LEFT BIG MAN THINKING.
 Visitor's Remark Tended to Reduce "Swelled Head."

There are men in high positions in New York who are a credit to them only in their business ability. One of that sort came to the city a dozen or more years ago from a western town, where he made his start. A gentleman who had known him in his less pretentious days called on him recently. "I simply called to pay my respects," he said, going a little lame at the reception he received. "I have no axes to grind and no favors to ask. You may have forgotten me, but I met you several times on business visits to your old town, and I thought I'd like to see how you were taking to the metropolis." "Yes, yes," responded the man at the desk, picking up a paper, as if he were very busy, and speaking in the tone of the person who sizes up other people on their material possibilities. And that's all he said. The visitor shook himself and got a fresh hold. "Yes," he said, turning to go, "I called to pay my respects, but I discovered that I don't owe any. Good-morning." Then he walked out, and the big man had a more uncomfortable feeling than had come to him since he had been in the big city.—N. Y. Press.

RIGHT-HANDED — LEFT-LEGGED.
 Peculiarity of Humanity That Is Not Generally Considered.

Most people would think that as man is, with very few exceptions, "right-handed," he would be at the same time "right-legged." But this is not the case. Almost every right-handed man uses his left leg more than his right. For instance, most people find it much more natural to go round circles to the right than to the left. That is because they start with the left leg. Being stronger, it is more readily brought into action, and it is on this account that bodies of soldiery always start to march with the left foot. Almost all courses for foot races are made out for running to the right, and dancers will indorse the statement that the majority of movements are far more easily executed in this direction. The left foot is the one that is placed in the stirrup for mounting a horse, and in jumping, it is from the left foot that the athlete "takes off." Thus it will be seen that, as a general rule, "right-handed" people are "left-legged."

Public Gifts for Beauty.
 Everett H. Barney, a millionaire of Springfield, Mass., has just deeded an estate and a fortune to the city as the beginning of a scheme of local beautification. The plans include a boulevard and park system to extend two miles along the Connecticut river. Cooperation is called for on the part of the municipality and by the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad. Mr. Barney's act and William P. Leitchworth's splendid gift of a park reservation to the state of New York, recorded this early in 1907, seem to promise a rare turn to the benefactions of the year. It has been charged that our rich men show no imagination, but only method in their giving; that they follow routine though extremely useful lines of philanthropy in endowing colleges, libraries and churches. If they are to pay a good deal of attention hereafter to the promotion of cities beautiful and to the preservation of nature's own art galleries, this point of criticism will have to be abandoned.

Owes His Life to Umbrella.
 During the Franco-German war a man owed his life to an umbrella. He was so obviously a foreigner that the French arrested him as a German spy. He swore that he was English, but was disbelieved. A drumhead court-martial sentenced him to instant execution. As they led him away he insisted on returning, as he had left something. He could not return, they told him; he was now going to be shot. But he must go back, he declared. What had he left? they asked. "My umbrella," he said. They were instantly convinced that no one but an Englishman could be so helpless an idiot. He was at once liberated.

Fought Bears with Axes.
 Two woodchoppers, armed with axes, had a battle with a huge black bear and four partially grown cubs on Mt. Pico, says a Rutland (Vt.) correspondent of the New York Times. They killed two cubs, but the mother and other cubs got away. Luther Weeks and his son Clinton felled a large tree and it crashed down into a clump of bushes. Angry growls followed, and the four bears, who had been hibernating under the bushes, made for the men. The men fought and won. The cubs that were killed weighed 100 pounds each. The men declare the old bear was fully eight feet long and would weigh about 500 pounds.

Permanent Employment.
 Old Sam had been for several days patiently sitting on the bank of the Rappahannock river, near the dam, holding his shotgun in his hand. Finally he attracted the attention of a passer-by, who asked: "Well, Uncle Sam, are you looking for something to do?" "No, sah," answered Sam; "I've gettin' paid for what I's doin'." "Indeed!" answered the stranger. "And what may that be?" "Shootin' de muskrats dat am underminin' de dam," answered Sam. "Well, there goes one now," exclaimed the stranger excitedly. "Why don't you shoot it?" "S'pose I wants to lose my job, sah?" answered Sam complacently.

