There will be things doing next year. The great political vaudeville will be on and from Maine to where Ruef and Mayor Schmitz grafted there will be hot air stunts from candidates and their boosters. The presidential nomination will be the center of activity. For the republicans Hughes and Root will scrap it out in New York. Pennsylvania is likely to boost Knox; Ohio will have Taft and Foraker; Indiana will shiver over Fairbanks and Illinois will shout for "Uncle Joe" Cannon. The democrats will be in the race with its great 16 to 1 shouters from the Platte, Folk of Missouri, Johnson of Minnesota, Daniel of Virginia, Gray of Delaware and several precincts yet to hear from. There will be brain-storms, exaggerated ego, dementia americana and all kinds of things turned loose, and the average private citizen is already getting ready for the circus.

Some of those who made such a fight on the centralization of the federal government, appear to overlook the fact that the states are quite favorable to the plan. It relieves them of a lot of detail and worry and some expense. Quarantine regulations are a case in point. No one doubts but that the work is better done by the federal government than by the different states, despite the fact that it is invasion of state rights. Pure food inspection, maximum railroad rates and many other things come under the same class. Under the head of interstate commerce more crimes have been committed by the federal government against states rights than under any other guise. The necessity for uniform legislation along such lines is, however, so apparent that protest is limited to the minority.

The agitation for the abrogation of the life tenure of the United States judges finds little echo with the jurists themselves. Many regard the plan as a blow to the judiciary and an attempt to curb the dispensers of justice through fear of failure of reelection. Many assert, that being removed from politics, they can devote their entire time to their duties, and having a life tenure of office they can make their rulings without fear or favor. These arguments are all right for the right kind of judges, but the life tenure plan is regarded as a barrier behind which some of the crimmie wearers conceal their frailties.

The Woman's club of Omaha has asked the officials to order the removal from store windows of the imitation women's legs used to display fancy hosiery. Nature has probably not built the extremities of the members of the club as perfectly as the manufacturers of the imitations and they do not want their husbands to know the vast difference between a shapely imitation stocking-filler and the bowed and ill-shaped ones nature has conferred on them.

Americans claim the credit of reforming the English hotels, getting better menu and real bath tubs instead of tin pans. If some of them would do more of their traveling at home and exert their influence in a similar direction the American hotels might also be improved—and most of 'em need it badly.

If Dowie is to be reincarnated and return to build greater and grander than ever, he had better get a hump on him—before the sale of Zion City is carried out, as ordered by the court.

Nebraskans are interested in the fight between the cattlemen and the packers. The latter decline longer to purchase female cattle except conditional on being declared sound on post-mortem tests. Live stock dealers refuse to ship under the conditions imposed. As a result the trade is at a standstill. Live stock men want a sale, once made, to be binding. The packers feel they have already lost too much by purchasing diseased cattle. It is a fight to a finish, and one side will have to capitulate. Nebraska stockmen will naturally wish the matter to be determined before the fall shipping season.

Those physicians who advocate an exchange of certificates of healthfulness before two young people can osculate, must be cold blooded scientists. That would be entirely too formal and business like. Just imagine a young man who is out riding with a charming, rosy-cheeked, red-lipped maiden—just yearning for a caress! Just think how prosaic and unsatisfying it would be to ask her to see her certificate before attempting to "steal a kiss." Then suppose she had forgotten to put it in her stocking and bring it with her. Those physicians must all be of the "old whiskers" variety.

Reckless shooting is reducing the population. Nearly every day fatal accidents are reported from the careless handling of firearms. Recently a Pennsylvania, who had already shot his grandmother, added another notch to his gun by killing his 8-year old daughter while cleaning his shooting iron. In this state numerous instances, having fatal results, have been reported. The cheap, small calibre rifles are usually the weapons that are responsible for the killings.

If parents would exercise more authority and prevent their youngsters from carrying the dangerous and pesky little 22-calibers—there might be more grown up men in Nebraska—some day.

If there are any more earthquakes in San Francisco everything will become so crooked that Gabriel will perform his official duty before the straightening out process can be accomplished.

There is some agitation to prevent the miscellaneous osculation of infants on the ground that it transmits consumption. The babies would probably vote unanimously to abolish the custom.

Tillman thinks Harriman ought to be in hades and Harriman—reflecting on the events of the past six months—thinks it would be a relief.

That gilded martial infelicity can be as bad as sordid domestic unhappiness is evidenced by the disclosures in the divorce case of the Gould's in New York.

One trouble with the weather man is that he doesn't discriminate between a rare day in June and a raw one.

Will Celebrate the 4th.

The grand old bird of freedom will scream on the 4th of July in two more villages in the county in addition to those reported in the REPUBLICAN last week, namely: New Helena and Ansley.

Six towns in the county shooting fire crackers and oratory on the National holiday ought to be sufficient evidence that Custer is occupied by a truly patriotic class of citizens. You can have a rip-snorting time—and that's what you ought to be looking for on the 4th—by going to any of the following named places:

Merna
Ansley
Comstock
Anslemo
Callaway
New Helena

Something Radically Wrong.

Only four passenger trains reported wrecked during the past week in the United States with a dozen people killed and more than one hundred wounded. Of course that old chestnut, "an official investigation will be made," is made in each case. How many freight trains went into the ditch and the number of trainmen killed and crippled for life is not published. There is something radically wrong in the railway service of this country and "official investigation" that will locate the cause—before many more occur—should be made.
