The system of handling jurors and their treatment is a disgrace to the courts. The jury system, itself, is one of the hazy traditions of the past that might much better be supplanted by a trial before three men learned in law. But if the system is to be retained, why the necessity of treating every juror like he was a criminal? If the juror is an honorable man, intelligent enough to sit at a trial, acceptable to the court, the prosecution and the defense, why does he immediately become such an object of distrust and suspicion the moment he is sworn in? The juror is not permitted to go to his home for his meals nor to his bed at night; he is not allowed to walk alone on the streets of his home town—all because he is suspected as a criminal and might accept a bribe to influence his decision, no matter how honest and honorable he may be. Some judge can win credit for himself and his profession by cutting loose from these antediluvian methods and establishing a new precedent for handling jurors. If a member of a jury violates his oath or accepts a bribe there is adequate punishment for the offense. The juror is entitled to a square deal.

There is a great deal of money in the chicken business, but like everything else it requires an expert to make the industry highly profitable. The great trouble is that almost everybody who can discriminate between a tough old rooster and a young pullet constitutes himself an authority on poultry. Armed with a few bunches of lathes he will start a hen coop and tell his friends how much money he intends to put in the bank in a few months. The poultry and egg business—unless it be Colonel William Jennings Bryan—is about the biggest thing that ever happened in the United States. Its possibilities are beyond computation. Nebraskans who used to boast of buying their eggs by the crate are now indulging in the homelaid variety. More attention is being paid to the industry and the poultry raisers are making a study of the problem to get the best breeds for their especial purpose, and to find the foods, as well as the comfortable and sanitary houses for their chickens. Scrub stock doesn't pay, but thoroughbreds are in demand.

Wheat may not be kept up to the dollar mark, but there are several elements which have that tendency, and even a higher point may be reached if the outlook for the spring crop should be discouraging. There is a shortage of foreign wheat, the winter wheat belt has undoubtedly suffered and the crop is short. The spring wheat crop is late and depends more than usual on the weather conditions from now until harvest. Altogether the wheat situation is favorable to the bull interests in the market, and the speculative features will be interesting from now until the first part of August.

Pure bred or high grade cattle give so much better results both for beef and milk that a man cannot afford to waste his feed on animals without blood behind them. Some successful sales have been conducted in the state and more will be held which should be attended and purchases made by those farmers who are raising only scrub stock. The raising of good stock is the kind of work in which the breeders cast their bread on the waters.

Vice President Fairbanks notes there is no fight among the Indiana republicans over who is the favorite son—but leaves the public to guess who it is.

Mrs. McKinley Dead.

Mrs. William McKinley, widow of the late martyr president, died at her home in Canton, Ohio, at 1:06 o'clock Sunday afternoon, May 26th.

For many years Mrs. McKinley had been an invalid. She rallied from the shock of her husband's death—but it left its mark, and when it was known that she had suffered a stroke of paralysis little hope was felt that she could survive.

The end came peacefully—almost imperceptibly. Mrs. McKinley never knew of the efforts made for days to prolong her life, nor of the solicitations hope against hope of her sister and other relatives and friends for her recovery.

The body of Mrs. McKinley will be placed in the vault in West Lawn cemetery, which holds also the body of her husband, until the completion of the national mausoleum on Monument hill when both caskets will be transferred to receptacles in that tomb.

Mrs. McKinley's life of almost sixty years has been made familiar to the nation by the fact that more than half of it was a period of invalidism. Through all this, however, she showed a firm and unwavering belief in the career of her husband and by her cheering words, in spite of personal afflictions, encouraged him when there was darkness at hand.

She believed that his star of destiny would never set until he had become president of this land and for more than a quarter of a century cherished that belief until her hopes were realized.

After President McKinley's death she expressed a desire to join him and prayed day by day that she might die. Later, however, she frequently told friends she desired to live until the completion of the McKinley mausoleum, which is the gift of the nation, and which is to be dedicated on Monument hill September 30 next.

Sheriff Now Gets Salary.

At the last session of the legislature a law was enacted which completely changes matters in connection with the office of sheriff of the various counties in the state. Under the old law the sheriff was paid in fees and he had the privilege of selecting deputies and paying such amount as he might arrange with them. The new law provides a salary for the sheriff according to population of the county and the supervisors furnish the deputies. The law reads:

"Section 2. The board of county supervisors shall furnish the sheriff with such deputies as they deem necessary and shall fix the compensation of such deputies who shall be paid by warrant drawn on the general fund."

An emergency clause was attached to the act and it went into force April 5th, but as the county supervisors have not met since that time and selected and fixed the salaries of deputies, the new law will not be put into effect until this is done at a meeting of the supervisors next week. The salary allowed by the new law to the sheriff of Custer county is $1,750 per year.

COUNTY CHATTER

Commencement at Anselmo.

Our school commencement, Friday evening the 23rd inst, proved a very interesting event both to village and tributary territory. The class consisted of six—four boys and two girls. The program was as follows:

Invocation..... Rev. French
Thesis—"The Coming Farmer" Floyd Warren
Reading—"Terry O'Milligan, the Irish Philosopher"..... Mrs. J. C. Moore
Thesis—"The Original Language"..... Lillian Andrews
Trio—Selected..... Misses Richey and Parkison
Oration—"College Education"..... Linnie V. Lindley
Address to the Graduates by Co. Supt. Pinckney.
Presentation of Diplomas: 5th grade by Supt. Pinckney; 10th grade by F. C. Wilson.

A "great big rain" began a weather report just as the exercises opened and kept up such a disturbing noise that the audience failed to hear the graduating papers as wished in spite of commendable efforts made by the speakers.

The reading by Mrs. Moore was a felicitous compliment to both the graduates and the listening throng. Supt. Pinckney's address proved not only "chock full" of good things for the boys and girls awaiting presentation of their diplomas, but kept the crowded church much interested. We do not remember when or where, in the many pertinent graduating addresses we have listened to, that more palatable meat was presented to the graduates.

The Weisert team will visit Berwyn Saturday afternoon, June 1, and play the locals a return game. Everybody come out and see a good game.

Dry Valley Doings.

Wet weather and discontinuing corn planting are the latest topics of the day.

The recent rains washed out considerable listed corn and will necessitate replanting.

Since the recent rains every thing in the vegetation line has put on a green coat and a much more promising look.

George Steele, of Comstock, has gotten out a new device in the way of a glass cutter. We have not seen it, but those who have say it is all right.

A baptizing will be held at the Comstock mill next Sunday afternoon, June 2, by the Rev. Copp. Several new members will be emerged in the Loup waters.

This week will see the end of corn planting in this section and it's the time of year to quit. However, we read in a farm paper a late spring usually brings a late fall.