Things That Count.
 Let the weakest, let the humblest remember, that in his daily course he can, if he will, shed around him almost a heaven. Kindly words, sympathizing attentions, watchfulness against wounding men's sensitiveness, these cost very little, but they are priceless in their value. Are they not almost the staple of our daily happiness? From hour to hour, from moment to moment, we are supported, blessed, by small kindnesses.

Marriage an "Endurance Thrill."
 "Th' trouble about matrimony, as I have observed it fr'm me seat in th' gran' stand, is that after fifteen or twenty years it settles down to an endurance thrill. 'Women,' as Hogan says, 'are creatures iv such beachacious mien, that to be loved they have but to be seen; but,' he says, 'wanst they're seen an' made secure,' he says, 'we first embrace, thin ply, thin endure,' he says."—Dooley, in Harper's.

Good Comparison.
 William Dean Howells at a Lenten dinner in New York said: "I heard of a striking simile the other day. A lady was doing some Lenten marketing—buying eggs, fish, fruit. Pausing before a fruit stand, she examined a heap of pears. 'Are these juicy?' she asked. 'Juicy,' said the dealer warmly. 'Why, ma'am, they're as juicy as my old pipe.'

Y. M. C. A. in New York.
 New York city is the greatest Y. M. C. A. center in the world. It has more than 40 organizations and 20,000 members; it has 400 secretaries and employees, and 2,800 of its members are office holders and committeemen. Its largest building, the Twenty-third street branch, cost $1,000,000, and has 3,600 members.

Keep Mum.
 Women, as women, are pretty much alike. They have the same hair, differing slightly only as to color and length; same features, same thoughts. When we love one of them, therefore, we are in reality loving them all. But it is just as well not to mention this.—Life.

"Beauty Doctors" Harvest.
 Compounders of beauty lotions, bleaches, pastes and powders have thriven from time immemorial, though never as in the present, when fortunes are being steadily amassed by the gentry who cater to the inborn yearning of womankind to improve upon nature's gift.—Family Doctor.

The Lion and the Lamb.
 John A. Harrison, a prominent business man of Stoneham, was surprised the other day when he went out in his back yard to see his pet cat and a squirrel eating out of the same dish. He called to his cat, but the animal refused to leave his new found friend.—Boston Post.

In a Great Metropolis.
 There are 3,556 blind Londoners, while 2,057 are deaf and dumb. There are 10,058 soldiers in London barracks, 46,646 paupers in the poor-houses, 10,500 patients in the hospitals, 3,300 lunatics in asylums and nearly 5,000 criminals in the prisons.

Missionaries in India.
 There are, altogether, foreign and native, 25,799 persons that are actively engaged in bringing the gospel to India, while ten years ago there were only 16,189—a gain of nearly 60 per cent.

In the Future.
 Country boarders wanted in Lonesomehurst; sterilized milk; germless butter; eggs laid under a doctor's eye; fresh vegetables, canned this year, certified labels.—N. Y. Herald.

Don't Talk Too Much.
 Don't be too ready with advice. If your opinion is really needed, it is sure to be asked for. People who force advice upon one have not sufficient tact to be "beat" friends.

Queer African Animal.
 Among the many curious and unusual animals which have been found by Sir Harry Johnston, the African explorer, in the Uganda Protectorate, is the whale-headed stork.

NOT JUST AT THAT TIME.
 Editor Thought He Could Get Along Without Article.

