two other places the occupants each said they had less than six bushels. This may seem incredible—when one considers that potatoes were prolific this year—but it is never-the-less true.

A new road record book has been placed in the county clerk's office which is certainly one of the most handy affairs ever put up in the line of record books. The leaves can be removed and the pages written on a typewriter and then replaced in the book, the leaves being held in place, and securely, by a rod extending the full length of the book. Since last January over forty new roads have been established in the county and the work of recording them and the changes of old roads has very nearly kept one clerk busy.