The story is told of a writer who, through boldness in attacking the established order of things, had considerable vogue for a short time. In the midst of his notoriety he decided that he would contribute to a certain well-known magazine, in whose pages he had not yet been represented. He waited on the editor, and found him immersed in some hurried writing. "Ah, Mr. Blank," said the author, with that immunity from modesty which distinguished him, "you want an article from me." "Indeed?" queried the editor, going on with his writing. "Indeed?" "One article to begin with," pursued the author. "And I am willing to do it for you in spite of much work." "Indeed?" said the editor, as before. "I should say," followed up the author, "that for such an article as I have in mind, startling and original, I will close with you for $1,000." The editor's pen drove on. "Close with me!" he murmured. "Close! Will you kindly close the door as you go out?"

YANKEE INGENUITY NOT DEAD.
 Ample Proof of Its Possession in State of Connecticut.

William G. Ward, a merchant, recently had a stove, in which a coal fire was burning, moved with other goods from his old home, on Platt's Hill, to his present apartment. He did not want the trouble of making a new fire, thereby further exemplifying his Yankee ingenuity. While driving through North Hartland, a farming village 13 miles distant from here, he stopped at the home of E. J. Barnes to get warm. He said he sold pianos, and Mr. Barnes became interested. Finally Mr. Barnes said he wanted to hear the tone of the instrument before he made a bargain. Stepping to the telephone, Ward called up his store here, had a $350 instrument rolled up close to the telephone transmitter and then ordered a saleswoman, Miss Elizabeth Harnett, to play a few selections, which she did. The music over the wire enraptured the family, the deal was closed and the piano was shipped to the Barnes farm.—Winsted (Conn.) Cor. New York World.

We're All Leather Eaters.
 "And then," said the Arctic explorer, "I ate my leather belt." "Pooh! What of that? Every mother's son of us eats a pair of shoes a year." The explorer frowned. "This," he began, "is no laughing—" But the scientist interrupted him. "I am not jesting, sir. I speak the solemn truth. What is leather? Is it not albumen and tannin? Well, when you add milk to your tea or coffee the tannin of the one and the albumen of the other unite, and leather results. The leather is in minute particles. Nevertheless it is there. And down it goes. All who drink tea or coffee daily," the scientist concluded, "consume in a year enough leather to make a pair of shoes." The explorer sneered. "To resume," he said, "I then ate the lining of," etc.

Has One Cent for J. P. Morgan.
 If Mr. John Pierpont Morgan of Broad and Wall streets will acknowledge the letter sent him by State Treasurer Hauser recently he can make a cent. Mr. Morgan recently sent his check for $122.23 to the state comptroller in payment of taxes on land he owns in the Adirondacks. The routine of checking up his obligation brought to light the fact that Mr. Morgan only owed $122.22. The comptroller notified the state treasurer, and the latter sent Mr. Morgan a letter advising him of the fact. As soon as Mr. Morgan replies the state treasurer will send him a check five inches long by two inches deep for the sum of one cent.

When He Really Begins.
 A touring company had arrived at a town and were due to open that night, when it was discovered that the trombone was ill. A local substitute was provided and the performance was given. At the conclusion the conductor summoned the newcomer to him. "Look here," he said, "you must work, you know. I didn't hear much of that trombone of yours to-night." "To-night," replied the man, loftily, "I was out of form. But you wait till to-morrow, when I really begin to play. You won't be able to hear any of the other fellows then."

Very Appropriate.
 A certain officer who had by no means distinguished himself in the South African war retired from the service and built himself a villa in a remote spot on the coast of Devonshire. He was showing it to a friend one day, and remarked: "The one difficulty I have is about a name for the house. I should like to hit upon something suitable—something appropriate to my military career, you know." "I see," replied his friend; "then why not call it 'The Retreat?'"—London Tit-Bits.

Dog Checked at Theater.
 For the first time in history, so said the wisecracker, a dog was checked in the coat-room of a New York Theater the other night. It happened at the Herald Square. Two women entered the theater and went immediately to the retiring room near the lobby. One of them had carried in a bulldog under her opera cloak. She asked whether she could have him checked, and checked he was, like a cane or umbrella, until the end of the performance.—N. Y. Times.
